

Brief Summary of Great Work Done.

FOUR INSTITUTIONS FOUNDED

MUSKOKA COTTAGE SANATORIUM—FIRST INSTITUTION OF THE FOUR—FOUNDED IN 1896.

MUSKOKA COTTAGE SANATORIUM (for pay patients) For early or incipient cases. Established 1896.

MUSKOKA FREE HOSPITAL (for free patients). For early or incipient cases. Established 1902.

His late Majesty King Edward VII. and Queen Alexandra were graciously pleased to extend their patronage to the above institutions.

TORONTO FREE HOSPITAL FOR CONSUMPTIVES (near Weston). For advanced cases. Established 1904.

KING EDWARD SANATORIUM (in the same grounds), so named by permission of late King Edward VII. For advanced cases. For patients who can pay in part. Established 1907.

5,000 patients have been cared for in these institutions. This implies that an army of over 3,000 have been sent back to their families to help once more as breadwinners.

835 patients are now being cared for in the four institutions.

224 of these are in the Muskoka Free Hospital and the Toronto Free Hospital. 202 of this number do not pay a single cent towards the cost of maintenance. The others (19) pay from $2.00 to $4.90 a week to cover part cost of maintenance.

One million dollars has been spent for the maintenance of patients since the institutions were organized.

$317,000.00 in addition has been extended on capital account for building, equipment, etc.

$150,000.00 is paid out each year for the cost of maintenance.

$15,000.00 has been expended during the past year in construction of new sewage systems, made necessary by the increased number of patients.

A Laundry had to be built and equipped at a cost of over $4,000.00; other laundries refusing the work because of fear of infection.

A School has been organized in Toronto Free Hospital—the first of the kind in a Sanatorium.

More important still. How many lives have been saved through the educational work done to prevent the spread of infection?

Contributions for further extension and maintenance of this work may be sent to W. J. Gage, Esq., 54 Spadina Avenue, or Head Office National Sanatorium Association, 347 King Street W., Toronto.

WAS STRANGLED IN ROOM OF HOTEL

knew the bartender was not in the hotel. The bartender slept in different rooms at times. Earlier in the evening he heard someone rattle the handle of the door of the deceased's room, but did not think she had arisen.

Body Unrecognizable.

After crossing to the room across the hall, he saw on opening the door the body of Josephine Brimacombe. He described the state of the body as being unrecognizable. The lower teeth were protruding, and the eye glazed. The body was lying across the bed, the left leg hanging over the side. The pillow was stained with blood and mucous discharge.

Mr. Teasdale said he then called his wife and asked if she had put anyone in the room. He later called a Mr. Bailey, and then called others. None could identify the woman, but one Haines, who had been at the hotel while the regular bartender was away.

Haines recognized the clothes of Josephine Brimacombe. The bed had not been used; there were no signs of a struggle having taken place in the room. He went to Josephine's room and found the door locked. He looked over the balcony to make sure, and saw that the bed had not been made. It was her custom not to make the bed until retiring. He then sent Mr. Haines for the coroner.

Questioned by the coroner, Mr. Teasdale said that no person could reach the room occupied by Josephine without passing the door of his room. This door was closed, but every sound in the house could be heard.

Dr. Hutchison, Grafton, who presided at the postmortem examination, said that the body showed marks of external violence.

"Strangulation from some external violence," was the answer.

Dr. T. Bruce Hewson, Colborne, corroborated the evidence of Dr. Hutchison. He added that blood was noticed coming from the left nostril.

Lorenzo McDonald, hostler at the hotel, heard a noise once or twice about 8.30 on the night in question. He could not tell just where it came from. It sounded like a choke. He listened at the door, but paid no attention and went to bed. When he last saw Miss Brimacombe, she was in the kitchen, and Henry Matthews, Jr., was with her.

Heard Noise Like a Moan.

Nelson Murphy, Grand Trunk section boss, heard a peculiar noise like a moan upstairs in the Bristol House about 8 o'clock on the Saturday evening. He was standing at the foot of the stairs and the noise lasted for five or ten minutes.

