

MAINLY ABOUT WOMEN

Press Women of Canada See Wonders of Jasper Park, and Scenery of Alberta

Staid Authresses and Plain and Pretty Pen Pushers Have Time of Their Lives Travelling de-lux With George Ham and Mr. Tilley and Colonel Rogers.

(By Constance Errol). A press woman must go where duty calls her, be it into the police court, the hospital, the auditorium, the ball room, but when duty calls in the midst of the C. P. R. and the Grand Trunk, and the ancient and the new, the Edmonton and on to Tete Jaune at the end of steel, then the press woman is the envy of her kind.

This year the triennial convention of the C. W. P. C. has, thanks to the goodness of these two railway companies, been a thing of beauty and a joy for ever. From day to day the wires have flashed forth messages of the progress of the convention, but no wire and few pens could do justice to the trip itself.

Starting from Calgary on the mid-night train, we arrived in Edmonton on Monday morning at the station by station by eager, hospitable Press and Canadian club women, who rushed us off to their beautiful homes and to the beautiful city of wide streets and green trees.

In the afternoon we had one business meeting, first session, and in the evening we were guests at a civic banquet in the Empire auditorium. There was a fine scene, the hall being gloriously decorated with rich crimson roses, glowing carnations and feathery palms. We had speeches from men and women, inspiring words and kindly.

On Wednesday morning came our second session of business, when our new officers were elected. Mrs. Murphy being made president and Miss Royce, of Calgary, the C. W. P. C. treasurer. In the afternoon the roads were heavy, and the A. C. Club was compelled to put off the auto trip round the city, but the sun was merely teasing, and not really mad by treating it was fine enough to permit of our accepting Mrs. Second's invitation to a delightful garden party.

under the management of R. H. Morris, with Canadian and American capital, are making a model place of Jasper, building for its employees many detached four-roomed cottages and school house, electric lighted and water drained. The report added that all the engineers were American and all the miners Scotch, and his tone, if not his words, conveyed that the combination was the best possible.

Mount Robson is the grandest peak in the Rocky Mountains. It rises to an enormous height. Indeed the Grand Trunk scenery is different in this way from the C. P. R. scenery. It is grand and awful in the fact that the mountains rise from the level of the railway line. On the Grand Trunk the mountains rise from the level of the road from a lower level thus magnifying their height to the eye of the traveler.

At the hotel, Scotch folk, by the name of McKenzie, were not averse to discussing the local conditions and prospects for following the camp to the north. We pulled out at 10 o'clock, and the boys, newly shaven, lined the way for us as we got off the train. We visited Athabasca river, and on the way passed "Alberta House," a small building of 12 feet, owned by two Englishmen. Only one of them was in the house, and he seemed more anxious than to admit the converse with him.

There was a rush for a most dainty and enjoyable breakfast, and then the sight-seeing began. Women from "back east" who had never seen a mountain, gazed at their great peaks in wonder and awe. They crowded to the platforms of the cars, and in silence at the rugged summits, the deep ravines, and the rushing torrents on the mountain sides sink into their souls.

From him we learned that Jasper Park was named after Jasper Hawes, who had found his way there in the early eighties. Himself the possessor of long golden hair, a mark for curiosity against the dark locks of his half-breed wife, the Indians dubbed him "Yellow Head," and after him is named also the Yellowhead Pass. The colonel, who knows each rock and river in his vast territory of 10,000 square miles, was much more interesting than the railway guides. I may be wrong, but I think that every railway company, with their time tables, should provide also an interpreter for poor humans who are unable to grapple with such Chinese puzzles as the arrival and departure of trains.

Friday and Saturday the Final Days of the All Around Sale

THE SALE THAT SURVIVES

Other sales have flashed for a day or so and then died, but here was one that survived and that with unabated interest simply because we had the merchandise to back every advertising assertion. The sale continues until Saturday night at 10 o'clock. After that it will be quite impossible to purchase any of the advertised lines at the prices here mentioned. Make the most of the closing hours of this, the greatest of Summer Sales.
