"Economy" Boilers combine comfort with low cost. They give out nothing but pure, clean heat, making every nook and corner of the home liveable and enjoyable. "Economy" Boilers put new life into old houses, and are the heart of the most modern heating system for new buildings. Easy and safe to operate, "Economy" Boilers embody special advantages which insure the greatest volume of heat from the smallest consumption of fuel. The firepot, being corrugated, has one-third more live heating surface than ordinary firepots. This also provides a continual draft, insuring lively combustion where coals lie dead around the ordinary smooth interior—another proof of the perfection of "Economy" construction. You should know more about "Reconomy" Boilers before investing in any heating system. Send to-day for free booklet—"Boiler" Information.

Charles Richman in "One of the Family."

At the Royal Alexandra last night a play was given which, without any pretension to skilful atagecraft, yetheld the close attention of the audience. The southern atmosphere which pervaded it is always attractive, but the author has intervoven with the main story other features which are of strong human interest and create and sustain close public attention.

In a democratic community nothing appeals more closely to the ordinary citizen than the struggle of a man handleapped by the uncertainty of his birth against opponents who use that to his disadvantage. So, when the regit ruth comes out and he can make the most of his information, his self-sacrifice for the sake of his father and the girl he loves become all the more heroic, and the lesson which it reads could not be more apity illustrated. The company is really excellent. Mrs. Spangler by Miss Genevieve Kane was never exaggerates. This creates the strong situations of the play, which are fully sustained by the general excellence of the company. ### Princess

"A Gentleman From Mississippi." Burr McIntosh had a rousing re-ception at the Princess last night. So vociferous indeed was the applause at the close of the third act that Mr. McIntosh, or rather Senator Langdon, was compelled to make a speech, which he did in character, and convulsed the house with the aid of his secretary, whose characterization by Will Deming rivaled that of the senator in the affections of the big audience.

"A Gentleman from Mississippi" is a picture of people and politics in Washington with a southern atmosphere washed in for background, and the southern latitudes of every good man's nature sweeping over the scene continually like jolly sunshine chasing sordid clouds across a landscape. There are no sex problems, but there is feminine weakness, and there are the Harrison Rhodes and Thomas A. Wise are the authors, and they have constructed a very clever plot out of what are always called "slender materiais" because the other authors and critics overlooked the possibilities. It is worth going to see the meeting between the senator and Colonel Beverley Stoneman of Illinois, who is not in the plot except to bring out the senator's character. ### UNIVERSITIES FOR CALGARY Wealthy Men to Syndicate for Educational Greatness.

CALGARY, Alta., April 18.—A movement has been started by a number of Calgary's millionaires and near millionaires to make this a university city. It is probable that if present plans are carried out, Western Canada College will be absorbed. An effort will be made to secure 160 acres for a site, with a view to allowing theological colleges, schools of practical science and like institutions to affiliate.

The project will be financed by a joint stock organization, and tuition fees will be adjusted so that students will pay entire cost of their individual education.
