

THE SUPPLEMENT ADVERTISER.

"The contents are exceedingly timely and readable, the articles being from good writers, and the subjects well chosen."—TOLEDO WEEKLY BLADE.

Comparing the NEW ENGLAND MAGAZINE with others, the JOURNAL OF EDUCATION (Boston) says: "It has an historical value second to none in this country."

THE NEW ENGLAND MAGAZINE.

This Magazine enjoys a liberal patronage from those who take a lively interest in the historical, biographical, educational, and industrial interests of the six New England States. It is the aim of the publishers constantly to broaden its scope, so that it will be of value, not only to every New Englander, whether resident or otherwise, but to every person who takes an interest in the history of the United States.

"NEW ENGLAND IN THE CIVIL WAR"

will comprise a series of articles to be published throughout the coming year. These articles will treat in a systematic manner of the part taken by New England from the opening to the close of the war. Their authenticity as to the minutest details will be unexceptionable, and they will be of absorbing interest to both young and old.

"EARLY NEW ENGLAND HISTORY,"

including sketches of life in colonial times, will be accurately portrayed by those who have had the rare opportunity of gaining access to many old and valued documents relating to the early days. Many of these documents will be engraved especially for the NEW ENGLAND MAGAZINE, and cannot fail to add value and interest to its pages.

"NEW ENGLAND INDUSTRIES"

will constitute another series of papers of unusual interest.

"HISTORICAL SKETCHES OF CITIES,"

"BIOGRAPHIES OF NOTABLE PERSONAGES,"

AND

"NEW ENGLAND COLLEGES,"

are the titles of series of papers that will appear from time to time. The latter papers will be edited by Dr. HENRY RANDALL WAITE, Ph.D., whose labors towards advancing Christianity and education on both sides of the water have elicited universal approbation.

Short, complete, and serial stories, written by authors of acknowledged merit, will appear in each issue.

Under the headings, "EDITOR'S TABLE," "HISTORICAL RECORD," "NECROLOGY," "EDUCATION," "HISTORY AND GENEALOGY," "NOTES AND QUERIES," will be found matter of interest to every wide-awake reader.

The Magazine is ably edited, and the opinions and views offered are such as will receive the attention and endorsement of intelligent thinkers.

The Boston Herald, in a late issue, says of the Magazine: "The editorial work in this Magazine is admirably done, and it is hardly a surprise to learn that it is rapidly increasing in circulation in all parts of New England. If maintained at its present standard, it will deserve its popularity."

The Salem Register pronounces it "an excellent magazine, beautifully printed, charmingly illustrated, and filled with attractive articles."

The Milwaukee Journal thinks "It is a treasury of information to libraries and historical societies in all parts of the Union."

The opinion of the Boston Daily Advertiser that "The articles are varied, carefully prepared, and full of interest," is worthy of regard; and the Brooklyn Daily Times considers that "Its ability and breadth of interest entitle it to a continent of readers."
