

Colonel, will assume, according to seniority, the command of the Regiment, and perform such duties as may be required of them, in accordance with Law, and the Standing Orders of the Regiment. They must at all times be prepared to render the Lieutenant Colonel such assistance as he may need in the discharge of his duties, and the maintenance of discipline and good order in the Regiment.

5. The Captain of each Company will have sole charge of the Company under his command, for the discipline and good order of which he will be held strictly responsible to the Officer Commanding. To assist him in Company matters he will command the aid of his Subaltern Officers, who must render him all necessary assistance, whenever required to do so.

6. The Adjutant will be under the immediate control of the Commanding Officer to whom alone he will be responsible for the due performance of his duties. These being of a complicated and onerous nature, will demand from him a large amount of care and diligence. He will have oversight of all duties, and matters of duty, not exclusively belonging to others. He must personally parade and inspect all guards, piquets, or other duties required. He will have charge of the Regimental Order Book, in which it will be his duty to see that all orders are properly entered, and publish them for the information of all concerned,
