

The ADVERTISER'S PICTORIAL PAGE

Algeria is now becoming a famous resort, thanks to the recent archeological discoveries there. Camel owners, as a result, are reaping a harvest from tourists. The baby camel shown in this photo is one month old and walked thirty miles the day after it was born.

"She is the only one who could hold him," said Charlie Chaplin's first wife when asked what she thought of his engagement to Pola Negri. A glance at this photo of Pola would seem to substantiate this statement.

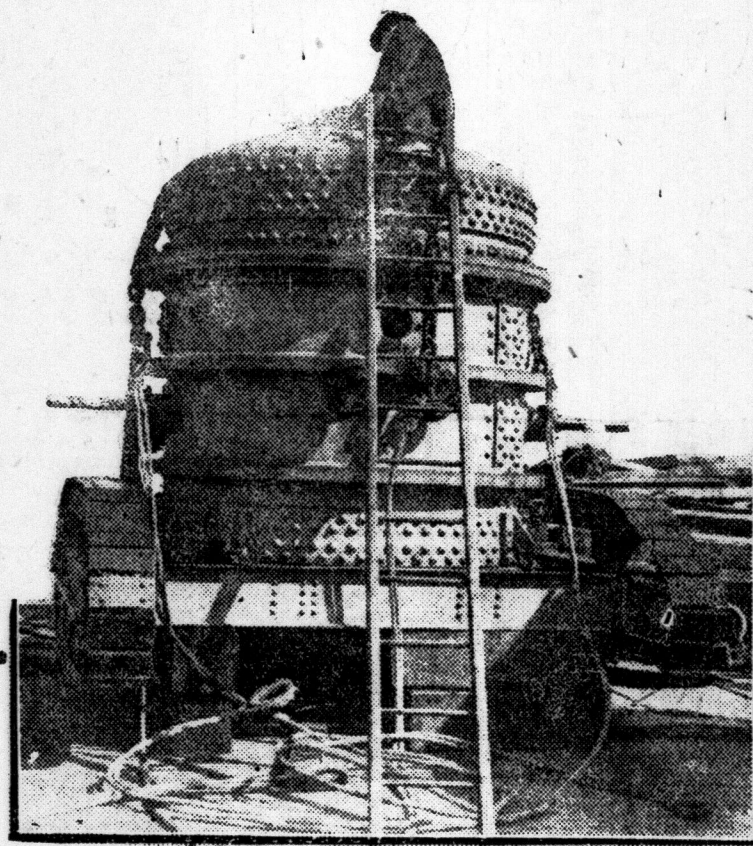

America's most formidable aggregation of golfers goes abroad in search of British laurels. Chick Evans, of Chicago, who was to go, was unable to accompany the team.

A summer afternoon gown in a unique design of white lace over black Molly O crepe. The lace is adorned with black monkey fur.

A sub-deb frock of charming simplicity in golden brown indestructible chiffon voile. The sleeves are demurely puffed.

Invented by Jesse Reno, who was also responsible for the escalator, this "crab" machine is to salvage sunken ships which could not hitherto be reached by divers. It crawls along the ocean bottom like a huge crab.

R. I. C. Norton, the winner, playing in tennis finals at Dulwich, England.

"Positively no," said Mildred Harris, film star, who is now playing in vaudeville, when asked if she was to marry Byron Musson of Chicago. She probably thinks one matrimonial venture is enough.

French dancing masters have introduced a new dance which they say is both very much up-to-date and very correct. They have named it "La Liserette."

William Martin, a graduate of Harvard, went to Europe with the college glee club. He has announced that he is to sing in French opera.

The infant son of Mrs. Rose Shervin, of Brooklyn, had been apparently dead for two hours, when he was revived by an injection of adrenalin.

President Kasuya, who was a short time ago elected president of the Japanese House of Peers.

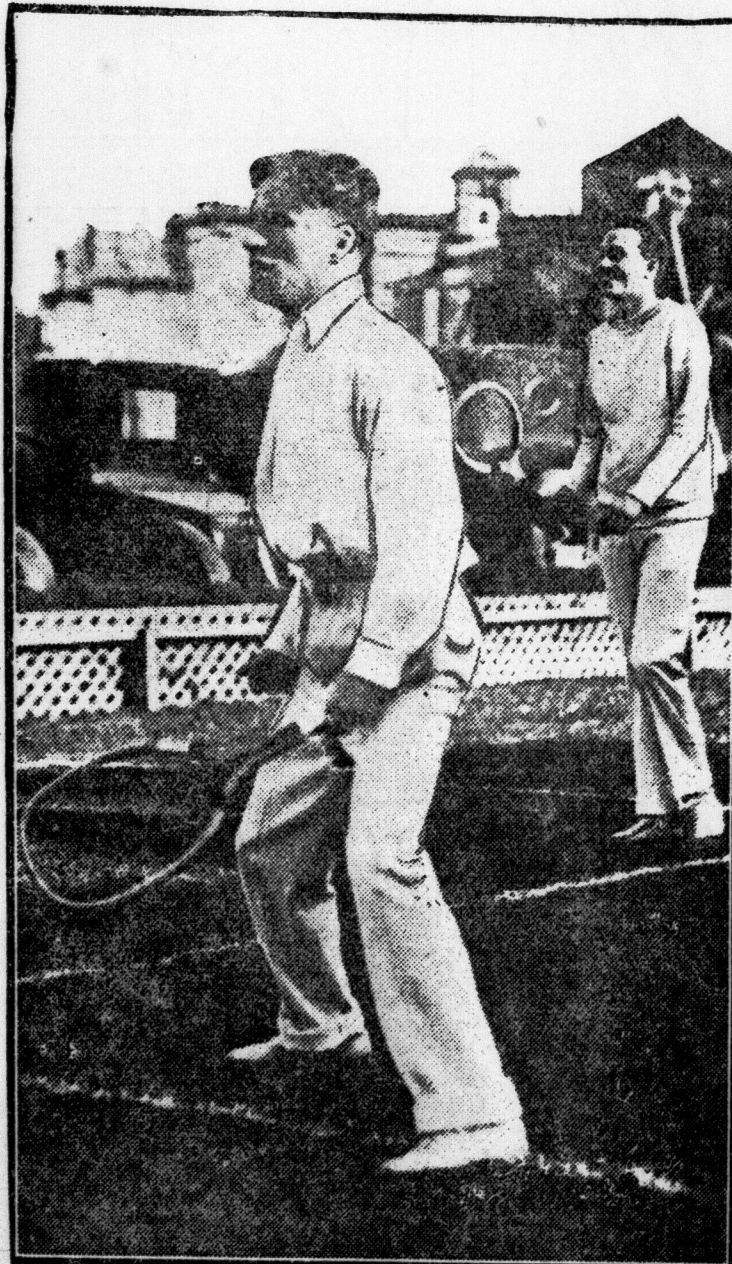

All previous triumphs of feminism were put in the shade when Miss Cassity Mason, shown above, was knighted by Montenegro.

Lost in the Florida everglades for nine days, a party of 26 motorists suffered untold hardships from hunger and exposure. They were finally discovered by this rescue plane. A photographer walked 30 miles through swamps up to his waist to get this picture.

Miss Madaline Gottschalk of Cleveland one of the great multitude engaged in breaking long-distance dance records.

Cornelius Vanderbilt, Jr., in the background, pairs off with Charlie Chaplin in the new game of Dodgeball, which is played with a feathered cork and is becoming quite the rage.