learn that there are nearly 449,-000 uninhabited houses in Great Britain and Ireland, roughly, one in every twelve, to say nothing of the 61,909 houses which, at the time of the census, were in pro cess of building.

Although more males than females are ushered, into the world, the ladies prove so much better able to wage the battle of life that at the last census they outnumbered the males by over 1,070,000, or nearly twice the population of Manchester, For every 1,000 males there were 1.000 females-and sixty-eight gave additional cheer to the general exchange of congratulations. over. Bournemouth appears to be the ladies' Paradise, for there tbey swamped the masculines by 1,709 to 1,000; London had 118 redundant females in every 1.000, Devonshire 119, Sussex 202, and Cardiganshire 260; while in treat Russian garrison with all honor Radnor there were actually 1,000 possibly releasing them under arms on males to 890 females.

One would naturally have thought that the army of women. workers was much more numerous iug Stoessel whom te says has rendered today than twenty years ago, and gallant service to a nation of beroes. yet, according to the registrar general's figures, the percentage of occupied females was 33.5 in 1881, and only 31.6 in 1901 Among men the number of railway employes has almost doubled in twenty years; for every 1,000 commercial clerks in 1891 there were 172 ten years later; while males employed in agriculture have fallen off 153,000 in the same period, There were in 1901 over 107,000 female domestics servants fewer than in 1891; but of the glorious defence he has made.

the numbers employed in schools, laundries, on dress and food have increased largely.

It is comforting to see that the percentage of blind and deaf and of the army besieging Port Arthur, dumb persons is declining at a gratifying rate. In 1851, of every Replung Fort, a small body of Russiars million inhabitants there were still offered resistance in the passage 1,056 blind; half a century later between the siege gun line and the the number had fallen to 792; gorge.
