

A Canyon-like River with Stupendous Capes

WOULD you enjoy a new type of scenery—something entirely different to the shore-line you've scanned on other boat trips?

Then see the Saguenay!

Here is a mysterious, awe-inspiring river. On its surface, painted in nature's richest tints, lie the reflections of stupendous capes that rise higher than Gibraltar, seeming to touch the sky.

You'll get a real thrill from this trip up the Saguenay canyon—but you'll get equal satisfaction out of every other feature of the trip.

NIAGARA-TO-THE-SEA

From Toronto you travel the broad expanse of Lake Ontario, then comes the beautiful scenery of the Upper St. Lawrence River, with its magnificent 1000 Islands. The same day you have the exhilarating descent of the Rapids—soon to arrive at Montreal.

Quebec—that city of quaint old-world charm, is another feature of the trip—and from Quebec you can take the short ride to Ste. Anne de Beaupre, where, for 250 years, the townsfolk and the pilgrims have bowed together before wayside altars. As a fitting climax you sail up the famous Saguenay River, where giant cloud-wrapped cliffs tower so high above you that the whirling eagle is a speck against the blue.
