All that is needed is a little labor and a little more transportation and the apples would be transferred to people who would enjoy them, and be healthier for eating them.

Stamp Duties Again.

The United States is to revive the stamp duties which prevailed during the civil war and later during the war time it is hoped that the custom receipts of the country will be again normal. Bank cheques are not included, but a stamp duty is levied upon nearly every other kind of commercial paper, including bonds, stocks, promissory notes, receipts, bills of lading and life and fire insurance policies. There is a tax upon deeds, mortgages, sleeping car tickets, telegraph and long distance telephone messages, and a license fee is exacted from proprietors of theatres, billiard and pool tables and bowling alleys.

The revenue bill as reported by Chairman Underwood from the ways and means committee will be up in the house today under a special rule, and may be sent to the senate after a few hours' debate. It will be opposed by the Republicans as unnecessary, but there seems but little doubt a few days' time, and thus enable the home fences between now and the

After Effects of the War

In its bulletin reviewing the month of August, the National City Bank of New York discusses the after effects of the war, and arrives at the conclusion that the great loss and waste resulting therefrom will be felt for world. And we should take India at years by many nations far removed from the zone of conflict. We speak this matter his attention: of Germany's vanished export trade as a spoil to be divided, but we lose sight of the fact that the total trade of the world is bound to diminish. Many countries which bought from Germany paid her in exports, which must now seek some other outlet, and her exclusion from the markets of the world renders inefficient her organization for salesmanship and distribution.

Fortunately for Canada, as it now appears, our export trade to Germany was never considerable, and the closing of her ports will cause no trade dislocation. Indeed, for the present, the great demand for food and other staples will guarantee our farmers good prices, even tho other food exporting countries on this continent will have to sell to Britain, our best customer, the grain, meat, wool, cotton and other products they formerly shipped to Germany. Yet the fact will remain that a big customer for food products is no longer in the market.

The borrowing countries of the world, which include all the countries on this continent, are feeling the first effect of the war in their inability to finance their productive enterprises in the London market, and not only is the British investor engrossed in the war and the financial needs of his own government, but the same is true of the French, German and Dutch investors who, in a smaller way, have dealt in the securities of borrowing nations. In the United States there is no class in the community with accumulated wealth for investment thruout the world and the banks, the insurance companies and the trust companies, loaded up with water-logged flotations, are unable to finance their own country, and have no ability or desire to seek a foreign field. With the conclusion of the war, assuming that Germany is compelled to

INDIA AND THE GOLD SUPPLY.

Editor World: I notice by the pe pers that the governor-general of India has, on behalf of the native people to stop making gold ornaments, or, failing that, to stop hoarding, but instead, to deposit the gold with the Bank of England, which institution could do, as it has done in Canada, open a branch in India for gold deposits by princes and natives alike. I hope that this subect will be ventilated, as it is a well known fact that India withdraws more gold from England than any other country in the its word. I think the Hon. G. H. Watson, K.C., appeared for the applicant, and Edward Bayly, K.C., and Eric Armour for the crown.

The action asked for a declaration that the marriage between Mrs. Robert Justiment.

Other branches of the local trade were quiet at unchanged prices. at unchanged prices.

time forth, or since that date, are subject to appeal to the courts for adjustment.

The jurisdiction of the judges in this question is very great and a host of details are left to their discretion. One of these concerns the foreclosure on property and its sale before any application for redress be made. In a case of this kind the costs would have mounted up to $75 at least, taking into consideration those involved in sale. What parties will pay these in the adjustment provides one of the more difficult matters to settle.

There are instances also where persons have foreclosed with the best of intentions, before any agitation began and they are also subject to the terms of the protective measure. The main service of the courts, however, will be in the prevention of unfair or harsh practices towards those who are actually incapable of paying.

Mr. Justice Middleton holds that if the Canadian courts had any of the jurisdiction of the ecclesiastical courts they would have all and could deal with pleas for divorce. A number of cases were cited, but nowhere save in the case of Lawless v.
