When the relief of Mafeking was celebrated in Nottingham the other day, a Canadian, who was present, was surprised to see lace on the flags. He writes to The Dry Goods Review as follows. Patriotic sentiment in Nottingham ran very high, and was not unmixed with business. Union Jacks, Ensigns, Royal Standards, etc., were edged, and sometimes frilled all the way around with lace (') anywhere from 2 inches to 10 in width. It struck me as being very funny indeed. Nottingham is justly proud of the industry which has made the place famous. It is a clean, industrious place, but fancy a Union Jack trimmed with lace!"

The works of the Colonial Bleaching and Printing Co., Limited, at St. Henri, were a sited by Mayor Guay and the councilors of St. Henri recently. The visitors were received by Mr. Alphonse Racine, vice president; Mr. W. T. Whitehead, manager; Mr. W. Herrick, mill manager; Mr. W. A. Cochrane, and Mr. W. J. White, solicitor of the company, who accompanied them through the splendid works of the company, which were minutely inspected. Afterwards an adjournment was made to the office, where the Mayor and several of the councillors extended their congratulations to the company on the splendid manner in which the plant had been constructed and equipped. Construction was only begun on August 1, last, but to-day it is in full operation, turning out a most satisfactory grade of goods with a large and increasing demand more than equalling anticipations.—Montreal Gazette.

An instance of late deliveries by Canadian cotton mills, owing to the heavy orders they have handled during the past six months, is recorded. A buyer placed an order in December, 1899, for one line of cottons, and received the goods June 25—too late, he thinks, for business purposes.

Nisbet & Auld are showing a very large range of their special 6/4 worsted suitings for Fall. They have made a specialty of this particular cloth, and it has acquired deserved popularity with the general merchant, being moderate in price, durable, and in select designs.
