Feeding Stock.—Stock should be well fed in the early winter. Do not spare feed, but do not waste any. It is easier to keep flesh on an animal now than to put it on in March. Building .- Perfect cleanliness in all stables, pens and sheds, should be the rule. Filth is the most frequent cause of disease. Too much warmth is not healthful. Pure air, dry beds, and clean skins, will keep well fed animals in slick condition. Horses.

—Working horses should be either sharp-shod or protected in some manthe arrival and departure of all passenger ner against slipping upon icy roads. Sharp calks are dangerous, and many horses are badly blemished by them. The rubber over-shoe is an excellent device. It is an effective preventative against falling or slip- To Robert Ferguson, of RICHIBUCTO, in ping.
