

no record of the result of their labors, and it is believed that no further action was taken therein.

This circumstance is mentioned, trusting that the Provincial Grand Lodge will take some steps towards the preparing a history of Masonry in this Province. For if the Grand Chapter deemed its history then of such importance, how much more interesting—of how much greater importance—must be the history of Craft Masonry—the germ from whence the Provincial Chapters have sprung—especially at this period, when Masonry is fast attaining that position to which its principles entitle it.

That under the government of the Provincial Grand Superintendent the Chapters of Canada may prosper, and within their respective spheres ever perform their allotted work of “labor and love,” is the fervent wish of
