THE RIGHT HOUR MOVEMENT ed by the Trades and Labor Council—a Committee Seprimanded.

The Trades and Labor council met last here Dec. 17. evening, with President Thomas Tracey at and the members generally were favorable to bringing it about as soon as possible. The eigarmakers' union reported that they had adopted a new constitution, and one of the clauses was that eight hours a day go into operation May 1 next. One member said that while he favored the movement, he hoped there would be no reduction in he hoped there would be no reduction in before the council took decided action.

The municipal committee were reprimanded for not sending in a report. The elections were coming on, and the aldermen were trying to shirk the prison labor question until after these had taken place.

Does Mr. Ryan propose to elect a council exclusively of one shade of polities? Or does he propose that each party should nominate three or more candidates in each ward, and that each party should ror its representatives? It either or both of these two propositions should form a part of his scheme, then I must say, with regret, that it is a great must say, with regret, that it is a great mistake; a more damaging and detrimental soheme to proposets of the reform party in swore that he did not keep the liquor that swore that he greatly form a part of his scheme, then I must say, with regret, that it is a great mistake; a more damaging and detrimental scheme to prespects of the reform party in this city it would be hard to contrive. The effect will be that instead of increasing the number of reformers in the oity council it will greatly decrease it. Mr. Ryan recognizes the fact of the conservatives being well organized. But his plan, if carried out, has a tendency to still more obstinately unite them together and bitterly oppose the other party more than they have in the past. And thus it will be next to impossible for the reformers to have any show. Of course the conservatives will share all the responsibilities. But will share all
