Kane as to enlist her enthusiastic demand for motion picture production of Cecil Henry Bullivant's extraordinary love story.

The brilliant young Frohman star, who is now engaged in the production of a series of feature love dramas under American-Mutual auspices, is an inveterate devotee of detective fiction. She admires M. Le Coq and detectives of the French school, and her library contains everything that A. Conan Doyle ever wrote about Sherlock Holmes and the faithful Watson.

Miss Kane and Miss Doris Schroeder, writer of the scenario, worked out the particular manner by which Claude Yarden, villain of the plot of "Whose Wife?" should be brought to justice, and according to the intimates of both young women there were some serious differences of opinion before a compromise was arrived at.

Miss Schroeder thought it would add to the mystery of the plot to have Nitra Ruiz, the wealthy Spanish-American victim of Yarden's vengeance, come to death with an eastern dagger of curious design.

As the completed play shows Miss Kane's idea prevails, the idea vigorously. She pointed out that the use of a hatpin with a head of odd and unusual pattern would maintain the idea of the woman in the case and be far the more effective weapon for dramatic use.

DEMOCRATIC CABINET
PROPOSED IN SWEDEN

Washington, Oct. 19.—Swedish officials here characterize the proposed Swedish cabinet as the most democratic in the history of that country.

The Conservatives are not represented, and the ministry as a whole is strongly Socialistic. Hjalmar Branting, the minister of finance, is a Socialist leader, and some of the other members are high in the Social ranks. The premier, Professor Eden, is a noted educator, held office as chief of the University of Upsala. It is thought that the selection of M. Hellner as foreign minister will be particularly pleasing on account of his expressed democratic views.

SNOW AT WINGHAM.

NIGHT FOREMAN HAS GAINED 12 POUNDS
BY TAKING TANLAC

O. C. Best Says He Couldn't Get Any Relief.

HE HAD NO APPETITE
Declares Troubles Have Been Overcome, And He Now
Feels Fine.

"I have gained twelve pounds since I began taking Tanlac, and I actually feel like a different person," declared O. C. Best of 173 Glendale avenue, Hamilton, the other day. Mr. Best is night foreman at the Dominion Sheet Metal Works, having come here two years ago from the States in objection to the plant.

"I suffered from gastric indigestion for several months," continued Mr. Best, "and my system was badly run down. I had such a poor appetite that I didn't care whether I ate anything or not. Everything I forced down bloated me up so with gas that I was belching all the time, and felt miserable night and day. I would go for days without eating hardly a thing, and even a drink of water would make me feel uncomfortable. I had to work at night, and get my sleep in the day, but I became so nervous I would wake up at all hours and could get no restful sleep. I had hardly finished my first bottle of Tanlac before I felt it was beginning to straighten me out, and I started putting on flesh. I haven't had a bit of trouble with my digestion since I started on Tanlac. I enjoy everything I eat, and I am not bothered with gas or flat bloating. I used to have my nerves as steady and I sleep like a log now when I go to bed, and I feel better and stronger in every way than I have for a long time."

Tanlac is sold in London by Standard Drug, Limited, under the direction of a special representative, and by an established agency in every town.

It is a powerful story of intrigue and trickery on the part of powerful men, and of the loyalty and perseverance of a beautiful woman to outwit the conspirators and bring them to justice. It provides for Miss Kane many highly emotional scenes, in which she appears to outdo anything she ever attempted on the stage.

"Reaching for the Moon," Latest Fairbanks Picture.

Walter B. Greene, president of the Aircraft Pictures Corporation, last week announced that the title of the new Douglas Fairbanks picture will be "Reaching for the Moon," and that work on this photoplay is now well under way in California at the Lasker studio.

It is a fact that the production of the entire Fairbanks production organization crossed the continent recently in order to get New York scenes. After two days here, the entire organization again returned to California to produce the balance of the picture.

Eugene Ormande, well known for his recent work in Famous Players' pictures, arrived in Los Angeles shortly after the return of the Fairbanks troupe, to join this company. Mr. Ormande started work immediately in "Reaching for the Moon," playing an important part in this film.

Geraldine Farrar in "The Woman God Forgives"

When the massive sets were built for the production of "Intolerance," it was thought the last word in the construction of photodramatic sets had been reached, but Cecil B. De Mille, the famous producer, has been responsible for the initial Artcraft-Farrar cinema spectacle, "The Woman God Forgives," has gone even that famous set one better.

The scenes of "The Woman God Forgives" are laid during the Spanish conquest of the Aztecs, surrounded by an entire Aztec city. This one set covers an area of two square miles. The pyramid is nearly 200 feet in height and of the most substantial construction, owing to the fact that over a thousand men battle up the stairways and inclines to the temple at the top. The interior of the pyramid is also complete in the most minute detail, the huge sacrificial room being reproduced in the exact size of the room on which the high priest of Aztec sacrificed human victims to the Aztec gods.
