He tlings to His Father in a Court-Room— A Case of Domeat'e Infelicity. Newark, N J, Nev 17—There was an exciting scene this a ternoon in Vice-Chancellor VanFleet's against her husband for the possession of their 5-year-old son. Two years ago Lyons began to drink and quarrelled with his wife, who went to live w th her parents taking her son. Last week Lyons, who wife to return to him She refused, and as he lef he picked up the boy and carried him away. Mr Lyons brought a suit against her husband for the re-covery of the child, and this afternoon a decision was rendered in her favor. During the proceedings the child sat by his father, and when the vice-chancellor ordered him to be given to his mother he looked pitcously into his father's face, threw himself upon a bench to which he clung tenaciously. When the officers attempted to remove him he cried bitterly and began bleeding at the nose. The chancellor fearing he might so into convulsions ordered him to be given in charge of the father for the present. When this announcement was made the boy took hold of his father's ha d and accompanied him to the sidewalk where a coach was waiting.

gentlemen are invited, and in the winter thegentlemen respond by giving a ball, Last n'ght thegentlemen members of the party gave a ball at Occident hall under very favorable auspices. About eighty couple were present, and being all good dancers, tripped the light fantastic in a very graceful manner. The music was furnished by an Italian string band. Everything was got up in good style by the managers, Messrs Hayes, Halloran and Kennedy. A fine dressing room was prepared for the ladies, and adjoining this was a room in which one of Mason & Risch's pianos was placed: Here in the interval between the dances cards, music and games were indulged in. Mr Wils n was the caterer, and he deserves much credit for the handsome manner in which the supper was served. After supper the following toasts were drunk: The Queen and Craft, responded to by Mr Spain; Our Circle, by J W Halloran; The Ladies, by A Faulkner; and The Press, by C S Findlay.

Two Yonge street cars were so over-rowded by people coming from the Grand opera house at the close of the performance last night that when an attempt was made to start the horses were unable to move the car. At last a number of passengers got off and by their united efforts and vigorous applicaoff and by their united efforts and vigorous applicacation of the lash to the poor brutes, the car was started, but only to run a short distance. The track was very slippery and the onlookers expected every moment to see a horse fall and break or injure its legs. When the horses stopped the process was repeated. At one time a man would run -long the side of the horses with a heavy whip and lashed them until they were almost frantic with pain and they fell on their knees several times in the endeavors to pull the overloaded ear. Again another would catch the bridle and tug violently on the horses mot th. This was continued until the cars had passed Agnes street, by which time many passengers, becoming disgusted with the treatment to which the horses were being subjected to, got off.
Such scene as these a e not uncommon on the street railway and it should be at once stopped. It is entirely the fault of the railway company, as at this hour of thenight they could easily place on the track a sufficient number of cars to prevent overloading. The society for the prevention of cruelly to animals should be revived, as of late many occurrences have taken place which called for their interference.

usually intense, an autoria dispus, according to the more brilliant the autora, the more rapidly is the extra energy of the earth's magnetism dissipated.

The following was telephoned from the observatory at one o'clo k this morning; A magnetic storm of great magnitude has been going on from an early hour in the morning and still c utinues with very ittle decrease in at violence at the present time. It is one of the largest experienced for many years especially in regard to the amount of the change and in the rap dit. of the movement of the magnet, a change of two degrees in the declination occurring in a short space of time.

THE STORM AT CHICAGO.

CHICAGO, NOV 17—The electric storm to day extended from the Atlantic coss to a point beyond Omaha, and from Kansas City north to the terminus of tel-graphic communication. The first began to be felt about 4 am and increased in intensity till 9:45, when communication from every direction was cut off. The switch board was on fire a dozen times and half a dozen keys of the instruments were melted by the current. The du lex and quadruplex wires were rendered entirely useless. Word was received from Milwautkee that the atmospheric electrity coming in on a wire from the country has send at immense power as to keep the electric lamp burning.

THE NEW YORN, NOV 17—A heavy auroral storm throughout the entire country h s result ed in an almost complete interruption of telegraphic communication, which it is impossible to maintain more than a few seconds uninterruptedly. The storm is said to be the fiercest known for a long time. In New England a heavy, snow some till this morning.
