The Waterways of Which

Fort George

Is the centre, have a tremendous significance. All over the continent businessmen are putting forth every effort to utilize the natural waterways for transportation.

Writing in the New York World of Nov. 7, 1909, P. A. O'Farrell said of British Columbia: "The energy of 25,000,000 horses runs to waste in its mighty rivers. Its internal water highways can be formed into the most wonderful system of waterways and power developers."

The Hub

Of this magnificent water system is Fort George. Take a map of British Columbia. Locate Fort George, approximately at the centre, at the junction of the Nechaco and Fraser Rivers.

Flowing south is the Fraser, joined lower down by the Blackwater River. Reaching to the west is the Nechaco and Fraser Lake. To the northwest is the Stuart River, Stuart Lake and Tacla Lake. To the southeast is the south branch of the Fraser; to the east the north branch of the Fraser; to the northeast is the Salmon River, and across a short portage the thousand-mile systems of the Parsnip, the Findlay and the Peace.

A Thousand Miles

Of water now known to be navigable, converge from Fort George, and on every trip navigators are making greater distances than on the preceding one. THREE LINES OF STEAMBOATS ARE ALREADY OPERATING FROM FORT GEORGE.

This great water system ramifies the richest agricultural, mining and timber country in the world.

There are some 50,000,000 acres of unrivalled soil, much of it open, to which settlers are flocking by the thousand.

This country was the scene of the most profitable placer mining of the early days, and only needs the coming of the railway to electrify into activity not only the gold, but also the coal, copper, silver and other potential mining industries of this fabulously rich empire.

The largest undeveloped timber areas of the Province of British Columbia are in this inland empire. Lumbering, too, only awaits railway transportation that will give it a market both at home and abroad.

The Hudson's Bay Co.

Located Fort George as the commercial centre of this great region two hundred years ago, just as they did in the case of Winnipeg, Calgary and of Edmonton in their respective districts. The logic of facts today shows that they looked far into the future.

The Fort George of today, of tomorrow, and of all the future, by reason of its command of the waterways, also dominates the railway situation. The railways must follow the river valleys, and must therefore come into Fort George.

It has the advantages of both rail and water transportation. By virtue of this it becomes the commercial centre; the depot for the inland empire's products, the distributing centre for its supplies, the manufacturing centre and the metropolis.

Ask us to send you our paper, "A Bulletin of Facts." Write or call today.
