

WILLIAMS' PIANOS. EIGHTEENTH YEAR

SENATE STANDS FIRM

Knowing That It Is Constitutional Rights

IN HOISTING THE GOVERNMENT BILL.

With the Scheme Tacked on the Supply Bill All May Go Down.

Then This Would Bring the Constitutional Crisis Which Senator Miller Sees Ahead—General Belief That the Action of the Government in the House of Commons in Bringing Down a Sum in the Supplementary Estimates to Carry out the Intercolonial Extension to Montreal is Aimed at the Senate—It is Claimed That the Governor-General Was Placed in a False Position—Rights of the Senate Also Discussed—The Upper House Awaiting Explanations.

Ottawa, June 24.—(Special to The World.)—A severe thunderstorm passed over the Capital at an early hour this morning and still lingered around the Senate chamber when the Upper House met at 11 o'clock. At any rate there was thunder in the air and it soon commenced to reverberate. Immediately after routine Sir Mackenzie Bowell called attention to the action of the Finance Minister in the House of Commons last evening, as reported in the newspapers. After the Senate had rejected the policy embodied in the bill containing the agreement between the Government and the Grand Trunk and Drummond Counties Railways, when the action of the Senate must have been known to the Ministers in the other House, the Minister of Finance deliberately laid on the table a message from His Excellency, submitting for the approval of Parliament an estimate for public money to be expended in precisely the manner in which it was proposed to spend public money in the bill which the Senate last night rejected. He could not conceive it possible that the Governor-General would have authorized the bringing down of the bill containing the agreement between the Government and the Grand Trunk and Drummond Counties Railways, when the action of the Senate must have been known to the Ministers in the other House, the Minister of Finance deliberately laid on the table a message from His Excellency, submitting for the approval of Parliament an estimate for public money to be expended in precisely the manner in which it was proposed to spend public money in the bill which the Senate last night rejected.

Senator Miller pointed out that the case quoted by Senator Mills did not apply in the present instance. In the case of the paper duties it was a matter of granting the people relief from taxation while in the present case the expenditure of large sums of public money upon public works was involved. He said that the Government was trying to force many days to see an amount of money to be expended in precisely the manner in which it was proposed to spend public money in the bill which the Senate last night rejected. He said that the Government was trying to force many days to see an amount of money to be expended in precisely the manner in which it was proposed to spend public money in the bill which the Senate last night rejected.

Senator Ferguson did not take such a serious view of the situation. He said that the Government was trying to force many days to see an amount of money to be expended in precisely the manner in which it was proposed to spend public money in the bill which the Senate last night rejected. He said that the Government was trying to force many days to see an amount of money to be expended in precisely the manner in which it was proposed to spend public money in the bill which the Senate last night rejected.

Senator Ferguson did not take such a serious view of the situation. He said that the Government was trying to force many days to see an amount of money to be expended in precisely the manner in which it was proposed to spend public money in the bill which the Senate last night rejected. He said that the Government was trying to force many days to see an amount of money to be expended in precisely the manner in which it was proposed to spend public money in the bill which the Senate last night rejected.

Senator Ferguson did not take such a serious view of the situation. He said that the Government was trying to force many days to see an amount of money to be expended in precisely the manner in which it was proposed to spend public money in the bill which the Senate last night rejected. He said that the Government was trying to force many days to see an amount of money to be expended in precisely the manner in which it was proposed to spend public money in the bill which the Senate last night rejected.

Senator Ferguson did not take such a serious view of the situation. He said that the Government was trying to force many days to see an amount of money to be expended in precisely the manner in which it was proposed to spend public money in the bill which the Senate last night rejected. He said that the Government was trying to force many days to see an amount of money to be expended in precisely the manner in which it was proposed to spend public money in the bill which the Senate last night rejected.

Senator Ferguson did not take such a serious view of the situation. He said that the Government was trying to force many days to see an amount of money to be expended in precisely the manner in which it was proposed to spend public money in the bill which the Senate last night rejected. He said that the Government was trying to force many days to see an amount of money to be expended in precisely the manner in which it was proposed to spend public money in the bill which the Senate last night rejected.

