

CHRISTIAN MISSIONARIES IN CHINA

Photographed by J. Martin Miller, War Correspondent of The Graphic of London and Harper's Weekly of New York

The following is an extract from a letter written by Mr. Miller to a friend in New York:

"The missionaries have adopted native dress, 'pig-tail' and all, to avoid attracting undesirable attention among the vast hordes of interior China, who would regard a man dressed in western costume with the same class of curiosity as would be aroused by a Chinese Mandarin with his camel-train in an American town.

"You will note the exceedingly neat and cleanly appearance of these white people in the native dress. Is it due to the use of Pears' Soap, which I notice is the only soap to be found in a white man's house, anywhere in the far East?

"If anything can civilize and Christianize China, Pears' Soap and the missionaries will."

Pears' Soap is sold all over the world
