Care of Leather Bound Books.

An official of the Congressional Library was talking with a friend who recently had purchased a handsome set of leather bound volumes and said: "You had better examine those volumes carefully to see if the leather needs tending. If it is new stock they will be all right but also for several years, but if they have been on the shelves for some time the leather will have lost most of its natural oil and become brittle. This applies especially to books kept in private houses which are as a rule much hotter than the book stacks of a large library. There is nothing more attractive than a fresh, well preserved leather binding on a volume and scarcely anything less so than a dilapidated cracked one.

"You can add years to the life of a leather binding and a hundred percent to its appearance by rubbing in a little vasoline with a piece of raw cotton—not too much, just as much as the leather will thoroughly absorb. Where the binding bends is where it is most likely to crack. The leather will not be greasy, as the vasoline will be absorbed. One treatment every year or two is sufficient unless the books are unduly exposed to heat."

Be as careful as you can you will occasionally take cold, and when you do, get a medicine of known reliability, one that has an established reputation and that is certain to effect a quick cure. Such a medicine is Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. It has gained a world wide reputation by its remarkable cures of this most common ailment and can always be depended upon. It acts on nature's plan, relieves the lungs, aids expectoration, opens the secretions and aids nature in restoring the system to a healthy condition. During the past few years in which it has been in general use we have yet to learn of a single case of cold or attack of grip having resulted in pneumonia when this remedy was used which shows conclusively that it is a certain preventive for that dangerous disease. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy contains no opium or other narcotic and may be given as confidently to a baby as to an adult.

High Priced Cattle.

Mark Twain on Advertising.

"It pays to advertise," said Mark Twain at a recent banquet. "When I was editing the Virginia City Enterprise, writing copy one day and missing the next, I tried to force this truth home in many ways. One day I received a letter from a subscriber saying he had found a paper pressed between the pages of his paper, and he wanted to know was this good or bad luck? I replied to him in our Answers to Correspondents as follows: "Old Subscriber—The finding of a spider in your copy of the Enterprise was neither good luck nor bad. The spider was merely looking over our pages to find out what merchant was not advertising, so that it could spin its web across his door and seal a tired and undisturbed existence forever after."—Success.

A Battlefield Park.

Washington, Oct. 31.—Gen. Oliver, acting secretary of war, acting through the state department has extended a special invitation to visit Gettysburg to Sir Wilfrid Laurier, prime minister of the Dominion of Canada; Sir Frederick Borden, minister of militia, and to such other officers of the Dominion of Canada as may be interested in the project for the establishment of a battlefield park on the plains of Abraham, near Quebec.

This invitation was based on information received at the war department that the Dominion government contemplated the establishment of a battlefield park on the plains of Abraham, and with the idea that an inspection of the Gettysburg battlefield will be of interest and value in that connection.

What some farmers need most is not farm capital to carry on a larger business, but better ideas as to how to carry on their operations with the capital at hand. How to carry on operations without the waste in fertility, seed and labor. Some operations are carried on after the manner of pouring water in a leaky vessel. No more water is needed, but the leak should be stopped. Let us look after the leaks.

There is a great desire on the part of all young men to be fit. A young man cannot possibly be fit if he takes alcohol. That anyone young or healthy should want alcohol is simply preposterous. They might just as well want strychnine. Thus the argument for the young man is: You want to be a man and you want to be fit. You cannot get fit on alcohol.—Sir P. Treves

Joker's Column

The Typist Scored.

"But I thought you meant—" faltered the typist.

"Never mind what you thought I meant, madam," thundered the Junior partner. "It's my business to think, not yours. In future, you just take my letters exactly as I dictate them."

"Yes, sir," said the typist meekly; and they got to work. But when he came to sign the first of these letters, the Junior partner remembered his commands, and looked coolish.

"Dear sir," it read. "No better butter him up a bit make it my dear Mr. Skid— What the dickens is his name? Oh, Skinner. My dear Mr. Skinner. Where the dickens is his letter? I've got it. With regard to your enquiry of the— What was the date of his letter? Blessed if I can read it. Writes like a spider with his legs dipped in ink. Well, of a recent date, we have pleasure in quoting you the following price: I say, Smith, what do you think we ought to quote this chap Skinner. I should say which on 70 percent. What, only 50! Very well, then one pound ten shillings, six pence, two pounds and three pounds per ton; carriage paid. That's about it, I think. Awaiting your respected commands, I am, yours sincerely,— That's polished him off!"

"I wonder," remarked a youthful astronomer who was very slow in doing what was expected of him, "if you will let me associate you with a star— Venus, perhaps, the star of love?"

"Well, no," replied the young lady addressed, thoughtfully; "I would rather that you thought of me as Saturn."

"Indeed! Why?"

"Oh, well, you know, didn't you tell me that Saturn has a ring?"

An Ingenious Question.

Frederick Starr, the University of Chicago's professor of anthropology, described at a dinner a native boy whom he had met in his African travels.

"This boy," said Prof. Starr, "often saw me reading, and the process at once interested and perplexed him. Through an interpreter one day he questioned me about it.

"Reading again, sir?" he asked.

"Yes, my boy," said I.

"Well, sir," said he, "I have often seen you reading. You read books, magazines, large newspapers. Now, there is one thing I want to ask you: Which part is it you read—the black or the white?"

"Tompkins has got more nerve than any man I ever met."

"He came over to my place yesterday to borrow my gun, saying he wanted to kill a dog that kept him awake nights."

"Well, what of it?"

"It was my dog he killed."

"Durn you and your 'old grocery'! shouted a man who backed up against the fresh paint.

"Didn't you see that sign 'Fresh Paint'?" asked the grocer.

"Of course, I did but I've seen so many signs hung out here announcing something fresh that wasn't that I didn't believe it."
