“I'll forgive you if I can't catch you What is wrong with your arm, the you are nursing it so carefully to-day Charlie? said a neighbour to a school boy, whose appearance told the tale a quarrel, in which arguments had than words were used. Oh! John Gold and I quarrelled over a game marbles, yesterday, and he struck me blow on the arm. And what, said neighbour to him, did you do to him? forgave him. Forgave him did you, and you suffering from his cruelty to you I tried to catch him, to return the blow but being weak with the pain I could not overtake him, so I forgave him Just so, forgive him because you could catch him! Unfortunately not a mode of forgiving even among advanced Christians! I have been injured in your person, name, or estate, and you are complacently flattering yourself that you have forgiven the offender, but is it not because you couldn't catch him? Is it not in your heart to retaliate, if ever an opportunity occurs to enable you to do so? If you will answer your prayer and “forgive us our trespasses as you forgive those that trespass against you” what will be the prospect when God shall search out your sins and iniquities and remember no more.”
