

Poetry.

LET ME GO.

Let me go! my feet are weary,
In the desert where I roam.
Let me go! the way is dreary—
Let the wanderer go home!
I am weary of the darkness
Of those lonely, falling streams—
Let me go! where fountains are flashing
In the light of Heaven's beams!

Let me go! my soul is thirsting
For those waters, bright and clear
From the Fount of Glory bursting—
Ah! Why keep the pilgrim here?
I can catch the far-off murmur
Of Life's River, sweet and low,
Calling from Earth's bitter waters,
Unto them—O let me go!

Let me go! my heart is fainting
Neath its weight of sin and tears,
And my wakeful eyes are failing
With these ever-falling tears!
For the morning I am sighing,
While I Earth's long vigils keep,
Here the loved are ever dying,
And the loving live to weep!

Let me go! I fain would follow,
Where I know their steps have passed—
Far beyond Life's heaving billows,
Finding home and heaven at last!
While my exiled heart is pining
To behold "my Father's" face,
They, in His own brightness shining,
Beckon me to that blest place!

Let me go! I hear them calling,
"Hail thou weary one—come home!"
Words, which on mine ear are falling,
Where'er my footsteps roam.
Ah! how gladly would I listen,
Gladly lay mine armor down,
And with eager footsteps hasten
Where awaits the conqueror's crown!

Let me go! O, who would linger,
Fainting, fearing, and afraid,
When before us lies a region
Whose rapturous pleasures burst!
Let me go! my soul is springing
For its flight from Earth's dark vale,
And would fain its way be wending
Where no storms will ever assail!

Let me go! but, Heaven's Father!
Thou dost hear thee woe's cry!
When around me thunders gather,
Thou dost sit above the sky.
Trusting Thee, through Thine Anointed,
I can yet command a team—
Knowing, in thine hour appointed,
Thou wilt take the wanderer home.
