With a sudden fall of the temperature persons run a great risk of catching cold. There is one simple way of avoiding cold-keep your mouth shut while out of doors. The man or woman who comes out of an overheated room, especially late at night, and breathes through the mouth, will either catch a bad cold or irritate the lungs sufficiently to cause a bronchitis and pneumonia. Colds are often the result of people talking freely while out of doors just after leaving a room full of hot air, and breathing people who discuss and laugh over the play on their way home are inviting disease.

AN ENOCH ARDEN CASE

Young Wife, Thinking Husband Dead, Marries Again - First One Comes Home

Pitchburg, Feb. 22-Mrs. Hilda Connor, who was arrested upon the charge of bigamy, told a rather remarkable story to Judge Gallagher as to how she happened to marry Henry Connor, her present husband, while her first husband, Frank J. Smith, was living.

She said that she was married on July 13, 1911 in Burlington, Vt., to Smith and that after living with him two weeks she deserted her. After a time she learned that her husband had enlisted in the army and when she found that he did not provide for her support she began divorce proceedings against him upon the grounds of non support.

While the case was pending in the superior court, she said that she received an anonymous letter from Florida, signed by a man, who said that he was a friend of her husband's and who said that Frank J. Smith while attempting to escape from the army barracks at Florida was drowned while crossing a stream. Upon the receipt of this letter she said that she saw her attorney, who had the divorce case in hand and told him that her first husband was dead and that there would be no necessity of proceedings further in the court to get a divorce.

Being without a home and having no means of support, she said that she met her present husband, Henry Connor, and later married him. The second marriage was performed by City Clerk Davidson on August 30, 1912. She said that she has since lived with him and that her life has been a happy one. Last Friday night, while walking on Main street with her husband, she said she was surprised to meet her first husband, whom she thought dead. Mrs. Connor said that she acquainted him with the fact that she was married again, because she thought he had died.

The first husband she said called at her home a few days ago and asked for their child, but she refused to give it to him. Later she said that he called to tell her that he did not want her any more because he could not support it. Mrs. Connor wept copiously as she told her story, but she said that she was not sure that she would have never married the second time if she had known her first husband was alive.

Mrs. T. L. Walsh, who was her counsel in the divorce proceedings, left the court this evening. She was still pending in the courts and he corroborated the story in part as told by her about receiving the anonymous letter. He suggested that the case be continued so that steps could be taken to have the second marriage annulled and then allow her to proceed in her divorce petition for separation from her first husband, which would allow her to marry another man if she so desired.

The court accepted the suggestion and continued the case for one week after a finding of guilty in the case. She was held in the sum of $500 for her appearance at the time she was reinstated that the complaint will be filed, provided that the marriage is annulled.

The court instructed the jury to start from her present husband and not to be in his company until the courts had annulled the first marriage and the court gave her a writ of habeas corpus from her first husband. The complaint against Mrs. Connor was made by the first husband, Mr. Smith, and it was neither one of her two husbands cared to prosecute her.

Interest to Archaeologists London, Feb. 22-John Granite, a traveler just returned from Egypt, Arabia and Palestine, says he entered a shrine which is reported to be the tomb of Amnon on the top of Mount Hor, and photographed the interior, although he was covered by a rifle in the hands of Mohammedans and has never been examined by a competent archaeologist. Granite says he saw the shrine's inscriptions. If this is so, it is presumed that they are ancient and very important, as no Jews have been allowed to approach the shrine for ages.

The Cake Cost $2,500 New York, Feb. 22-The 250-pound wedding cake designed and created for the wedding breakfast of Vivian Gould, who married Lord Devis on Feb. 7, 1911, and paid for this week by George Gould, who sent a check for $2,500 to Miss Carrie Rosenheim, administratrix of the estate of Mrs. Helen Brown, the designer of the cake, who asked $3,000 for her services. There was a dispute over the size of the bill, and before it could be settled Mrs. Brown died.
