OTTAWA, August 28.—It is fully expected that Sir Robert Borden will resign the leadership of the Conservative party tomorrow at the caucus which has been called to discuss the question of the formation of a union government, as the result of the Speeches Limited to Twenty Minutes and Opposition Members terms offered by the western representatives, who had a conference with the prime minister and other members of the federal cabint in Ottawa and then went to Winnipeg, where they were in consultation with other western politicians. The tide of sentiment in the Conservative party has turned very strongly against union during the past few days and it is doubtful if a baker's days of the party can now be found favorable to union at any price. It can also be said with certainty that strong antagonism to Sir Robert Borden, Hon. Arthur Meighen and Sir. Thomas White has developed. They are the men who have been active in promoting the cause of union, and the failure of the negotiations has placed many of the Conservative members, it is claimed, in a trying position before their constituents.
