

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

Many people have contributed to the work presented in this report, although not all have been involved in attempting to bring together under one cover the various elements which had already served the earlier purpose for which they were intended.

The Canadian Government wishes to acknowledge the work and dedication of scientists and staff from the University of Saskatchewan; and officials and scientists from Health and Welfare Canada, Agriculture Canada and the Department of External Affairs.

The Canadian Government is particularly pleased to acknowledge the assistance of officials and scientists of the Kingdom of Thailand, whose cooperation and expertise were essential to this endeavour.