Mr. McMurray asked if "Dummy" was upstairs, and another answered, "She is in the kitchen."

A man came downstairs; his vest was unbuttoned and his watch was hanging loose. It would be about ten minutes past eight. He looked at his watch to note the time. McMurray was also standing at the foot of the stairs at the time.

McMurray said he was in the Bristol House last Saturday evening with Mr. Murphy about 8 o'clock. He corroborated the noise reported by Mr. Murphy. He took the noise to be coming from upstairs. He heard a scream.

Saw Man Coming Down.

He saw a man coming downstairs, and in answer to Mr. Kerr said it was a friend of his. He said his vest was unbuttoned and his watch was

SELLING CLOTHES CANADA

Canadian Tailoring Attracts Attention of High-Class American Magazine.

There is a splendid article in the November issue of "Judicious Advertiser" under the title of "Selling Clothes in Canada." This is probably the leading publication of its kind in the United States, and is published by Lord & Thomas of Chicago. Until recent years Canadians have looked to the Americans for good style in clothes, and the subject has become such an interesting one, and one in which so many of our people are concerned, as well as our American cousins that it is not at all surprising to find the enterprising American publisher seeking information upon a topic so vitally interesting. It is gratifying to observe in this connection that a Toronto tailoring house should be singled out as the source from which the information is obtained. The rise of "Hobberlin's" big tailoring house and the leading position it occupies, its immense business, reaching three-quarters of a million dollars the present year, how it has secured such popularity, its army of operatives, plans and methods of conducting its business, also reproduction of its "ads," are all matters that form most interesting reading, and written with a dash and style that attract attention from start to finish. Copies of this cleverly written article will be sent free by addressing the advertising department of Hobberlin's, 151 Yonge-street.

hanging out. Mr. McMurray mentioned the watch hanging out, but Matthews made no reply. This was after the noise ceased. He did not think Matthews was altogether sober.

Bert Rogers, waiter at the Bristol, last saw Josephine Brimacombe alive in the kitchen of the hotel about 8 o'clock on Saturday last, in company with Helen Brisco. He served tea to a number of railroad men, "Bos" Matthews and Mr. Haines. He did not see Matthews after he left the hotel. He then served supper to Haines and Doherty, and missed Miss Brimacombe out of the kitchen. He heard nothing whatever of the sounds.

Matthews asked him, "What is the matter with the Dummy?" Maxwell replied he had no string on the Dummy. He saw Haines and Doherty later in the evening in the bar, but with Matthews.

Went to Investigate.

McMurray, recalled, told the coroner that Murphy and one Smith went up stairs to investigate the source of the noise, and they found it coming from the east side of the house.

Murphy, recalled, could not tell just where the noise came from. The noise was to the left, but he was not able to determine just what it was.

A. G. Brown was called from the jury box, and testified to being in the hotel on the Saturday evening. He saw Matthews in the hall. Matthews appeared to be drunk, and he saw Matthews thought he saw something on Matthews' coat like vomit.

Don Haines testified to seeing Matthews at the Bristol on the Saturday evening. He added that blood was noticed coming from the left nostril.

Lorenzo McDonald, hostler at the hotel, heard a noise once or twice about 8.30 on the night in question. He could not tell just where it came from. It sounded like a choke. He listened at the door, but paid no attention and went to bed. When he last saw Miss Brimacombe, she was in the kitchen, and Henry Matthews, Jr., was with her.

Matthews Testifies.

Henry I. Matthews, Jr., the chief witness in the inquest, was called after 11.30. He visited the hotel in the afternoon, had supper there, and went from the table into the kitchen for a drink of water. He saw McDonald, the hostler, and a woman whom he did not know. He saw no other person there. He saw no one from the dining room, back again for more water and up the hall stairs.

He never saw Miss Brimacombe at the time. He thought she was in the kitchen when he left. He went upstairs to reach the closet, but could not find it. He was upstairs long enough to look into the rooms, and came downstairs about 8 o'clock.

