ADDRESS.
The earthly career of Arthur Duke Wellington has closed; one of the greatest men of the nineteenth century, the fore-I have a great mind to pick up all the chil-dren, and form a colony on some bright island paid the debt of nature. The time has now where these people, who were made up in a arrived for giving to the world a History hurry, without hears, couldn't find us: or if of the Great Captain—of the Events of his without noy meat on them, watery soups, and curdled milk— (that is to say, after we have picked our nuts long enough to suit us as a dessert!) How do you suppose they do like to change places with "children" that way?

Now here's Aunt Farny's creed, and you may read it to your mother, if you like.

I believe in great round apples and big slices of good plain gingerbread for children. I believe in making their clothes loose enough to enable them to eat all, and jump round in when the get through enough to enable them to eat air, and jump round in when the get through the like in not giving away their little property such as dolls, kites, balls, hoops, and the like without their leave.

The like without their leave.

I believe in not teasing them for amusement, and then punishing them for being determined to produce a book which shall
