A despatch the other day announced that we were in danger of losing our primacy in the British cheese market to the New Zeslander. That primacy was probably due to a large extent to the immense advertisement we gave ourselves by making the biggest cheese in the world. That cheese was manufactured in the fall of 1892 in the Canadian Pacific Railway station shed at Perth. Ont., and was sent to the World's Fair in Chicago the next year. It weighed 22,000 pounds, and required for its making the equivalent of the September milking of 10,000 cows. After the fair was over the cheese was shipped to England where it was widely exhibited and called attention in a startling manner to the cheese makers of Canada. Their cheese had already made a prominent place for itself in the English market; but that place was enormously enlarged as a result of the unique advertisement, which was fully supported by the quality of the Canadian article. The man who had charge of the making of that cheese was Mr. John Archi-2nd Floor. quality of the Canadian article. Mr. Ruddick, by the way, is only one of a number of Canadians who have been gaged as experts to build up the dairying interests of other countries. New Zealand has taken for a time no less than three other Canadians for this purpose, while even Great Britain and the United States have drawn upon our cheese and buffer. Britain and the United States have drawn upon our cheese and butter-makers to assist them in improving their methods.

Mr. Ruddick's life has in a remarkable manner paralleled the period of growth of dairying in Canada. This is particularly true of cheese-making, with which he has been most closely associated. When he was born, about fity million pounds of butter was bor. with which he has been most closely associated. When he was born, about fity million pounds of butter was being made in Canada, but the cheese product amounted to only about four million pounds. This, of course, was chiefly for home consumption, the export of dairy produce on a considerable scale not arising till five or six years later. The total amount of butter made in Canada at the time of the last consus has not been figured.

PRESERVATION OF FISH.

New Method Does Away With Use of Salt, Ice and Pickle.

A new method of curing the recently introduced in Hallian, N.S., and, being experimented with by one of the largest shippers of fish in that city, promises to revolutionize the entire fish industry in the Maritime Provinces and in other countries carrying on this industry to any marked egree. This method does away entirely with the use of ice, salt, pickle or other preservatives and so perfectly preserves the fish that two weeks after preservation (which it sufficient time for this important food article to reach cities in central United States, West Indies and some portein South America) the ish is exactly as it was when drawn from its native water. resh fish. The process used is as follows:

The fish are dumped into a tank holding sea water which has been filtered through four cylinder-like tanks containing willow charcoal and screens to remove the noxious gases and foreign substances,

Next brown sugar is placed in the tank holding the fish to serve as a germicide for such organisms as may be active at freezing temperature. Then ly refrigeration the temperature is lowered to 10 degrees C. below zero, during which time 16.1 per cent. salt is added to prevent ice formation and to assist the formation of a thin protective coating over the fish themselves. Having allowed the fish to remain in this treatment for two hours, they are ready for shipment, removed from the tank and placed in the package or barrel to await transportation to market.

This process is based upon the theory that putrefaction of fish is first caused by bone taint, due to the fact that in the old methods of curing sish the specific or animal heat is partially left within the fish. The new method which has been introduced acts as a preventive to bone taint, completely removing the specific or animal heat from the fish to be cured.

"Parting is such aweet sorrow

But if the beir to the Montagues shou'd wish to try that stunt at the observation end of a vestibuled train in one of the great railway terminals he would discover that the hardnearted gentlemen who conducted our transportation systems have conspired to put a time and distance limit on the farewells of travelers.

The edict has gone forth in nearly all big Canadian cities that friends seeing a traveler off must be kept out of the train shed. To be sure, that has long been the rule. But it was a rule in some cities more frequently broken than observed. And the result of its breach was that, because of the clinging good-byes a' the car steps or in the coach aisles, trainwers delayed; the entrance of unattended passengers was impeded; and accidents happened which added to the railways' burden of damages.

Here, then, as in many relations of life, private griefs give way to public necessities. So in farewelling a parting guest in the big cities, prepare to do the hugging, kiasing and tearful swapping of farewells on private or neutral grounsd.—Winnipes Tribune.

ROMANCE OF PICTURE. Alex. Crawford of Toronto Finds

Proclaus Heirloom.

A short notice in a Toronto maga sine a few weeks ago in regard to the "Linc of Mar" led to a search in an old sea chest belonging to a gentle man in the north end of that city and the finding of a letter of January 1, 1870, from the successful possessor of the ancient title of the premier Earl of Scotland, thanking the father of the Toronto elitizen for a complete list of the Mar pictures and family relies, and the impression of old Mar Scale. Further search resulted to relies, and the impression of old Mar seals. Further search resulted in finding the list referred to, giving the names of the different members of the Mar family, whose features and figures had been emblazoned on canvas, in oil, by some of the celebrated artists of the time, such as Rigaud, Lely, Kneller, Raeburn, Jameson and Allan.

On looking at the wall of his little room in the cliy the gentleman referred to found hanging there a painting representing three children, which he had leard his father say over sixty years ag. was by Sir Peter Lely, court painter in the reign of Charles I. and Charles II., being the picture of three children of the Mar family. If such was the case, how could such a claim be proved? The present Earl of Mar and Garloch had a bitter fight before the House of Lords, but succeeded (he being the nephew of the Earl of Mar who had fought at the tattle of Waterloo), the unsuccessful chalman's being given a new creation by Queen Victoria.

The owner thought it would be as hard a fight to prove the Lainter of the picture; but by a close examination of the oil painting his fears were dispelled, and, in place of a portrait group by Sir Peter Lely, he found himself to be the fortunate possessor of a beautiful work by Sir Godfrey Kneller, who succeeded to the title of Kneller, who succeeded to the title of co t painter on the death of Sir Pot-er Lely in 1680. Adulterat 1 Lime Juice.

Adulterat 1 Lime Julce.

Chief Analyst A. McGill, of Ottawa, has been collecting samples of lime fruit julce on a large scale in Toronto for the purpose of analysis, and prosecution will follow where the gross adulteration justifies it.

Lime fruit julce is the fresh fruit julce obtained from the lime fruit, and has specific gravity of 1.030 and not greater than 1.040, and containing not less than ten per cent. of oslids and not less than seven per cent. of free citri. acid.

Only five samples out of the thirty collected recervity fully meet the requirements of the law. Over 30 per cent. of the amples give unmistakable exidence of being adulterated with water. It is the purpose of the department to prosecute larrely on the collection of samples now being taken, as warning has been given in the last bulletin sent out. Many samples taken in Toronto, some of them labelled "pure," have been found adulterated. Oftenders, who eguilty in this respect, may be more harshly dealt with on conviction for manufacturing adulterated lime fruit falce.