Replying to Mr. Kerr, who asked if he denied hearing any sound upstairs, and declared he saw no person at all upstairs, or he would have asked for the inquest. He did not think he was upstairs more than five minutes. When he came downstairs he saw three or four men standing at the bottom, although he did not recognize any of them. He denied the presence of any vomit stains on his clothing.

Continuing, Matthews said he had been drinking whiskey and thought he was somewhat under the influence of liquor. If there had been any noises upstairs at the time he would have heard them. He did not know Josephine Brimacombe, particularly, but a friend had heard her. He could not say whether he gesticulated to her when in the kitchen.

MAN MANGLED BY TRAIN POST-MORTEM ORDERED

Because Coroner R. R. Hopkins of West Toronto believes that it is necessary to hold a post-mortem examination upon the remains of a man who died a violent death after both legs had been amputated at the hips, the body of John A. McEachern, which was yesterday sent to London, Ont., for burial upon the certificate of Dr. Rice, who attended him at the hospital, is being brought back to Toronto for a post-mortem examination.

McEachern was the G. T. R. station foreman who was struck down by a freight engine at the west end of the Wednesday morning, when he jumped in front of it to avoid an approaching passenger train.

At 11 o'clock yesterday morning Dr. H. Mason appeared at the hospital to perform the post-mortem, but the body had been removed upon Dr. Rice's order by Ryan & Sons, undertakers, and was later sent to London, Ont., for burial in the afternoon. Coroner Hopkins immediately ordered a post-mortem examination upon him that this would be a great grief to the relatives. The inquest will be continued at the morgue directly after lunch, however, Mr. Buchanan said he was not "acting upon" your suggestion of a few days ago, I am now in a position to produce Mr. Tate.

LOANED HIS NAME AND LOST A CHEQUE

The Northern gravel road deal is the second of a half a score of allegations that have been made involving Buchanan. The third will be heard in Hamilton Saturday morning, when the Sawyer-Massey Company will be asked to produce all their books, accounts and cheques for examination in the hope of clearing up a statement that Buchanan or others received $100,000, or thereabouts, from the company, on the promise that Oxford County would buy all its road-making machinery from them. In that year the county bought about $50,000 worth of goods from the firm, it is said, and much of it is in dispute.

Tate on the Stand.

Tate looked scared when he took the stand. His name, he said, was Robert Tate and he lived at 192 Dowling-avenue, being employed by the Sun and Hastings Savings and Loan Co. The fact has not yet been presented in evidence. Detective McShile interviewed him on May 2 last, and he denied any knowledge of the case. This will be sworn to later.

"Why didn't you communicate with the authorities that you were available if necessary?" asked Mr. Johnston. "You saw that you were thought a myth; you saw that you were desired here; you saw that they had searched the directories and for two weeks you knew that you were wanted?"—"Yes."

"Expecting a subpoena or a message, why didn't you disclose yourself?"—"I don't know why. I was simply waiting to be asked to come up. I had no way of knowing I was wanted except from the papers."

"Was Buchanan the reason?" pressed the counsel.

"He was not; so far as instructions. I was here at the time it came up in the council." He had had no talk with Buchanan since this investigation started except two or three months ago and last night over the phone.

"From the time you signed that agreement to buy the property up to the present, what talks have you had with Buchanan?"

Lack of Knowledge.

"I've talked to him many times, but I don't know what about. This deal may have been mentioned. But I can't tell of a single thing."

"Who introduced you?"—"I don't remember."

"When did you meet him first?"—"I have no idea."

"When was it—summer, spring or fall?"—"I can't tell."

"What was your knowledge of the County of Oxford?"—"I have no knowledge of it."

"Have you ever been in the county except at the instance of Buchanan?"—"Yes, at St. Mary's in Oxford and I've also been in Brantford."

He admitted he never was in the county until he came up last September and never saw a gravel road expert, the one between Ingersoll and Woodstock. He didn't know anything of toll roads and would never have bought a toll road in Oxford except that it was put in his name.

"What was your name?"—"I wouldn't like to say."

Loaned His Name.

"Let me suggest, it was M. T. Buchanan. Is that so?"—"I can't say."

"When you only lent your name?"—"Yes."

