DINKS, A NATURAL BIRD DOG

The Proud Owner of Setters who was Surprised by the Feats of a Mongrel.

(From the New York Sun.)

"Every time I hear a man brag about the prowess of a hunting dog, I remarked a man who has shot all over North America. 'I think of Dinks, a dog that was a sensation in Louisiana and Mississippi some years ago.'

"I was living in New Orleans at that time, and was in the habit of shooting quail and snipe whenever and wherever I could get the birds in and myself there was the very strongest sort of rivalry. He had pointers and I did my shooting over setters exclusively, trimming them up to suit the character of the country.

"In the open work where there were no thorn hedges the pointer held his own pretty well, but when it came to close work among the Sherokee rose brakes my setters had a marked advantage. They were protected by their thick hair and would go where the game pointer would flinch. Consequently I cleaned up with great regularity whenever we hunted together.

"While he took his regular pretty well I could tell from his face, which would go red whenever my old setter took up the work where the thorns were thickest, that he didn't relish it at heart, and I was wondering how long it would be before he would give up his strain of Canadian pointers he was breeding and admit that the setter was after all the only dog for a mixed country.

"One morning this man entered my office and displayed a telegram from a man in Magnolia, Miss., inviting me to come up for a few days at the quail and to bring a friend along with him. The wire concluded with the information that it would be unnecessary to bring dogs. That rather got me riled, and I wanted to know who the man was who sent the wire and what sort of dogs he thought we had in Louisiana. My friend said the sender of the despatch was a country storekeeper who bought cotton for him in that district and that he would be content to leave his dogs at home if I would do the same.

"I didn't take the State of Mississippi contained no such dogs as mine and that I would take old Dasher and his son Tony along, if only to show the natives what we could boast of in well-bred dogs, fast, staunch and bird finders every minute of the day.

"We made the appointment to leave the Crescent City the following Sunday afternoon, so as to be on the grounds in the afternoon for the morning. Our Mississippi sportsman met the train, took us to his house, where he had supper and swapped hunting stories till it was time to get to bed. My dogs were duly admired, but about the material he intended using in the field, and I rather thought that my fine brace took the shine off what he had to show and that he was a bit diffident about exhibiting his hombred and country broken dogs.

"Next morning when the wagon came round from the livery stable to convey us into the country there was the sorriest looking creature I have ever seen, conjure up running at the heels of the horse, and I laughed as I caught sight of him. This dog looked as though life had been one continual struggle with fate since the days of puppyhood. He was unlike any dog I had ever seen.

"Mongrel, wouldn't fit him at all. He was worse than that; he was a nondescript mongrel. His head was about the size and he looked at the almost square and he looked at the work of a pair of bleary eyes. His face was scarred by the fangs of other dogs who had apparently taken toll in numerous battles. His ears were nicked and his gray body was short and strong.

"The most conspicuous part of his make-up, however, was a stub tail about the length of your index finger. That tail was eloquent. It was never still, and I was told afterward that the owner was engaged in battle.

"Our host having invited us to climb in, I asked where his bird dogs were. My own had been snugly stored away in a bed of straw under the back seat.

"Oh, I thought I wouldn't risk showing mine against yours,' was the countryman's reply as he picked up the reins preparatory to starting.

"I gave my New Orleans friend an 'I told you so' look and felt that pride of ownership which somehow is most satisfying when the matter of good hunting dogs or horseflesh is concerned.

"It was a remarkably fine bird country. In fact the vicinity of Magnolia at the present time is very hard to beat, and we didn't have to drive far before we came to cover that was promising. A small boy had been brought along to take charge of the team and the lurcher and we made our preparations to shoot straight across an extensive cotton plantation which we were assured belonged to a man with whom our friend was on very friendly terms. The boy was to walk the horse

PREDICTS ORATORY WILL BE LOST ART

Writer Says That Folk No Longer Go to Hear Speakers As They Did in Other Years—The Reason.

Persons used to go to hear their favorite orators as they do to hear their favorite singers or actors. There were different kinds of oratory as there are different kinds of music, says the Metropolitan Magazine, each suited to the taste of the audience. There were grand operas, symphony concerts and variety shows. It was as if Webster interpreted Beethoven, Edward Everett, Brahms and Sumner let us say, Tchaikovsky. These men were great public performers as well as great men in other respects and the public demanded they should name and we as ourselves.

Oratory was one of the principal attractions of every convention, every session of Congress, every picnic. It was of the greatest service during the civil war, when people might have rebelled against the reality of slaughter if they had not been cheered by fine speeches, poetry and the war songs of Dr. Root and others. The public demanded amusement and it must be connected with the matter nearest to their hearts.

Not very long ago we were obliged by circumstances to listen to an attempt at oratory by a distinguished Senator for whom I have the highest respect. The speaker's share of analysis and reasoning we share the general respect. It was extremely bad. It was as if a man tried to play on the piano when he had only learned the typewriter. That suggests another danger—that the art will entirely disappear through disuse. For it is a matter of simple mathematics that the fewer there are who try to be orators the fewer great orators there will be.

CURED ACHE AND PAINS LIKE MAGIC

When he Used Dodd's Kidney Pills for Rheumatism.

Saskatchewan man tells of quick relief after three years of suffering.

Houbek, Sask., Jan. 19, (Special).—Among the many on the prairies who are shouting the praises of Dodd's Kidney Pills none speak with more enthusiasm than Mr. Matt. Syverson, a well known resident of this place.

"I suffered from rheumatism for three years," Mr. Syverson says; "and I was also troubled with an acute pain around my heart. My case was a severe one and several times I doubted if recovery was possible. But seven boxes of Dodd's Kidney Pills cured me completely.

"I can truly and honestly recommend Dodd's Kidney Pills as a remedy for cases such as mine. They surely cleared out all my aches and pains as if by magic."

Rheumatism is caused by uric acid in the blood. When the kidneys are right they strain all the uric acid out of the blood. Dodd's Kidney Pills make the kidneys right. That's why they never fail to cure rheumatism and kindred diseases.

Theatrical.

Mrs. Willis—There seems to be a big crowd over at Mrs. Waypp's wedding. Strange, too! She has been married nine times already.

Mrs. Gillis—That's it! This is going to be a grand souvenir performance.
