

THE END

TELL me, strange heart, so mysteriously beating—

Unto what end?

Body and soul so mysteriously meeting,

Strange friend and friend;

Hand clasped in hand so mysteriously faring,

Say what and why all this dreaming and daring,

This sowing and reaping and laughing and weeping,

That ends but in sleeping—

Only one meaning, only—the End.