Senator Ferguson did not take such a serious view of the situation. He said that the Government was trying to force many days to see an amount of money to be expended in precisely the manner in which it was proposed to spend public money in the bill which the Senate last night rejected. He said that the Government was trying to force many days to see an amount of money to be expended in precisely the manner in which it was proposed to spend public money in the bill which the Senate last night rejected.

DINNER TO THE POOR

Was the Big Jubilee Feature In London Yesterday.

IT WAS THE PRINCESS OF WALES' DAY.

Bouquets Presented By Cripples While All Eyes Moistened.

A Message to the Banqueters from the Princess, Who Was Unable to Be Present—Seventeen Thousand Persons Dined at the Central Hall, Holborn—The Prince of Wales Was With Them and Cheers Shook the Building—The Princess and the Old Irish Woman, Who Said, "God Bless You, Dear"—Like Scenes at Clerkenwell—All the London Papers Pleased.

London, June 24.—The Princess of Wales' Jubilee dinner to the poor to-day was very successful. About 300,000 denizens of the slums were sumptuously entertained at the various centres. The Princess, accompanied by the Prince of Wales, Princess Victoria of Wales and Prince and Princess Charles of Denmark, visited the principal halls where the feasts were given. The Princess of Wales requested the Lord Mayor to deliver his message to all the diners, as follows: "Although I am unfortunately unable to be present at all the dinners for my poor, I shall be with them in spirit, hoping that they will enjoy themselves and give three cheers for their Queen." The children at the People's Palace were all cripples. Some were wheeled in bath chairs, others limped in on crutches into the banquet hall, and many had to be carried in.

An Affectionate Scene. As soon as the royal party reached the place where the little cripples were seated, the Princess of Wales, the Prince of Wales and the Lady Mayoresse, the scene was most affecting, and many all eyes were moist. The Princess of Wales, in behalf of the Princess, expressed the pleasure which it afforded her in being able to bring some degree of happiness to the children. The Queen, who was seated next the Princess, which were heartily given. The members of the royal party frequently spoke to the little cripples, and before leaving the Princess of Wales took up a glass of champagne, which she served to one of the little cripples, and emptied it to the health of the children.

At the Central Hall, Holborn, 17,000 people, young and old, partook of the banquet served. When the royal party entered the hall the food was apparently forgotten, all present stood up, and cheer after cheer hailed the arrival of the Princess of Wales turned to an old Irish woman, who said, "God bless you, dear, and the Queen, which were heartily given. The members of the royal party frequently spoke to the little cripples, and before leaving the Princess of Wales took up a glass of champagne, which she served to one of the little cripples, and emptied it to the health of the children.

At the Central Hall, Holborn, 17,000 people, young and old, partook of the banquet served. When the royal party entered the hall the food was apparently forgotten, all present stood up, and cheer after cheer hailed the arrival of the Princess of Wales turned to an old Irish woman, who said, "God bless you, dear, and the Queen, which were heartily given. The members of the royal party frequently spoke to the little cripples, and before leaving the Princess of Wales took up a glass of champagne, which she served to one of the little cripples, and emptied it to the health of the children.

At the Central Hall, Holborn, 17,000 people, young and old, partook of the banquet served. When the royal party entered the hall the food was apparently forgotten, all present stood up, and cheer after cheer hailed the arrival of the Princess of Wales turned to an old Irish woman, who said, "God bless you, dear, and the Queen, which were heartily given. The members of the royal party frequently spoke to the little cripples, and before leaving the Princess of Wales took up a glass of champagne, which she served to one of the little cripples, and emptied it to the health of the children.

