COMMERCIAL

NEW YORK FINANCIAL BUREAU.

New York, Oct. 11—In view of the holiday tomorrow, there may be an evening-up of accounts in the stock market today, following the same kinds of transactions witnessed in Saturday's market and involving some irregularity, but because of the good bank statement when a bad one had been anticipated, the active list with further professional pounding may develop a temporarily over-sold condition and recover.

From certain reports received it might be inferred that manipulative interests were preparing a bear trap. The full forces still have absolute control, as we see it. They demonstrated this again on Saturday when the attacks of professionals proved utterly ineffectual to produce liquidation. Following tomorrow's holiday, we would expect a dragging session today to be succeeded by rallying. The market as a whole continues to move in a lower trading area and the general attitude of neutrality continues to suggest itself to us as best for daily traders.

Money—every item over Sunday centres on this. For the moment it is the dominating factor. To many in the street were lulled into fancied security in the belief that low rates were to continue indefinitely. They neglected to provide themselves against contingencies. This may be to some extent responsible for the sudden rise in rates. It is possible when the demands of these laggards shall have been supplied money rates will not be so firm, but there are foreign maturities recently mentioned by us that mature in sixty days, as noted by the Sun this morning, and with crop demands they may act as a support for rates. The heavy export of cotton is a factor operating for gold imports, but continued firmness in money here, which is accompanied by world-wide demands for funds would be succeeded by another rise in the Bank of England discount rate.

MORNING COTTON LETTER.

New York, Oct. 11—The developments of Saturday quite encouraged friends of the cotton market to expect better things this week. The bulls had the market quite well in hand on Friday and then the southern curtailment talk threw cold water on prices. But Saturday's news was uniformaly bullish as to demand for raw cotton in the south, demand for goods at American and European mills and as to weather conditions over the belt.

As a result prices quickly worked up toward the best figures of Friday morning, and when the bulls went home Saturday they were disposed to prepare for a further improvement in prices on the idea that the cotton remaining on plantations and in the towns is now controlled by a better class of farmers, merchants and bankers who will be disposed and are well able financialy to market their produce in a conservative "rising scale" manner, and that the little one-horse plantation planter has sold out all of his crop, thus relieving the market from urgent pressure.

After carefuly analyzing the reports of the ading mill centres of the world, it is not all difficult to conclude that the spinner is like to convey the impression that is hopelessly at a disadvantage by reason high priced raw cotton. Meanwhile, he is securing splendid prices on many lines of cloths for forward delivery and is picking up all the staple cotton he can get his hands on in the south. There is now no doubting that staple cotton this year will be the shortest in a long time, and will command the biggest premiums the trade has probably ever known. Over 50 per cent of this year's crop will fall below spinning quantity, bale compared with that in any one f the past five years.

Speculatively the market seems to be in a healthy technical condition, and it would not seem advisable for the moment to sell short extensively.

EXPERTS' VIEWS ON THE MARKET

New York, Oct. 9—The position of stock market bulls was somewhat weakened by the latest break. It is generally conceded that prices had been bulled to the limit, and the public seemed slow to share the load of the big speculators in spite of the bait offered in the form of increased dividends. As stocks are still largely held by strong men, the situation can hardly be called a dangerous one, although a very considerable liquidation in Steel issues has taken place. The fact that investment buyers cannot be found at the present level is a suggestive one and means that holders must eventually adjust themselves to investment conditions. These are being materially altered by the continued rise in money. Stocks that looked cheap on a 3 per cent money market loose their attractiveness when rates rise to 4 and 5 per cent. As firmer but not stringent money is to be expected during the balance of the year, speculation must adjust itself to the new conditions, which means that sooner or later the natural trend of values will be towards lower prices, especialy for fancy stocks and those which have over discounted the future. Of course sharp breaks will meet with stout resistance, for the bulk of floating stocks is still held by strong interests. This means a market of sharp fluctuations, and one that will demand careful watching by the trader. The investor can afford to wait, the present situation being in his favor. Important new flotations are imminent, having been deferred for monetary reasons, and it can be taken for granted that the big banking interests will not permit any permanent break in the market. The speculative situation may have its disappointments to large holders, and some securities may still be too high, but underlying conditions remain sound and hopeful, and good rallies are sure to follow sharp declines.

HENRY CLEWS.

New York, Aug. 9—The time of the year has arrived when the money situation will enter into stock market considerations with more force than heretofore, and the market will probably continue irregular and to a certain extent uncertain. Other conditions are so favorable and there are still so many satisfactory incidents in view, such as the increase in the Atchison dividend, rearrangement of smaller railroads, etc., that the present condition can hardly be looked at otherwise than as a temporary halt in the bull market. The unfavorable position relatively, which has been assumed by Steel Common, is being gradually rectified. Such unnatural incidents and the consequences of rectifying them usually extend, with more or less force throughout the list. At such times, greater care in selections on the part of the investor becomes necessary, as well as greater caution among the speculating contingent.

THE MARATHONS DEFEATED

A small crowd witnessed the Marathons meet defeat at the hands of the All-St. Johns on the Shamrock grounds on Saturday afternoon, by a score of 4 to 0. Callahan pitched excellent ball for the Greeks, but weakened in the eighth and was replaced by Nesbit. Bovaird for the St. Johns had the Marathons entirely at his mercy throughout the game.

The teams lined up as follows:

All-St. Johns—Mills, catcher; Bovaird, pitcher; Britt, 1st base; Cregan, 2nd base; Howe, 3rd base; Cooper, shortstop; Harris left field; J. Dever, centre field; C. McCormack, right eld.

