BOY SCOUT WORK SHOWS GROWTH IN THE LAST YEAR

It was decided at the annual meeting of the provincial Boy Scouts' Association held at Bond's last night, to open provincial headquarters in St. John within the next few weeks.

H. O. Eamans, assistant provincial commissioner, in his report, referred to the appointment of Prof. Stiles of Fredericton, who was provincial commissioner, to a wider field in the Boy Scout movement in the dominion. The training camp at Chipman, last summer, had an attendance of 100 per cent. larger than in 1918. A great deal of work had been done in developing all around scouts and, as a result, 634 badges were awarded in 1919, as compared with 197 in 1918. Last year thirty-two troops, with an enrollment of 838, were reported, as compared with twenty-nine with 713 members in 1918. There were fifty-eight officers, as compared with thirty-nine the previous year.

As the result of the work done in war service by the boys, in the victory loan campaign, thrift stamp campaign, Red Cross work, etc., eighty-two war service badges were issued.

The St. John Ambulance first aid competition for Boy Scouts and Cadets was won by the scouts, who got first and second places, St. John's, West St. John, winning first and Trinity, St. John, second.

Committees were appointed to deal with the following questions: Suitable winter uniform, provincial emblem (cloth badge), better quality of uniform and equipment and a better distribution of it.

Something will be done with regard to more definite registration of troops at provincial headquarters and a certificate in the form of a charter will be issued.

A motion was passed expressing the appreciation of the council for the practical interest taken in the Boy Scout movement by the St. John Commercial Club.

The following officers were elected: Provincial president, S. E. Elkin; provincial commissioner, A. C. Skelton; assistant provincial commissioner, H. O. Eamans; vice-presidents, R. D. Paterson, St. John; J. B. Tothill, Fredericton; J. P. Atherton, Sussex; provincial secretary, J. W. Hewitson; provincial treasurer, E. H. Turnbull; executive committee, the officers and A. M. Belding, F. W. Daniel, J. A. Tilton, C. H. Peters, T. E. Simpson, Rev. J. S. Gregg, J. M. Ross, R. S. Ingelton and all the district commissioners throughout the province.

A. C. Skelton was chairman of the evening.

Ross Matter Settled.

Ottawa, Jan. 22.—The government, acting on the advice of its council, Messrs. Tilley and Meredith, of Toronto, has finally settled for two million dollars the claim of Sir Charles Ross for compensation for the expropriation of his rifle factory and plant at Quebec, under the War Measures Act in March of 1917.

REV. DR. BOYLE GUEST OF STUDENTS OF LAW SCHOOL

Rev. Dr. J. Stange Boyle, president of King's College University, was the guest of honor at a banquet given last evening at the Chocolate Shop by the students' society of King's College Law School. Several members of the faculty and about thirty-five students were present at the function, which was presided over by the president of the students' society, F. W. Bartlett. After a delicious dinner had been served, the chairman introduced the guest of the evening.

Rev. Dr. Boyle, in his opening remarks, expressed his pleasure at being able to partake of the hospitality of the law students of the university. He had not decided to deliver a lecture. He had come mainly to establish personal relations between the law branch of the university and the parent university at Windsor. He thought that the large attendance at the school, thirty-five or thirty-six, augured well for the future of the college as a whole. He had just received a check for $300 for the university from a member of the faculty of the law school, which in itself would make him glad he had visited St. John.

He thought that a topic which would be of interest to the students was that of reconstruction. They were in the midst of a new era in the world's development, and he doubted if the world ever again would go through such a cataclysm as it had been through during the last five years. He thought the word reconstruction should be construction, for the very foundations had been destroyed and everything would have to be built from the very bottom.

All the nations of the world were once more in harmony with Germany, with the exception of the United States, but in spite of the peace that had been declared, people sought in vain for fruits of peace, and humanity had not yet seen the better world which preachers had said would be the result of the great war. During the last fifteen months there had been more hardships and distress to a great portion of the world than there had been during the war. Many were not very hopeful and he himself was among them. People were more extravagant than ever before. The economic condition had not been improved, and it was necessary to be very serious minded about the future of the race. Great material and industrial development had been prophesied, but if they are to look only for such profits as the result of the war, the blood of the brave defenders of the empire had been shed in vain.

He did not believe that the war had come as a punishment for misdeeds, but he hoped that a renewed moral and spiritual type of endeavor would be one of the results of it. He thought the war had renewed and strengthened the sense of duty which was supposed to be one of the attributes of the Anglo-Saxon race, but which had grown lax in recent years. Another inherent Anglo-Saxon virtue, which was chivalry, had been strengthened, and the sanctity of home and sacredness of marriage which, when lost, meant the ruin of a nation—still to be strengthened if the nation were to really achieve greatness. He thought that the people of this country were in danger of losing their faith. They must try to develop these three essentials, duty, chivalry and faith.

He concluded by saying that he hoped for the time when the law school would be united geographically with the rest of the university, but that they should be united in spirit already, and he hoped to cement their relationship by intercollegiate debates.

Dr. J. R. Campbell moved a vote of thanks to the speaker and expressed to the chairman the regrets of the dean, Chief Justice H. A. McKeown, who was unavoidably absent.

E. J. Chambers seconded the motion and a vote of thanks was tendered by the president, Judge J. R. Armstrong, Dr. W. W. White, J. F. H. Teed, and J. Pollard Lewis, all members of the faculty, expressed their appreciation of Dr. Boyle's address, and thanks to the student body for the excellent dinner of which they had partaken.

What is Happening in England Today? What is Europe Doing?

Canada for the last five years was in closest touch with England and Europe. Thousands of letters going to every home in the land reached the country weekly giving first hand information of what was going on abroad.

The return of Canada's fighting sons home has cut off this intimate relationship.

The need for something to fill the gap is acutely felt.
