

Industrial design contest

by Ken Hui

Christmas was a working holiday for some Industrial Design students who participated in the third annual National Exhibit Design Scholarship U of A participants this year were Dennis Bohn, Robert Chovanec and Kam Ng.

Dennis Bohn's design is the display system for CBC radio. "I've tried to incorporate the stability of the CBC image and also friendliness of design," said Bohn. Bohn introduced neo-classical elements and a home setting in his project. "My design was derived from CBC image rather than forcing it into any particular style," said Bohn. The CBC logo was used as a design device.

Robert Chovanec is working on a computerland exhibit. "I want to use a simple shape," said Chovanec, "to impress on people that computers are simple to use nowadays." Chovanec used a high tech look in his design. "I've used white and blue colour as in the Computerland logo", said Chovanec.

"I create a post modern interior setting for my future furniture design company," said Kam Ng. Ng gives his work a Memphis outlook (the unconventional use of colour and form in custom made furniture). Attention is drawn to customer participating and flexibility", said Ng.

MSSA exhibit at HUB

by Ken Hui

The Malaysian-Singapore Students' Association (MSSA) is having a cultural exhibition at the Arts Lounge, HUB Mall during the first week of the second term.

"We hope to introduce to our Canadian friends and the general university community the many tropical wonders of South-east Asia and in particular Malaysia and Singapore," said Felician Teo, the president of MSSA.

Costumes, Arts and Crafts of the Malaysian, Chinese and Indian heritage will be displayed in the exhibition. The three ethnic groups from the vast majority of the population in Malaysia and Singapore.

"The exhibition is among the highlights of MSSA's activities this year" said Teo, "especially in social and historical perspective".

The exhibition starts today.
