program for a year. This is the third of the Anglican Church Sunday schools to organize for carrying out the efficiency tests, St. Mark's Church and St. George's Church Sunday schools having organized previously. About eight Sunday schools of various denominations have adopted the plan, following a series of meetings held in St. James', St. Paul's and the Talbot Street Baptist Church.

PRACTICAL ECONOMY. Many preach economy, but do not practice it. If you really are in earnest about practicing economy just now you will buy a pair of good rubbers to wear over your old shoes. Some people strive to get the most out of every dollar that comes their way, and that is practical economy if applied to making what you have do its maximum of service. Old shoes under rubbers will give you a good deal of wear, to say nothing of the ease with which one goes about in them, as against breaking in new shoes. While every other kind of footwear has greatly advanced in price, ubbers have not, as you will see if you call in to have us fit you out. We carry a fine line of the very best rubbers that are made, and can fit any style of shoe, toe or heel, at prices running from 55 cents to $1.15. Casselman Bros., 171 Dundas street.