At the Central Hall, Holborn, 17,000 people, young and old, partook of the banquet served. When the royal party entered the hall the food was apparently forgotten, all present stood up, and cheer after cheer hailed the arrival of the Princess of Wales turned to an old Irish woman, who said, "God bless you, dear, and the Queen, which were heartily given. The members of the royal party frequently spoke to the little cripples, and before leaving the Princess of Wales took up a glass of champagne, which she served to one of the little cripples, and emptied it to the health of the children.

At the Central Hall, Holborn, 17,000 people, young and old, partook of the banquet served. When the royal party entered the hall the food was apparently forgotten, all present stood up, and cheer after cheer hailed the arrival of the Princess of Wales turned to an old Irish woman, who said, "God bless you, dear, and the Queen, which were heartily given. The members of the royal party frequently spoke to the little cripples, and before leaving the Princess of Wales took up a glass of champagne, which she served to one of the little cripples, and emptied it to the health of the children.

At the Central Hall, Holborn, 17,000 people, young and old, partook of the banquet served. When the royal party entered the hall the food was apparently forgotten, all present stood up, and cheer after cheer hailed the arrival of the Princess of Wales turned to an old Irish woman, who said, "God bless you, dear, and the Queen, which were heartily given. The members of the royal party frequently spoke to the little cripples, and before leaving the Princess of Wales took up a glass of champagne, which she served to one of the little cripples, and emptied it to the health of the children.

At the Central Hall, Holborn, 17,000 people, young and old, partook of the banquet served. When the royal party entered the hall the food was apparently forgotten, all present stood up, and cheer after cheer hailed the arrival of the Princess of Wales turned to an old Irish woman, who said, "God bless you, dear, and the Queen, which were heartily given. The members of the royal party frequently spoke to the little cripples, and before leaving the Princess of Wales took up a glass of champagne, which she served to one of the little cripples, and emptied it to the health of the children.

At the Central Hall, Holborn, 17,000 people, young and old, partook of the banquet served. When the royal party entered the hall the food was apparently forgotten, all present stood up, and cheer after cheer hailed the arrival of the Princess of Wales turned to an old Irish woman, who said, "God bless you, dear, and the Queen, which were heartily given. The members of the royal party frequently spoke to the little cripples, and before leaving the Princess of Wales took up a glass of champagne, which she served to one of the little cripples, and emptied it to the health of the children.

GARDEN HOSE From 7 cents per foot up. THE BEST IS THE CHEAPEST. THE TORONTO RUBBER CO. LIMITED 25 King Street West, Manning Arcade.

DINNER TO THE POOR

Was the Big Jubilee Feature In London Yesterday.

IT WAS THE PRINCESS OF WALES' DAY.

Bouquets Presented By Cripples While All Eyes Moistened.

A Message to the Banqueters from the Princess, Who Was Unable to Be Present—Seventeen Thousand Persons Dined at the Central Hall, Holborn—The Prince of Wales Was With Them and Cheers Shook the Building—The Princess and the Old Irish Woman, Who Said, "God Bless You, Dear"—Like Scenes at Clerkenwell—All the London Papers Pleased.

London, June 24.—The Princess of Wales' Jubilee dinner to the poor to-day was very successful. About 300,000 denizens of the slums were sumptuously entertained at the various centres. The Princess, accompanied by the Prince of Wales, Princess Victoria of Wales and Prince and Princess Charles of Denmark, visited the principal halls where the feasts were given. The Princess of Wales requested the Lord Mayor to deliver his message to all the diners, as follows: "Although I am unfortunately unable to be present at all the dinners for my poor, I shall be with them in spirit, hoping that they will enjoy themselves and give three cheers for their Queen." The children at the People's Palace were all cripples. Some were wheeled in bath chairs, others limped in on crutches into the banquet hall, and many had to be carried in.

An Affectionate Scene. As soon as the royal party reached the place where the little cripples were seated, the Princess of Wales, the Prince of Wales and the Lady Mayoresse, the scene was most affecting, and many all eyes were moist. The Princess of Wales, in behalf of the Princess, expressed the pleasure which it afforded her in being able to bring some degree of happiness to the children. The Queen, who was seated next the Princess, which were heartily given. The members of the royal party frequently spoke to the little cripples, and before leaving the Princess of Wales took up a glass of champagne, which she served to one of the little cripples, and emptied it to the health of the children.

