This year's City Council is fast winning reputation for getting through business early. Last night's session, which by the way was held under the shadow of a massive American flag, was concluded at 10:10. The flag in question was side by side with a Union Jack of the same size, and had been hung across the council chamber by the decorators who are preparing the hall for a ball. It was not noticed until after the meeting, when one of the aldermen laughingly remarked that Ald. J. W. Jones and Col. Lindsay would have to see that no American flags were flying when the Toronto regiment that was expected here on May 24 arrived. Ald. John Hea-man is sick. The other members were all present, including, besides Mayor Little, Ald. Pritchard, Brener, J. W. Jones, Powell, O'Meara, Carrothers, William Heaman, Skinner, Garratt, Armstrong, Callahan, Dreaney, Nutkins, Ardill, Par-nell, Weld and McCallum.

The council, among other things, extended the time for the return of the tax collector's rolls until April 15. This will give those who are hard pressed just now a little further time. The division on the question found the aldermen as follows: Yeas-Aid. Powell, Carrothers, Wm. Heaman, Skinner, Armstrong, Callahan, Garratt, Nutkins, Ardill, Dreaney, Parnell, the Port Stanley Board for the past 25 years: Gentlemen-In accordance with a resolucash and minute books of the L. and P. S. R. Company re the payment of moneys to certain officials for the past 25 years.

1. That the secretary, W. Bowman, from Jan. 1, 1870, to Aug. 31, 1872, received $116 66 per month, or $1,400 per year—a total amount of $3,725 32; and that from Aug. 31, 1872, to December, 1893, he received, with three exceptions, $150 per year, those exceptions being in 1873, 1874 and 1875, when he received $200 a year, making a total of $3,450, or a grand total of $7,175 32.

2. That from January, 1870, to December, 1872, the following sums appear to have been paid out as directors' fees: Jan. 13, 1871-Directors' fees, $182.

Jan. 17, 1871-Murray Anderson, $430. Dec. 15, 1871-Directors' salaries, $168. Jan. 12, 1872-Directors' salaries, $127. Dec. 3, 1872-J. Egan, $1,000; T. M. Nain, 4 cents; J. Cousins, $6; J. Campbell, 42 cents; M. J. Munroe, 50 cents; J. Ellison. 50 cents; A. M. McLaughlin, 80 cents; S. Barker, 30 cents. These amounts cover the last two years that the road was operated by the city, the total amount being $2,763. The items of Jan. 13, 1871, Dec. 15, 1871, and Jan. 12, 1872, appear in the cash book simply as directors' fees, no names being mentioned. 3. From January, 1873, to December, 1893, which is the period covered by the Great Western lease, the following sums appear to have been paid to the undernamed gentlemen, either as directors' fees or salary: James Egan, $861; James Cousins, $56, J. Ellison, $124; J. Barker, $8; D. Drake, $76; J. Birrell, $16; C. P. Smith, $52; A. McCormick, $22; W. P. R. Street, $76; C. W. Harris, $2; Hon. John Carling, $6; C. McDonald, $2; D. McClary, $12; Charles Stiff, $38; Joseph Hobson, $32; R. Pritchard, $56. Total $1,439.

4. For the year 1894 and up to Feb. 16, 1895, the following sums were paid as salary or director's fees:

WHAT THEY SAID. "Your worship," said Ald. O'Meara, as the report concluded, "it was a pretty good cow, and kept milking pretty well up to the present time," (Laughter.)

"Whilst it is interesting," said Ald. Powell, in moving the adoption of the reboard and vote himself $1,000 or $600, I the Wharncliffe.
say it is an outrage on the city of London. "I will second the motion if Mr. Weld say it is an outrage on the city of London. I don't care who says otherwise. Every man that received a 5-cent piece from the Port Stanley Board, if it is not cutlived, there should be a suit entered against them to make them pay back every cent into the coffers of the city of London."

"I coinside with what Mr. Powell says," said Ald. O'Meara. "That is just the kind of a boy I am myself. (Laughter.) But Mr. O'Meara went on to point out that some of the amounts paid-namely to Mr. Bowman-were in the nature of salaries, and well earned.

The report was then adopted. ELECTRIC BAILWAY.

