Planting raspberries, cost of growing grapes, cranberry culture, selection of nursery stock, lime-sulphur vs. Bordeaux for spraying, co-operative buying of supplies, spraying peaches and controlling brown-tail moth are among the many topics for fruit growers that are discussed in the May issue of The Canadian Horticulturist, published at Peterboro, Ont. A valuable article is contributed by Mr. J. A. Ruddick, Dairy and Cold Storage Commissioner Ottawa, on "The Construction of Cold Storage Warehouses." For vegetable growers there are articles on onions, potatoes, asparagus, celery, tomatoes, peppers and starting seedlings. Amateur gardeners are given special attention in articles on sweet peas, asters, dahlias, lilacs, and so forth. Horticultural notes from all the provinces constitute a strong feature of the issue. There is much information of special interest to Maritime Province horticulturists. Among the contributors are J. A. Moore, Hazelbrook, P. E. I.; R. J. Messenger, Bridgetown, N. S.; and Miss Eunice Watts, Waterville, N. S. The issue is well illustrated. Sample copies of the Canadian Horticulturist may be had on request to the above mentioned address.