"And never got a dollar out of it?"—"Not a dollar."

"Now did you get mixed up in this thing?"—"I don't know."

"You didn't get the money, you say. Who did?"—"I presume it was brought to my office to be given to Mr. Mills, and he did not give it to me."

Witness said he couldn't tell where he got the cheque, but when Mr. Johnston threatened that he might get in trouble if he didn't tell the truth, he thought of the money he was to receive. "If I were a man of business, I suppose you would be sure you did."

"Yes."

"Did you fix the price of this road?"—"I think the names Buchanan."

Mr. Johnston said, "Now, witness, you see you are making a mess of this. Try and give us something straight. Now, perhaps we can get at it in another way. Who took you to the law office to execute the deed?"—"Buchanan."

"Did you have any papers in your possession at all?"—"I don't remember."

"I suppose if you had, you would have remembered?"—"No answer."

"Come! Was it Mills?"—"No."

"Then, who else was there?"—"Mr. Buchanan."

Mr. Johnston warned out of witness the fact that he had talked with Buchanan's son to-day.

"And were you told it was best not to have much to say?"—"No."

"What were you told?"—"No answer."

"Now, witness, I am going to give you fair warning that if you are not more frank with me I shall ask his honor to commit you to the common jail. Was not Buchanan the man who got you to take this deed in your name?"—"It may have been."

Just to Oblige.

"You entered that transaction to oblige a friend, didn't you?"—"Yes."

"And that friend was M. T. Buchanan?"—"I think so."

"You must know!" urged Mr. Johnston, while Judge Snider said, "Witness you must answer or I shall have to take steps to make you."

"Yes, it was M. Buchanan," came the reply.

"Then," asked the counsel, "to settle up the question as to who got the money and where it disappeared from your possession, where do you say?"—"I suppose to a friend."

"Wasn't that friend Buchanan?"—"I have always thought so."

"When you swear you did not give it to M. T. Buchanan, or that it did not reach his hands?"—"It disappeared on the street."

"To whom did you give the money?"—"No answer."

"Let me suggest: who was with you at the time?"—"I don't know who else could have been there but Mr. Buchanan."

"Buchanan was waiting for you on the street; Buchanan got the money?"—"I believe that was the way."

Makes Some Retractions.

When Mr. Buchanan had his innings and asked witness what it was that put the property in his name, witness supposed that he was acting for Mills.

"Why did you let Mr. Johnston lead you to say it was me; that I was the whole moving spirit?"—"I don't know."

"Did I ever make any arrangement with you as to putting that road in your name?"—"None whatever."

"Was I ever an intimate with you as Mills was?"—"No."

"You knew that Mr. Mills got you to put that road in your name?"—"I think so."

Further, he got witness to say that when he had conversation with Mills, Buchanan was not present, and Mills had never told witness that he was employed by Buchanan. Then Buchanan wanted witness to contradict that he was with him when he got the money and lost it on the street. Witness was not sure that he wasn't with Mills when he missed the money, but thought it was with his questioner.

Alfred Tate stated in his evidence that he had had no conversation with Mr. Buchanan to-day before coming into the witness box, Detective Timely has made out a report that he had dinner with Buchanan just before in the Buckingham Hotel.

Robert McIntosh, county treasurer, was probed for allegations concerning how he got his appointment. Mr. Johnston got him to admit that he had canvassed for the office for a few years and had asked six well-known men to work for him, amongst whom he named Buchanan and Alex. Muter, who refused to support him. The council record were gone into, and showed that on Jan. 27, 1906, at an afternoon session H. B. Brown was accepted and a successor appointed forthwith. McIntosh got the job in a half hour after Brown's resignation was honored. The office, he admitted, was worth $1200.

A Serious Charge.

Lillian Pink, 24 Mutual-street, was arrested last night by a policeman upon a warrant charging her with permitting the defilement of two girls upon her premises. The first of the girls is a blonde named Crow, a year older than the girl named Pink, and the other a girl named Crow, a year older. Mrs. Pink was tried and acquitted a short time ago on a similar charge. She was then living in Trinity-square.

but he denied giving any security or paying any money and he did not know of an agreement being drawn up.

