Would Shut Up all Plotters Against Country

Says Agitators are Out For Loot —Former Professor on Other Hand, Would Free all in Prison For Misguided Speech During War

(Special to Times.)

Boston, Oct. 27.—Shut up plotters against the country was the demand of Rev. Dr. Conrad in Park street church last night. The viewpoint of organized labor toward work today was absolutely wrong, he said. Organized labor sent a small proportion of the labor of the country, believing in the greatest possible pay for the least possible work. The believed work was slavery. On the contrary, it was freedom. Steffens and Berger and such men were trying to get the country over to loot. What was their reason? It was love of leisure and love of loot. They thought working two or three hours a day three or four days a week was going to bring a paradise, whereas it was a hell. "A group of industrial plotters," he said, "is bent on the destruction of our country. The only safe way is to shut them up. If they had their way the lure of leisure and the love of loot would cut the nerve of all industry. Every industry would rot and all the factories would close. There would be a day of two of gluttony and years of hunger and anguish."

"Every is at the bottom of the present Bolshevist agitators, loafers, I. W. W. leaders are engaged in a conspiracy for wholesale loot. It is a first idea which is borrowing under the American ideals and traditions." "I would open prison doors," Prof. Earl Barnes, formerly of Leland Stanford University, speaking at the Ford Hall forum last night, advocated the passage of a law by congress pardoning all the men and women who are serving prison sentences for misguided speeches they made during the war.

NICE START GIVEN VICTORY LOAN HERE

Two Subscriptions Totalling $125,000 Filed This Morning—Big Things This Afternoon

Promptly at 9 o'clock the office was made an application for $60,000 worth of bonds, $20,000 of which is the total of $80,000 subscribed by this concern. A few minutes later W. H. Thackeray, manager for the Dunlop Rubber Co., filed out an application for $75,000 as the total allotment of that firm in its subscription of one million dollars which is being offered to the applications of its employees. There were several large private applications made during the morning and every effort got away to a good beginning.

The grand opening of the new Victory Loan campaign has been set for today at 5 p. m. in King square, where a big rally will be held, with bands parading from different quarters of the city, converging towards the square and then continuing in concert. Bond salesmen will be busy canvassing and every effort made to give a good start to the drive. In many of the churches of the city yesterday mention was made of the loan and its value. In the Cathedral Bishop LeBlanc told the congregation that in addition to its being of help to the country it was a good investment.

As Hiram Sees It

"Hiram," said the Times reporter to Mr. Hiram Horvath, "you present a funeral aspect this morning. Get your hat on."

"Between you and me," said Hiram, "I wouldn't mind being at a funeral if I was allowed to name the party. I've always been a hanger-in, but that was for human errors. There's a lot of human ones around nowadays that ought to be hung without waiting for judge or jury. Two of 'em come along in an ottomane last night and ran into me 'n' upset the kerchief, throwin' Hiram an' me right out into the ditch. It was as dark as a nigger's pocket and they was goin' like a streak round a turn. They didn't stop to see whether we was livin' or dead. I'm goin' to carry a shotgun after this—'til I scatter like a spunkier. You kin bet for me that it's loaded 'n' that I got a hull string o' medals for shootin' at the range. I kin bring down a woodcock on the wing as easy as some shot kin hit a barn door. I never went after a roadhog yet, but service ain't goin' to no close season for that kind o' game in the Settlement from now on—'til Hiram," said the reporter, "if you circulated a petition in St. John I think you'd find a very wide sentiment in favor of your organization at a mention it."