Frequent questions were put to the speaker by the members present concerning suggestions and work in this city and were answered by him. The session closed with benediction by Rev. W. W. Lodge.

MAY BE COFFEE

That Causes All the Trouble.

When the house is afire, it's like a body when disease begins to show, it's no time to talk but time to act—delay is dangerous—remove the cause of the trouble at once.

"For a number of years," says a Kansas lady, "I felt sure that coffee was hurting me, and yet I was so fond of it, I could not give it up. I faltered with my appetite and of course yielded to the temptation to drink more. At last I got so bad that I made up my mind I must either quit the use of coffee or die.

"Every thing I ate distressed me, and I suffered severely almost all the time with palpitation of the heart. I frequently woke up in the night with the feeling that I was almost suffocating. My heart seemed so smothered and weak in its action that I feared it would stop beating. My breath grew short at the least exertion set me to panting. I slept but little and suffered from rheumatism.

"Two years ago I stopped using the coffee and began to use Postum, and from the very first I began to improve. It worked a miracle! Now I can eat anything and digest it without trouble. I sleep like a baby, and my heart beats full strong and easily. My breathing has become steady and normal, and my rheumatism has left me. I feel like another person, and it is all due to quitting coffee and using Postum, for I haven't used any medicine and none would have done any good as long as I kept drugging with coffee." "There's a Reason." Read the little book, "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs.

Ever read the above letter? A new one appears from time to time. They are genuine, true, and full of human interest.

RINK NOW A PLACE OF BEAUTY

The Orange Fair Arrangements Described—Good Work on the Booths

After many weeks of hard toil, in which they have not spared time, labor or expense, the Orangemen of the city have everything in readiness for the official opening of their mammoth fair this evening at 8 o'clock in the Queen's Rink. A few days ago the huge rink presented its everyday appearance, but it has been transformed into a miniature fairyland, replete with gay colors, brilliant illuminations, and prettily decorated booths. While the flags and bunting are of varied hues, those of orange and red predominate. Each of the city lodges has contributed its quota towards making the fair a success and they are all ably represented by booths of various descriptions.

To the right of the entrance is a compartment for games of different kinds—a booth which will no doubt be well patronized. A similar booth is seen on the opposite side of the entrance, each gaily decorated with flags and bunting. Here shooting galleries have been installed along with a feature which will mark a new era in fairdom, which shows distinct originality, namely the sub-target gun.

Next in order is the booth of Havelock lodge No. 27, which is deserving of much attention on account of its dainty decorations. It is a raised stand and is prettily draped with Canadain flags over a white background partly covered with autumn leaves. Articles of Japanese ware will be offered for sale.

In the intervening space between this booth and that of Gideon L. O. L. No. 7, another stand for amusements is seen and corresponds to one on the opposite side of the building. Gideon lodge has a very neatly arranged booth, which has been nicely decorated. Over the entrance is the name of the lodge on a white shield with large flags on either side, the whole surrounded by a number of Chinese lanterns, and bunting. The interior is artistically hung with autumn leaves and draped with bunting.

At the rear of the rink is the largest and prettiest of all the booths, that of Verner lodge No. 1, in which confectionery and fruit will be offered for sale. This booth demands a careful inspection and those having the decorating of it in their charge, are deserving of much commendation for their originality and taste. There are two wide archeis to enter by and over each, as a keystone, is a picture of King William. The exterior is prettily arranged with the ensign of the lodge, planted in a bed of spruce and cedar, and surrounded by flags with a picture of the king and queen on either side, and the top capped with a regular roof of cat-tails, the whole illuminated with Chinese lanterns. The interior is hung with flags and bunting and the walls lined with paper used at the time of the visit of the duke and duchess to this city in 1902. A miniature "shoot-the-chute" is installed in one corner.

On the left of this both is the refreshment stand of York lodge, No. 3 which is arranged with decorations similar to the other booths, and looks very pretty. Johnson No. 24 is next in line with a booth for drinks and other refreshments, a fish pond, and an orchestra.

The lodges have erected a band stand in the centre of the building, draped in red and orange. The Carleton Cornet Band will give a choice programme of vocal and instrumental music tonight when the fair opens.

The fair should be a decided success in every way and should be well attended each night.

SCHOOLMATES' JEERS MAKE GIRL STEAL

Agnes Johnson, Fourteen Years Old, Takes Dress So That Other Girls Will Not Laugh at Her Clothes

Agnes Johnson, of No. 198 Walworth street, Brooklyn, fourteen years of age and pretty, is accused of being a thief, stealing a bonnet from a Fulton street department store. But even the detectives bringing the charge are sorry for the mite of a child, and the judge before whom she was arraigned was so deeply impressed that he postponed the case until Wednesday.

"I don't know what made me take that dress," Agnes said when brought into court, "unless it was that I liked the looks of it and just picked it up."

"I know a lot of girls at school who are always wearing new dresses, and I have to wear the same old suit until it is worn out. They laugh at me and tell me that I will grow up to be a servant, while they will be real ladies, and that I will be their maid.

"Mother is poor and sixty-eight years old, and there are six to provide for in our family, all on what she can make and what my elder sister, a widow, can get at her employment. I have felt that it might be easy for me to get work at something, and mother has said she will let me. I hope I can be given a chance, for this will be a lesson to me."

At the girl's home it was feared that the $300 bail demanded cannot be secured, and that she will have to remain at the Children's Society rooms. The mother said the girl has been the best of daughters, and that she will have letters from her teachers to show that she never has been in any trouble before.
