pecial Cable to The Toronto World. LONDON, May 30 .- Frederic Har-

"It is with a profound sense of hupasses from France, a country facing a desperate war with its whole soul, that there is no intention on the part from Pte. H. G. Cronshaw of the first contingent. He says in a censored letter: "Going along the road one day we found a Canadian-Scottish soldier bayoneted to a hotel door, and just then a Canadian contingent came marching along convoying back to the base a bunch of four hundred German prisoners. I also saw one English soldier crucified on a barn door. He had hung there all night, and in the morning they stuck the bayonet in several times.

a desperate war with its whole soul, with its entire manhood and womanhood, to our country, which to the eye at least, seems taking this tremendous peril with the easy optimism of 'pleasure,' no need to hurry yet.' So far as my observation and information goes, I join heartly in the appeal made hung there all night, and in the morning they stuck the bayonet in several times. blatant posters of capture of another trench, 'Turkish forts shelled again,' 'Zeppelins chased,' and all the cheery chattering of local successes, and then considerable c ever to the real battle zone in France.

> Wake Up, Slackers.
> "It is enough to make one hold one's breath, to feel the blood run cold, not that I ever heard from any one in France a touch of depression or doubt of the issue, much less complaints against any one in authority or any Wake Up, Slackers. of the issue, much less complaints against any one in authority, or any charge at all except against the slackers at home. I saw daily hundreds of our men of every arm, just from the front, as gay as birds. The picture of the poets, 'happy warriors' was still the impression left on my mind by the oolly weighed utterances, even by the silences, of those who know made me feel how ominous are the prospects of another winter with the Germans still holding Belgian, French and Russian

"With all their grateful comradeship the French say, when are your promised millions coming?"

"'Why are you still occupied with horse racing, sports, and ordinary life?' I went over to France thinking to be received as one from the country of their victorious allies. I con-fess I felt amongst the French as if our countrymen in khaki out there were 'doing their bit' with all their might but that our countrymen in civil dress at home were not brought to the 'doing their all' and it is all they must put into the boat or we go under as a great free people."

Discipline Entire Nation.

Continuing Mr. Harrison says: "As to conscription it was always till now to me helpless to expect either party in parliament to pass such laws which would have complications that soldiers seldom perceive, nor could both parties together force such legislation upon the masses of labor while they still held their convictions and their dogmas, but a war of life and death for England has wholly changed the problem. The organizing of the state problem. The organizing of the state and bringing under discipline the entire nation for a great need is a totally different thing from establishing permanent conscription. We who never saw that such permanent conscription or even the drilling of lads was a practicable policy in full peace now feel that universal discipline for all workers whether in labor or under arms is a vital necessity of the hour. arms is a vital necessity of the hour. The second point is even more essential than the first.

Workmen Censured.

"Having served the cause of labor now for fifty years, I see with shame and bitterness how ill some of the workmen are serving the country, in very truth how they are traitors to their order and their race. The great labor leaders with whom I worked long years ago would have sunk with shame and remorse to have seen what some so-called trade unionists are now. Let there not be a na tional call to arms as in France, but a national call to labor as well."
