Nine Lectures delivered as the opening course of the Blumenthal Foundation at Columbia University, on these topics: —

- I. The Nature and Meaning of our Political Life.
 - II. Problems of Population and Citizenship.
 - III. Immigration and Race Questions.
 - IV. Settlement and Use of National Domain.
 - V. The Citizen and His Part in Politics.
 - VI. Party Machinery and Democratic Expression.
 - VII. Control of Railways and Trusts.
 - VIII. Problems of Tariff and Money.
 - IX. Problems of Foreign Policy and Expansion.

"The last word of the title is the key-word of the entire series of lectures. Each one of the chief problems of a political nature that have presented themselves for solution during our national existence is considered in its bearing on the general course of our national evolution. In a word, the book as a whole is a study of national development, dealing not with the questions of constitutional law that vexed the minds of the fathers, but with the practical difficulties that democracy has continuously encountered in its attempt to realize the national ideals in the American environment. Immigration and race questions, problems relating to our public lands, party machinery, the regulation of the railroads and the great industrial trusts, the tariff, the currency, foreign policy, and territorial expansion are all discussed from the point of view of the journalist and man of affairs."