At the Central Hall, Holborn, 17,000 people, young and old, partook of the banquet served. When the royal party entered the hall the food was apparently forgotten, all present stood up, and cheer after cheer hailed the arrival of the Princess of Wales turned to an old Irish woman, who said, "God bless you, dear, and the Queen, which were heartily given. The members of the royal party frequently spoke to the little cripples, and before leaving the Princess of Wales took up a glass of champagne, which she served to one of the little cripples, and emptied it to the health of the children.

At the Central Hall, Holborn, 17,000 people, young and old, partook of the banquet served. When the royal party entered the hall the food was apparently forgotten, all present stood up, and cheer after cheer hailed the arrival of the Princess of Wales turned to an old Irish woman, who said, "God bless you, dear, and the Queen, which were heartily given. The members of the royal party frequently spoke to the little cripples, and before leaving the Princess of Wales took up a glass of champagne, which she served to one of the little cripples, and emptied it to the health of the children.

At the Central Hall, Holborn, 17,000 people, young and old, partook of the banquet served. When the royal party entered the hall the food was apparently forgotten, all present stood up, and cheer after cheer hailed the arrival of the Princess of Wales turned to an old Irish woman, who said, "God bless you, dear, and the Queen, which were heartily given. The members of the royal party frequently spoke to the little cripples, and before leaving the Princess of Wales took up a glass of champagne, which she served to one of the little cripples, and emptied it to the health of the children.

At the Central Hall, Holborn, 17,000 people, young and old, partook of the banquet served. When the royal party entered the hall the food was apparently forgotten, all present stood up, and cheer after cheer hailed the arrival of the Princess of Wales turned to an old Irish woman, who said, "God bless you, dear, and the Queen, which were heartily given. The members of the royal party frequently spoke to the little cripples, and before leaving the Princess of Wales took up a glass of champagne, which she served to one of the little cripples, and emptied it to the health of the children.

At the Central Hall, Holborn, 17,000 people, young and old, partook of the banquet served. When the royal party entered the hall the food was apparently forgotten, all present stood up, and cheer after cheer hailed the arrival of the Princess of Wales turned to an old Irish woman, who said, "God bless you, dear, and the Queen, which were heartily given. The members of the royal party frequently spoke to the little cripples, and before leaving the Princess of Wales took up a glass of champagne, which she served to one of the little cripples, and emptied it to the health of the children.

At the Central Hall, Holborn, 17,000 people, young and old, partook of the banquet served. When the royal party entered the hall the food was apparently forgotten, all present stood up, and cheer after cheer hailed the arrival of the Princess of Wales turned to an old Irish woman, who said, "God bless you, dear, and the Queen, which were heartily given. The members of the royal party frequently spoke to the little cripples, and before leaving the Princess of Wales took up a glass of champagne, which she served to one of the little cripples, and emptied it to the health of the children.

At the Central Hall, Holborn, 17,000 people, young and old, partook of the banquet served. When the royal party entered the hall the food was apparently forgotten, all present stood up, and cheer after cheer hailed the arrival of the Princess of Wales turned to an old Irish woman, who said, "God bless you, dear, and the Queen, which were heartily given. The members of the royal party frequently spoke to the little cripples, and before leaving the Princess of Wales took up a glass of champagne, which she served to one of the little cripples, and emptied it to the health of the children.

At the Central Hall, Holborn, 17,000 people, young and old, partook of the banquet served. When the royal party entered the hall the food was apparently forgotten, all present stood up, and cheer after cheer hailed the arrival of the Princess of Wales turned to an old Irish woman, who said, "God bless you, dear, and the Queen, which were heartily given. The members of the royal party frequently spoke to the little cripples, and before leaving the Princess of Wales took up a glass of champagne, which she served to one of the little cripples, and emptied it to the health of the children.