Londoner's Visit to Ancient Town of Hastings; Brilliant Description of Historic Spot

[Written Specially for The Advertiser.]

A short walk up such a primeval street as that of All Saints assures us of the antiquity of Hastings. Really one almost wonders of the vogue of ancient Chester, when one sees the wonders of Canterbury, Rye, Hastings, etc. Comparatively speaking, unhonored

The castle at Dover is yet a right tremendous fortification. But the battered ruin which crowns the cliffs of Hastings is but a fragment of the work of the Comte d'Eu, if he indeed was the 'Norman baron" who erected it. But there is a grim defiance about it yet, and the site is noble, commanding a huge stretch of silver sea, and valley, vale and down. Under it are the ironbound caverns, deep in the rocks, where the smugglers carried on their dangerous calling. The British boy, ruddy, stocky, and much becapped and becollared, climbs and clambers about the rocks, and plays cricket on the honest bit of common on the top, his hair flying in the wind. At the head of the tortuous All Saints street we come to the church, with its picturesque and strongly built four-square tower. The church contains the monument of a simple writer dear to the hearts of a generation swiftly passing away, George Moggridge, commonly known as "Old Humphrey," a genial Christian, And its register records the baptism of the notorious Titus Oates, one of those names which no British history can everlook. Although the century runs on, Saxon character changes but little.

The British workman, in his mole skin clothes, with his red handkerchief and corded knees, is a very durable sort of person.

Beadle's coat and buttons may have gone, but B. himself is with us. John Bull is nothing if not thorough; his bricks and mortar, his brasses, his building is as nearly indestructible as ates venerable antiquities.

The hurdles and fences and things of the most temporary nature are made to last, Roofs there are a-plenty which have served their owners for centuries, chimney-pots of undiscovered age. There is one standard, and by that mark all must buy and sell, dress, walk and work.

These Saxons are a well-made race, the smallish heads, straight, broad shoulders, symmetrical waists, and regular features of the young bloods, duly accentuated by well-fitting clothes, is not less noticeable in young fishermen, mechanics and soldiers. Dignity, which often seems to be thrown to the winds in America, is never lost sight of here. It is not the Cooks and drivers, railways and house entertainment, amusement providers I retailers, know well his value and k him sedulously. Yet the great com-ters of the nation overlook him almost puters of the nation overlook him almost in toto. This needs rectifying very much. Why do not tourists form a union? Shall they be always given over to be a prey to the spoiler? I will not go on to say what they might do. At present "theirs not to make reply, theirs not to reason why, be it pot or be it ple—theirs to receive it—" However, I must refrain. Old Hastings is somewhat small and old, and new Hastings is rather large and intolerably new. Old Hastings is narrow Intolerably new. Old Hastings is narrow and tortuous, the houses have strength and tortious, the houses have strength and humility; oaken beams and low ceilings, red-tiled roofs and twisted chimneys. But new Hastings is alarmingly straight and perpendicular. Tar is banished therefrom, and fish, and the mansions are painfully tall and rigid. But one soon tires of this formal and conspicuous splendor, this cold and unbending pride, and sighs for the abandon of the jolly little ragamufins of the fish market.

Modernity looks somewhat barren and unintelligent, when contrasted with the ruder works of early man. Hastings is so given over to the arts of the humbug, that we even wonder if the blue-jerseyed fishermen be not "In the game."

time in four years the streets of Saratoga Archer or Bresnahon to help Schalk were filled today with their old-time behind the bat, Chase on first, Lajoie growd, here for the opening day of the racing season. With hotels already over-flowing and special trains bringing ad-ditional throngs to the village every hour, the attendance promises this forenoon to eclipse all former records. Every box in the grandstand had been sold in advance. The track has been idle since vance. The track has been idle since 1909. The crowd was disappointed by the prospect that Whisk Broom II., the new world's record smasher, would take no part in the day's racing. The great racer is reported to have gone badly lame recently, and it is regarded as improbable that he will race again this year. Six horses were scheduled to start in the Saratoga handicap this afternoon. Unusual precautions have been taken

YACHTING

With the Larchmont and New York Yacht Club cruises and the Eastern Yacht Club's regarta off Marblehead, yachtsmen will have two full weeks of Herreshoff shops at Bristol this year. All son advised me to go for his jaw. (I but three of these were sailing yachts.