Witness swore that all his salary cheques were put into the bank. "I'm not going to accuse you of doing any such foolish thing as giving anybody a cheque for your office, but I want to find out how your salary was made out," said Mr. Johnston, after he had examined witness' bank book and couldn't find a consecutive deposit.

"Well, the book don't show every dollar I got. I may have given a man a cheque for half my salary and deposited a cheque for the balance."

"I will take you, Mr. McIntosh, next Wednesday, and ask you to explain what you did with your salary or any other money. You have stated some circumstances that throw some doubt on the transaction. I'm not saying that you have done anything wrong, but it requires some explanation," said counsel.

CAR STRUCK A BUGGY

Three Women Thrown Into Street and Injured.

What might have been a serious accident last night took place on Roncesvalles-avenue, when a street car struck a buggy occupied by three women.

Mrs. Gourley and her two daughters, Miss Gourley and Mrs. McClelland, of 296 Weston-road, were crossing Roncesvalles-avenue between Pearson and Galley-avenues, when car No. 460, in charge of Conductor J. J. Lewis and Motorman Swank, struck the buggy, threw out the occupants, and started a runaway.

They were crossing the car tracks westward behind a northbound car when they were struck by one going south which they could not see. Dr. W. S. Scheek, 190 Roncesvalles-avenue was called. All were badly shaken up and bruised. Miss Gourley had her face badly injured and probably her nose is broken. They were taken home by J. M. Cowan, the horse and buggy smashed buggy being left in charge of W. J. Greenway, 57 West-avenue.

360 LIVES LOST.

BOLTON, Eng., Dec. 22.—The disaster at the Little Bhammery, which was wrecked by an explosion followed by fire yesterday, is greater than at first thought. It is probable that at least 360 lives were lost.

VERDICT WAS FAIR.

LONDON, Dec. 22.—The London morning newspapers, while editorially sympathetic with the officers convicted at Leipsic, take the reasonable view that Captain Trench and Lieut. Brandon had an admirably fair trial, and that their sentence was not excessive.

CHRISTMAS ATTRACTIONS.

Many attempts have been made to throw down the credit system, and in some cases they may have had justification. But when there is a straight deal between the merchant and the public, all objections are overcome. D. Morrison of 218 West Queen-street presents a perfectly square proposition to the large numbers who would otherwise find it difficult to carry out their Christmas obligations. All that is needed is that you should come before Christmas and take advantage of his season's offerings. These will be found fully displayed in their advertisement to which public attention is directed.

GRAVE OPENED, BODY GONE JARVIS 'MYSTERY' CLEARED

JARVIS, Ont., Dec. 22.—This morning Provincial Detective Reburn, formally charged John McSorley, locally known as "Doc" McSorley, with opening the grave of Matthew Johnston, removing the body, and shipping it to Montreal. The accused was then taken by the officer to Cayuga, where he was charged before Mr. Clyde J. F. with the offences, and remanded for a week.

The grave was opened this morning and the body found to have been removed from the casket. The rough wooden box containing the coffin had been chiseled thru about two feet down from the head. The cover of the casket itself was broken thru the corpse evidently being dragged thru this.

The sexton of the cemetery, who dug Johnston's grave, buried him and filled it in, officiated at the opening this afternoon. He claims that McSorley hung around after the funeral and watched him fill in the grave, although acting in a manner to attract the attention of the sexton.

Mrs. Smithson of Jarvis declared positively that she saw John McSorley enter the Presbyterian Cemetery late in November with a wheelbarrow, but did not see him come out.

BOTH LEGS BROKEN Youth Badly Injured by Fall in Boarding Can.

Harold Cooper, 29 years, 651 Papineau-avenue, employed at H. & A. Saunders, King and John-streets, is in St. Michael's Hospital in a serious condition. Coming from his work at 6 o'clock last night, he attempted to board a moving car at King and John-streets. He jumped for the motor, but missed his hold, and was struck by the trailer. Both legs were severely lacerated and broken above the knees.
