

The Girl Who Can't Forget

By RUTH CAMERON

CALL her "The Girl Who Can't Forget," but that doesn't mean that she never forgets anything. On the contrary, there are many things which she forgets with the greatest facility, as for instance, when her mother wants her to do some little errand in town; but there is one thing she most emphatically cannot forget for one instant, and that is herself.

No matter what she is doing or where she is, no matter how powerful are the other attractions which one might reasonably expect to distract her attention, she keeps right on thinking of herself and how she is appearing and impressing in her mind's eye she is continually upon a stage, and the rest of the world is continually in the auditorium.

For instance, a wonderful new baby, the first born of one of her girl friends, is being displayed to her and half a dozen others. Apparently she is the most devoted and delighted of them all. She kneels at the baby's feet and goes into raptures over his adorable hands; she coos to him most musically, and holds out her arms to him, and pleads to be allowed to hold him just an instant. One would think that she had quite forgotten herself in her delight over the baby as a matter of fact she isn't thinking of the baby at all—except as an actor thinks of his part.

On the contrary, she is thinking of HERSELF and how sweet her pose of baby lover must seem, and she is wondering if the men in the party do not notice how deftly she handles the baby and how prettily she enthuses over him. She goes to an entertainment, and when it is over she rushes up to congratulate the committee or the performers. Apparently she is in her proper place. In reality, the congratulations are a very minor matter with her. She is thinking primarily of how pretty she delivers them and how sweet everyone must think her because she always remembers to do these thoughtful little things.

When she sits among the audience at a play or entertainment, she appears to be absorbed in what is going on upon the stage, and her enthusiastic and enthusiastic comments upon it to her companions. Surely this time she has forgotten herself! Don't you believe it. All the time she is wondering if that good-looking man behind her is admiring her and hears her witty comments. You see, she is "The Girl Who Can't Forget."

"You will be happier in life," says some wise person, "if you are willing to give up your soul for a part in the great drama of the universe than you are willing to give up your soul for a part in the great drama of the stage of the time. That's just human nature. But to attempt to pre-empt that desirable point every moment of one's existence, and to fancy one is doing it, is a very foolish thing. Don't do it if you want to be happy or if you want to be loved. Don't be a GIRL (or man) WHO CAN'T FORGET."

Flirting and Gossip Serious Matters in German Garrison Towns—An Italian Separation Case

(Copyright, 1912, by the Brentwood Company)

Flirting and malicious gossip are dealt with in a very effective and sensible fashion in the German army. The following instance will go to prove what I have always stated in these letters—that Emperor William has done more than any other sovereign in Europe to reduce duelling to a minimum.

Count Holck, lieutenant of the 3rd Lancers of the Guard, and champion gentleman-rider of the German military, is mentioned with his regiment in Potsdam, has spent much of his time, being a gay bachelor, under the roof of his most intimate friend and comrade, Lieut. von Hoberg, of the same corps.

Hoberg is married to an extremely pretty woman, daughter of Baron von Rheinhausen, now governor of the Rhine province and formerly minister of marine, Potsdam, like other garrison towns, is a hot-bed of unkindly gossip; and in course of time, the talk about the alleged infatuation of Holck for his friend's wife became so general that the regimental authorities were obliged, in the interest of both officers concerned, to take notice of it.

A court of honor being summoned, to debate whether or no there was any necessity of compelling von Hoberg to challenge Count Holck and thus relieve himself of the imputation placed upon him by the gossips, after careful investigation came to the unanimous conclusion that there was not the slightest foundation for the evil rumor and that Holck was innocent of any disloyalty towards his most intimate friend and comrade. The report of the court of honor was submitted to the emperor, who, while approving its verdict, nevertheless considered that, in view of the amount of talk that had occurred, it would be well to transfer Count Holck for a time to Metz, where he has been assigned to duty with the 11th Regiment of dragoons, while Lieutenant von Hoberg has been given a temporary post at the military school of telegraphy and electricity in Berlin.

It will be seen that not only German army officers, but also their wives are subjected to the scrutiny of a court of honor, composed of the officers of the regiment, which is considered as a large and united family—not that the officers' wives are ever directly answerable to the court, which would not dream of summoning a woman to appear before it, but if one of the ladies of the regiment misconducts herself, the husband is very apt to suffer at her hands, and to have to bring home to him that, owing to his wife's behavior, her association with the regiment has become intolerable. He then has the alternative of resigning his commission or of ridding the regiment of his wife. Flirtation, under the circumstances, is attended by a good deal of risk.

