

Accidents by Threshing Machines.

But little attention seems to be paid to the Act passed last session for the prevention of accidents by threshing machines. Since these machines came into general use this season, we daily find in our exchanges accounts of accidents more or less serious, occasioned by the carelessness of those working about them, or from neglect in properly protecting the tumbling-rods or other parts where the clothes of the workmen are liable to be caught. The consequence is that such accidents seem to be as frequent as before the passing of the Act, that many men and boys are maimed or injured for life, and that not a few lose their lives from injuries thus received.

The Act is one specially framed for the benefit of farmers, and yet strange to say, though they see every day accidents happening through neglect of its provisions, they seem to take no steps for enforcing them. If manufacturers of threshing machines disregard its enactments, it is the duty of farmers and others working about them to see that they comply with the law, and so cover the exposed parts of machines so as to prevent the possibility of accidents. Farmers stand very much in their own light when they fail to do this, and their culpable negligence cannot be too strongly condemned. They should lay it down as a rule that whenever they come across a threshing machine which has not its dangerous parts covered as the law requires, they should warn the owner to have this done at once, or give information of the neglect to the nearest Magistrate, who is authorized to impose a fine for such neglect. Farmers have the matter entirely in their own hands, and if they do not assist the Legislature in enforcing a wise and salutary Act, which is designed for their safety and protection, the fault lies altogether with themselves.

The Scott Murder.

Now that the majesty of the law has been vindicated in the trial and condemnation of Lepine, one of the accomplices in the murder of Scott, the Mail following the example of the Montreal Gazette, thinks an end should be put by both parties to the divisions arising out of this unhappy question. After expressing its satisfaction at the result of the Lepine trial it says: "We must at the same time say there is reason to be satisfied with the jury's recommendation to mercy, which accompanied the verdict of 'guilty.' This recommendation will, no doubt, lead to the commutation of the death sentence which Chief Justice Wood will pass upon Lepine. It is getting late in the day to demand 'blood for blood.' And some consideration is no doubt due to the plea that, though the offspring of rebellion, Riel's Government was a Government in fact. The law having taken its course the Government must now consider the necessity of removing this festering sore from the body politic. To do this it has been an advantage; to each Party it has been a cause of uneasiness and trouble. For ourselves we are quite ready to do our share of the plain speaking connected with the subject, and will give our support to any fair and reasonable step which may be taken to make the whole matter a remembrance rather than a living, present and troublesome reality."

The suggestion is a timely one, and merits the most serious consideration. As the Hamilton Times in a sensible article on the subject says:—"Rightly or wrongly the question has become one of race, and to carry the law into execution would, both in Manitoba and Quebec, be productive of the most deplorable results. We do not anticipate that it would lead to strife, but it would certainly lead to a bitter antagonism between French and English speaking citizens that hardly any price is too great to pay to hinder. The French speaking people of Manitoba have acted honestly in through a jury on which they had equal representation, having declared the killing of Scott a crime. Is it too much now for English speaking citizens to meet them half way, and plead that no further penalty be exacted for the crime? Is it not due to the future of our country that, for the sake of peace and harmony between the different races of whom the population is made up, we should now urge a policy that shall bind us together rather than one that shall drive us apart; that we shall rather seek to heal the wound that has been made, than irritate it into a chronic sore?"

BLACKWOOD'S MAGAZINE. - The contents of the October number of Blackwood, just issued by the Leonard Scott Publishing Co., 41 Barclay street, New York, may be summarized as follows: I. "Alice Lorraine," Part VIII. II. "The Abode of Snow," Part II. Simla and its Celebrities. Simla is the point from which the Himalayan traveller is to start on his trip through the mountains, and as it is the place to which the Governor-General retires to escape the intense heat of Calcutta, many notable people are to be met with there in the hot season, although the climate seems to be far from attractive. The preparations for the journey are described at some length, and we expect to be fairly on the road to the abode of snow in the next number. III. "Sir Baastre Tarleton." An unvarnished sketch of the most brilliant and, we must add, faithless cavalry soldier, who fought for the King in the Revolutionary War. IV. "International Vanities, No. VII. - Alien Laws." V. "Army Control." The article is not one of great interest to the general American reader. We recommend it more particularly to soldiers and Britons. VI. "The Story of Valentine and his Brother." Part III. VII. "School Board Religion." VIII. "Horatian Lyrics." A free version of three well-known odes, respectively entitled, by the translator, "The Golden Mean," "A Christmas Carol," and "To Midwinter." IX. "The Founders of Modern Liberalism." The criticism and review of a recent publication entitled "Wills, Sheridan, and Fox: the Opposition under George III." By W. F. Le. A very entertaining article.

DEADLY ACCIDENT AT WINDHAM. - A fatal accident occurred on the morning of the 28th ult., as he was attending the shingle saw in Mr. Fisher's saw mill. It appears that McCance was in the act of sawing a bar which lay on the table, and not gradually reached his hand over the saw, severing it nearly through just below the elbow. One bone is completely shattered and the muscles and tendons cut through.

The family of Mr. H. McQuarrie, of Blyth, was recently slightly poisoned by using hellebore, instead of pepper, which had been put into the pepper box by mistake.

Twelve inches of snow fell in Erie, Pennsylvania, last Saturday.

Facts worth Remembering. - Parties purchasing goods always wish to buy them at the cheapest rate. Now the nearer you can get to the Manufacturer, the cheaper are the goods. - Mr. Horsman, the popular Hardware merchant of this town, last summer visited the manufacturing districts of Europe, and purchased very largely from the manufacturers there. He has also made special arrangements with manufacturers in the United States and Canada to have their goods at the lowest Cash prices. In consequence of the extraordinary bargains Mr. Horsman offers, his sales this season are largely increased; in fact, there has been a perfect rush at his mammoth establishment during the last two months. Remember, by purchasing Hardware from John Horsman, the profit of the wholesale dealer, or middleman, are saved to the customer. Stoves and Tinware have been added this season, and on account of the very low prices at which these goods are offered by Mr. Horsman this branch of the business has exceeded his most sanguine expectations.
