

Lift Corns Out With Fingers

A few drops of Freezone loosen corns or calluses so they lift off

Apply a few drops of Freezone upon a touchy corn or a callus. The soreness stops and shortly the entire corn or callus loosens and can be lifted off without a twinge of pain.

Freezone removes hard corns, soft corns, also corns between the toes and hardened calluses. Freezone does not irritate the surrounding skin. You feel no pain when applying it or afterward.
Women! Keep a tiny bottle of Freezone on your dresser and never let a corn ache twice.

way, and the press of people became entirely Canadian. The essential spirit of the Canadian, like that of the citizen, is that "he will be there." Or perhaps I should say he "will be right there." Anyhow, there he was as close to the Prince as he could get without actually climbing into the carriage that was slowing down before the dais among trees in the garden before the City Hall.

It was the usual function, but varied a little. Winnipeg has not always been happy in the matter of its water supply, and the day and the Prince came together to inaugurate a new era. It was accomplished in the modern manner.
The Prince pressed a button on the platform and water-gates on Shoal Lake outside the city swung open.
In a minute or two a dry fountain in the gardens before the Prince threw up a jet of water. The new water had come to Winnipeg.

Through big crowds on the sidewalks he passed through an avenue of fine, tall and modern stores, along Broadway, where the tram-tracks fringed with grass and trees run down the centre of a wide boulevard that is edged with lawns and trees, and so to the new Parliament Buildings.

Here there was a vivid and shining scene before the great, white curtain of a classic building not yet finished.

In the wide forecourt was a mass of children bearing flags, and up the great flight of steps leading up to the impressive Corinthian porch was a bank of people jewelled with flags and vivid in gay dresses. Against the sharp white mass of the building this living, thrilling bed of humanity made an unforgettable picture.

The Formal Reception

THE CEREMONY in the spacious entrance hall was also full of the movement and colour of life. In the massive square hall stairs spring upward to the gallery on which the Prince stood. On the level of each floor galleries were cut out of the solid stone of the walls. Crowded in these galleries were men and women, who looked down the shaft of this austere chamber upon a grouping of people about the foot of the cold, white ascending stairs. The strong, clear light added to the dramatic dignity of the scene.

The groups moved up the white stairs slowly between the ranks of Highlanders whose uniforms took on a vivid-ity in the clarified light. The Prince, in Guards' uniform, with his suite in blue and gold and kakhi and red behind him, took on the big white stage of the stair-head to receive them. It was a scene that had all the tone and all the circumstance of an Eastern levée.

But it was a levée with a fleck of humour, also.

As he turned to leave, the Prince noticed beside him a handsome armchair upholstered in royal blue. It was a strange, lonely chair in that desert of gallery and standing humanity. It was a chair that needed explaining.

In characteristic fashion the Prince bent down to it to find an explanation.
The crowd, knowing all about that chair and understanding his puzzlement began to laugh. It laughed outright and with sympathetic humour when, abruptly handing his Guards' cap to one of his Staff, he solemnly sat down in it for a second instead of going his way.

The chair was the chair his father and grandfather had sat in when they came to Winnipeg. Silver medallions on it gave testimony to facts. The Prince had not time to adopt a fully considered sitting, but he was not going to leave that building until he, too, had registered his claim to it.

In the big Campus that fronts the University of Manitoba and ranked by thousands in a hollow square, were the veterans in khaki and civvies who had fought as comrades of the Prince in the War. To these he went next.

As the Prince left the field the great crowd swept after him, until the whole mass was jammed tight against the iron railings at the entrance of the Campus. The Prince was in the heart of this throng surrounded by police who strove to force a way out for him.
The crowd fought as heartily to get at him. There was a wild moment when the throng charged forward and crashed the iron railings down with their weight and force.

There were cries of "Shoulder him!
Shoulder the boy!" and a rush was made towards him. The police had a hard struggle to keep the people back, and, as it was, it was only the swift withdrawal of the Prince from the scene that averted trouble, for in a crowd that had got slightly out of hand in its enthusiasm, the presence of so many children and women seemed to spell calamity.

This splendid ardour is more remark-is pure pasteurized separated milk in the most convenient and economical form in which you can buy it—a dry powder.

You can buy Klim from your nearest grocer. It is packed in handy blue and white striped tins in half pound, one pound and ten pound sizes.

Get a tin today. Read the directions.
Lift off the cover. Scoop out eight level tablespoonfuls of Klim and place it on top of a pint of water in a bowl. Whip briskly until all is dissolved. It takes just a few seconds. Taste it. You'll be delighted with the natural flavor.

Klim makes delicious biscuits, cakes, sauces, and milk soups. Use it wherever you have been using liquid milk in cooking and baking and get the advantage of its convenience and economy. The lack of fat in Klim powdered separated milk is not detrimental when it is used for cooking and baking, because it is more economical to use fat in the form of butter. It is the general custom for the housewife to use the balance of the milk for cooking after taking the top off the bottle for the table.

Klim remains fresh and sweet down to the bottom of the tin. Keep the cover on and keep the tin in the kitchen cabinet or wherever it is handy. No need to put it on ice. Hot weather does not affect its goodness. Go away over the week-end, or for a month; when you come home there's a supply of sweet separated milk all ready by adding the water.

For summer houses and for camping-out trips, take a generous supply of Klim along. It's light to carry. Clean to handle. Use as you need it. Always good.

KLIM Brand Powdered Whole Milk contains all