The new schooner of Robert E. Todd is being built now, and the work of setting up the frames is progressing fast. This yacht will be out of the way in time to allow room for the building of a cup defender.

The new schooner of Robert E. Todd is being built now, and the work of setting up to drive for his stomach when I saw a clear opening, or else at close quarters. But when I clinched and rested my chin on his chest, to keep defender.

I bought a horse with a supposedly in-curable ringbone for $30. Cured him with $1 worth of MINARD'S LINIMENT and sold him for $85. Profit on liniment, $54. MOISE DEROSCE. Hotelkeeper, St. Phillippe, Que.

Callahan Manages a Team of Malcontents

few more of baseball's 'malcontents the 1913 pennant fight interesting for the Athletics, who are giving a very good imitation just now of stealing

To begin the season Harry Lord at third, and Harry is a member of the White Sox team because he was disgruntled at Boston. Jimmy had such luck in handling Lord that he decided he might as well take a with other dissatisfied men So he went into the open market and bagged Hal Chase, firstbaseman extraordinary, whose firstbasing this season was very ordinary for New York mart, Galt Imperials.

H. Casey, Hespeler, vs. W. Murray, because he didn't fancy his berth under Chance. And Chase, coupled with Lord just about made the White Sox. What Chase did for his team sel

Callahan to thinking, and he decided he could bolster up his pitching staff if he could persuade Jake Stahl to part with "Buck" O'Brien, who hadn't been very strong with the Boston manager for a long time. "Buck" is said to have committed the indiscretion of smearing his fist over Joe Wood's classic countenance last fall, and that's lese majeste in Boston, So Stahl sent O'Brien to Chiago. And such was Callahan's elouence that the White Sox slipped he Red Sox nothing in players, parting with only a few thousand in cash. Now, if Callahan could go and bag few more stars who have differed with club managers or owners at some time recently he could grab off a real Saratoga, N. Y., Aug. 2.-For the first flag-chaser in a hurry. With Kling, on second, Schafer at short, Zimmerman or Lord on third, Bender, O'Brien and Marquard, along with Russell Scott, White and Benz, of his present team, in the box, Rube Oldring in left Ty Cobb in centre, and John Collins, of is 1913 outfit in right. Callahan would have a team capable of winning any old flag any old time.

Bombardier Wells There With Wallop

Some people think that Bombardier Wells cannot punch hard, but accordng to an interview given to a representative of "Boxing," an English sporting publication, by "Packey" Maoney, who fought with Wells recently the Bombadier has a punch like the kick of a horse

"The critics who say that Wells can't punch are quite right. He doesn't sport beginning on Aug. 3.

The sonder trial races are to begin off Marblehead on Saturday, Aug. 16. About ten yachts are expected to strive for the honor of meeting the German visitors. bunch-he kicks. Every blow he landthonor of meeting the German visitors.

The motor-boat racing on the lakes has taken all the sport from every other section, but efforts are to be made to revive interest here later in the season.

Twenty new yachts were built at the guard low, and so that was why Rob-Herrestoff chora of Paistel this recovery. it out of danger, while I was trying to dig a few in downstairs, Wells would quite rightly, try to uppercut me and push me off, and, of course, every time he did it he jarred my jaw-bone. The pieces seemed to grit together, and the pain was just awful. "Why didn't I give in? My country men don't give in! "I am afraid I can't talk much. It nurts. But I wish you would ask Wells o call and see me here. I'd like to see him, if it wouldn't be too much trouble. He is an awfully nice fellow, I think hadn't seen much of him before, and didn't know what a nice fellow h was. He's a great boxer, and a good fellow. A much better fellow every way than I had been told. Do tell him that I would be awfully pleased if he would look me up."

Millworkers in Ipswich, Mass., who are on strike, are now being evicted from their homes and forced to take up their residence on the public streets. The homes are the property of the millowners, and they believe they can make the strikers return to their places by taking the roofs from over their families. Here is shown a striker and his family, consisting of a wife and four children, eating their breakfast on the sidewalk. Behind them is piled their household goods. So far over 100 families have been evicted
