Brother Mine.

Just like we used to, brother mine,
Let's wander back again—
Let's turn our steps from busy mart
To meet there where our pathways part
And then go back—my hand in thine
Forgetting we are men.

Just like we used to, brother dear,
Let's link our hearts with joy,
A-down the lanes and pleasant ways
We knew and loved in boyhood days—
Forget the world is old and drear
And be again a boy.

Let's wander back again, we two,
Beside the silvery stream—
Beside the wood where mystery lies
Beneath the kindly summer skies
With sunbeams glancing dancing through,
And rest again and dream.

Let's wander back again and see
The homestead, where to-day
The flowers weep for one Above
And seem to breathe her mother's love—
She cherished them so tenderly
Before she went away!

Let's wander back, O brother mine,
And never more to roam;
With all our boyhood shrines around
Let's kneel beside her grassy mound
And tell her, through the whispering pines,
Her children have come home.

Hints of Federation From Newfoundland.

Suggests Union of the Ancient Colony
With the Dominion of Canada—
Proposes Taking in St. Pierre.

New York, Feb. 20.—An Associated Press despatch from St. John's, Nfld., to-day says:

"An active cause of friction between Great Britain, France and the United States would be removed if means could be found at the conference of British colonial premiers in London this month for the acquisition of the French colony of St. Pierre by Newfoundland, and the consent of Newfoundland to join the Dominion of Canada, according to the opinion expressed by the government to-day.

In a belief that a re-grouping of the British overseas possessions would be considerably affected by the conference a member of the native government states that the political as well as physical elements would enter into the consideration of any changes in the North American portion of the empire.

At present, he stated, there is a dispute between France and England regarding Newfoundland fishing regulations which adversely affected the French fishermen of St. Pierre. This dispute, while now quiescent is capable at any time of becoming a sore spot. France pays bounties to the St. Pierre fishermen, thereby enabling them to undersell Newfoundlanders. Although friction between Newfoundland and the United States over the fisheries was ended by the Hague fishery award of 1910 barring American fishermen from Newfoundland waters, it is thought that an arrangement more satisfactory to all concerned might be reached through direct negotiations in the allied countries after the war. Such an arrangement might also be extended to American fishing privileges on the coast of Canada.

Of Latest Submarine Campaign—"We are Getting a Fair Average," Lacle Statement Given Out by Admiralty—New U-Boats Vastly Inferior to Old.

London, Feb. 14.—Only meagre details of Great Britain's measures of offence against the new German submarine campaign have been given out, but each report of the sinking of a ship brings confirmation of the reports that the new undersea boats are vastly inferior to the old U-boats. The testimony of the officers and crews of sunken vessels also indicates that the latest submarines are being manned by inexperienced sailors, suggesting that Germany is hard pressed for men capable of handling the delicate machinery.

The new submarines, according to the best evidence, are much lighter than those of the old type, showing evidence of hasty construction. It is reported that Germany is now turning out standard submarine parts in various factories, but is assembling these in only one or two shipyards. All the submarine machinery has been constructed carefully, but the hulls and especially the superstructures are extremely light.

Unbroken silence continues to mark the attitude of Admiralty officials toward the submarine campaign, but an air of satisfaction is apparent. The only statement made is "we are getting a fair average."

THE FROST-BITTEN TOURING CAR

The frost-bitten touring car is a $2,000 disappointment which is harder to get started than a third cousin who has camped down for the winter. It consists of a gasoline engine which has become chilled to the marrow, combined with a cold in the head, quinsy, tonsillitis and the Vermont ague.

It would seem that some of our inventors ought to be able to put their bright, wedge-shaped heads to work and get up a gasoline engine which will not freeze in one solid chunk whenever the thermometer drops a foot or two. It is a sore trial to a man who invested a lot of his wife's money in an automobile in the summer time, when it would perspire faster than a chicken thief on the witness stand, to go out to his garage on a bright winter morning and discover that it has frozen to death in an upright position, yet this is happening every day and causing husbands to forget their religious training.

There is something pathetic about the efforts of a frost-bitten touring car to get under way when the starter is stepped on. It sounds like a corn sheller trying to digest a handful of hardheads. It is also pathetic to see a short-waisted citizen leaning heavily against the crank and breathing in short, disconnected sentences. Some people try to avoid this by robbing the tea kettle of all the hot water in the house and pouring it down the touring car's throat, while others lay hot cloths on its stomach.

The worst thing the congealed touring car does, however, is to freeze to the pavement every time the owner steps into a saloon to thaw out his neck. This explains why we see so many handsome touring cars standing on the street wrapped up in old shawls, fur overcoats and other glittering regalia. The touring car will not freeze if it is fed wood alcohol in large quantities, but this is a base use for one of the noblest drinks that ever cheered the inhabitants of a dry state.

Everyday Etiquette.

"Is an answer to a wedding announcement necessary? If so what is the proper reply?" inquired John.

"No answer is expected to an announcement of a wedding. A note of good wishes, however, is perfectly proper if they are particular friends of yours," said his father.