"There was no star chamber session," said Ald. Jones. "My report deals with that and reports progress."

Ald. Pritchard again drew attention to the fact that the City of London Trust

Ald. J. W. Jones moved that the trust be composed of Ald. Powell and ex-Ald. Robt. Pritchard.

"I would not take a dual position," Ald. A. B. Powell hastened to state; "that is just exactly what has got me into trouble now." (Laughter.)

The matter was laid over until next meeting, when a bylaw will be prepared. WILL IT GO THROUGH? Ald. O'Meara pressed his notice of motion to recommend to the Port Stanley Board that an embankment and arch be erected over Kettle Creek, on the G. T. R., and so give employment to the working-"In the first place," said Ald. O'Meara, "it is not going to cost the city one cent.

An estimated expenditure of $70,000 has been apportioned for the erection of the bridges, and debentures have been issued for the improvement. And as soon as this improvement is done the company pays 4 per cent upon the cutlay. Therefore the city would not be the looser." Ald. Callahan seconded the motion, and the matter was referred to the Port Stanley "They will report back to the committee

I suppose," said Ald. Powell.
"The Port Stanley Board does not report back," explained Mr. Kingston.
Then Mr. Powell objected to giving the board carte blanche, but the majority of the aldermen were willing to let the matter go to the board to be dealt with, and it went.

COMMITTEE REPORTS. The discussion commenced on the reading of the first clause of No. 3 committee's report. It recommended the adoption of the suggestion of the city engineer to water all streets within a certain area and to pay a certain portion of the cost of the same out of the general taxes.

Ald. Skinner moved that the clause be referred back, and Ald. Nutkins moved that it be struck out altogether. Ald. Pritchard thought the cost of watering should be paid by frontage. No part of it should be paid for out of the general

Ald. Powell thought that it was a fair and equitable thing that a certain percentage should be paid out of the general fund. Ald. Dreaney drew attention to the fact that the people on the outskirts of the city would have to pay a portion of the cost of the street watering in the central portion of the city.

It was argued by Ald. O'Meara that the general public reaped a benefit from the watering of the streets.

"In justice to my ward," said Ald. Natkins, "I cannot support anything like that. We have no sewer, we have no more than about four blocks of block pavement, and yet we pay our proportion of these special improvements. We are asked to support a scheme for another special im-provement whereby we would derive no benefit at all." Ald. Powell signified his willingness to have the matter lay over, and Ald. Weld spoke in favor of the scheme. After further discussion the clause was

The next clause recommended that tenders be called for street watering so that the estimates can be prepared. There was some objection to this, and Ald. O'Mears asked when the chairman (Ald. Powell) would require the tenders to be in. "Well, I may not be here," said Ald. Powell, "but if not, my successor will probably require them to be in within a couple of weeks." (Laughter.)

Ald. O'Meara thought that the figures contained in the tenders would become public property if called for so early, but Ald. Powell assured him that they would be kept secret. The clause was adopted. Clause 5 recommended that three arc lights be placed in the Covent Garden market.

"I move that the clause be struck out, said Ald. O'Meara. "I think No. 3 committee has been pretty roughly opposed tonight," said Ald. Pritchard in defending the clause, "Oh, I can stand it," said Chairman Powell. "Why, the revenue you derive from the whole Covent Garden will not pay for the three are lights," said Ald. J. W. Jones. "You gave them free gas. Now you want to give them electricity, too. I would go further, and give them free meat." Ald. Powell explained that the lights were only wanted for Saturday nights. They will be put in.

No. 2 committee's report was read by Ald. Wm. Heaman, chairman. It was adopted without debate.

Ald. J. W. Jones, chairman of No. 1 committee, read the report of that committee. It recommended for payment accounts amounting to $4,393 44. Ald. Pritchard asked if the second in-tract for japanning Victoria bridge had been paid. "No. 2 committee has not passed it," said Ald. O'Meara.

Ald. O'Meara, Wm. Heaman, Skinner and Parnell voted yea. The nays comprised the balance of the council. Ald. Weld's notice of the last meeting became a motion. It asked that Ald. Pritchard, Jones, Carrothers. Callahan, Dreaney and Weld be a committee to wait
