

rn, the honour
of the feelings
as to give up
what is justly
and falsehood.

she invariably
all our terri-
on our side
r diplomatic s, lakes, and
wing up what fications for mericans, local tance of the perceive and ators, and an
facilitate the
and honour."

ry of all our dversaries in e country in
o insure its ed, and it is to another ;
the British

A strip of ypocrisy, is ad, but may
e territory
e of future
matter any
now believed,
it he should
is boundary
r was there

Well and
e concession
just : Eng-
e wielder of e slavery in fficulties of the federal government—the crippled condition of Maine itself, all proclaim too loudly the policy of America in avoiding war; and the duty of England, availing herself of the opportunity of profiting by this combination of circumstances, to have the boundaries of her North American empire at length settled and defined.
