

Level 8

Work is performed under direction, requiring a moderate degree of discretion. Problems are solved by the selection of courses of action that may require some modification of established methods and procedures. The implications of possible courses of action may not be readily apparent. Direction is sought only when the apparent solutions to problems are not within the intent of established practices.

The work requires a good knowledge of the Post's practices and procedures and the relevant provisions of legislation. Writing of reports is also required.
