SUNDAY SCHOOL CONVENTION

West Elgin Association Meets at West Lorne-Interesting Addresses Given

The annual convention of the West Elgin Sunday Schools was held at the Presbyterian church, West Lorne, on Wednesday under the most favorable on Wednesday under the most favorable auspices. The theme for the day was "Training for Service." Rev. W. P. Fletcher, one of the provincial officers, gave an excellent address on "Making the Rural Sunday School a Social Centre," in which he said that it is desirable that our boys and girls should, as far as possible, stay in rural life. Every rural community should have an equal chance to have the boys and girls stay there. One need of the boys and girls is there. One need of the boys and girls is that they must have play. The play life to them mean a great deal, for play in the best sense of the word will lead to something higher—to a full responsibility of work. The church should not lose sight of the nature side of boy and girl life, but must pre-eminently so supply the needs of the children. The rural Sunday School must have its social centre and have a good ways to be supplyed. centre and have a good man to lead: a man who will adopt methods that are wise and sane. There must be co-oper-ation as demonstrated in the recent elections. So must we in our Sunday Scho tions. So must we in our Sunday School work.

The president, D, W. Graham, gave a short address in which he emphasized the thought that the Sunday School should be a Bible school, for that is really the proper name for the school.

J. A. Snell, of Dutton, gave an address on "The Necssity of a Teacher Training Class for the New Era," in which he eloquently pleaded for at least one teacher training class in every Sunday school in West Elgin. The speaker said that the great challenging task of the Christian church is the educational task. An undertrained Sunday school teacher that the great challenging task of the Christian church is the educational task. An undertrained Sunday school teacher is as much out of place as an untrained man in any department of human activity. The new era demands that we keep up a succession of well-trained teachers and leaders. This task is big enough to challenge the united forces of evangelical Christianity.

Mr. Fletcher followed by one of his characteristic addresses on "The Sunday School Association and Where Your Money Goes."

Rev. J. H. Colclough gave a most inspiring and helpful address on "The Master Teacher" He said that Jesus Christ was the greatest teacher the world has ever known. It was His supreme business to teach. He put His personality into His work To-day we need some man who will lead and help on the great cause of truth in the world. Christ possessed a wonderful personality which he used in training and fitting men for service. A teacher must be something as well as teach something. Nothing adorns like character. We cannot assume chdracter; it is made. The Master Teacher was a maker of teachers ever known, by the methods he used.

The installation of officers, conducted

The installation of officers, conducted by Rev. Mr. Falconer was a unique feature of the convention. At this stage Rev. Mr. Fletcher was called upon to give the concluding address of the convention on "Sunday School Ideas." which was delivered in a masterly way with most telling effect.