Not a Bourbon Divorce It is hardly fair to describe the sensation suit for separation which has just been decided in Rome in favor of Count Rocca Gaglielma, as a Bourbon divorce for, in the first place, there is no such thing as a divorce in Italy, and, secondly, the count is only a Bourbon by the left hand, so to speak. The count's mother is an American girl, Miss Mary Hamel, whose marriage to the late Prince Louis of Bourbon, Count d'Aquila, took place in New York some forty-three years ago. Prince Louis was the son of the first Count d'Aquila, uncle of the last King of Naples and Princess Januaria of Brazil, sister of the last emperor of that country.

The Weak, Lame, Aching Back Comes From The Kidneys.

Those who have never been troubled with kidney trouble do not know the suffering and misery which afflicted sufferers undergo.

On the first sign of backache Doan's Kidney Pills should be taken immediately so as to get rid of the cause of the trouble.

They go right to the seat of the trouble, heal the delicate membranes of the kidneys and make their action regular and natural.

Mrs. Joseph Throop, Upper Point de Bute, N.S. writes: "I cannot speak too well of Doan's Kidney Pills. For two years I was so tired life was a burden, and I got up more tired than when I went to bed, and my back was so lame I could hardly straighten up. I took different kinds of medicine, but none of them did me any good until a friend advised me to try Doan's Kidney Pills. I did so, and to-day I don't know what it is to be tired, and my lame back is all gone. I can recommend them to all persons suffering with lame back and that terrible feeling."

children by Miss Hamel, Count Louis Rocca Gaglielma, and a sister, married to an Englishman named William Freeman.

The late King Louis had a brother, Philip of Bourbon, and other relatives of old Princess Januaria, cohabited the will, on the ground that the king's brother and children were merely morganatic; and the latter were obliged to sustain no less than a princely life in Italy. It was not until before they could secure possession of their imperial grandmother's large bequest.

Prince Louis was declining years with his daughter and English son-in-law, on the Riviera, where they were entertained at times by Queen Victoria, who ever she visited the South of France. Count Rocca Gaglielma was allowed by the late King to enter the Italian army, and until recently held a captain's commission in a crack cavalry regiment. He was treated by the king with particular favor and it was largely owing to this that he succeeded in winning the hand of the sole heiress of a very rich German merchant named Weiss, established in Rome, and who, for his services as unpaid counsel general of Portugal, received the Portuguese title of Count Valancia.

Some time ago she eloped with a painter named Campagna, and when she resisted all entreaties to return to her husband and her two children, declaring that she was determined to live with the painter, he instituted a suit for judicial separation, which has now been granted to him. Purely by courtesy, and without the slightest right, the Count and Countess had been accorded by the Roman prince and Princess of Bourbon; and that is why the news of the separation has been announced as that of a "Royal Bourbon case celebre."

This is, indeed, an extraordinary case, for, as a general rule, Roman "Society," by which I mean the highest nobility, is what is called, "exclusive." To be presented at court there, in no way means that such a person belongs to the few, who from days almost immemorial, have formed the nucleus of the real inner set. In latter years, one or two of the men belonging to the ancient patriciate, and who until then had possessed pedigrees without a flaw or a mesalliance, have broken through the rules by marrying women with no pretensions whatsoever to "birth." This has not been accomplished without a great deal of protestation on the part of the other members of the before-mentioned "patriciate," who, in spite of all tempting and alluring possibilities of residing their sentences on, have stood firm, even when poor, and have scorned to change the old order of affairs; also these do not accept "titles of accommodation" as passeports.

RHEUMATISM AND LUMBAGO

If you have any doubt as to the value of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills as a means of regulating the kidneys and thereby curing rheumatism and lumbago, you will find here the proof of what was accomplished in one case.

Mr. John Bellard, carpenter, Hanmer, Ont., writes: "I was entirely cured of kidney disease and rheumatism by the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. For about twelve years I was troubled with the kidneys and suffered a great deal from rheumatism and lumbago. I consulted three different doctors, and as they failed to cure me, I began the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. Because a friend of mine had been cured by their use, I bought a box, and I have used ten boxes, and was entirely cured over a year ago. I can recommend Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills as the best cure for kidney disease, rheumatism, and lumbago."

Earth Falling on Coffin Revives Man in Trance Who is Being Buried Alive

Vienna, June 7.—A wealthy Polish landowner named Masny had a narrow escape from being buried alive at Zuravica, in Galicia. He had fallen down in a fit, and as there is no doctor in the neighborhood a veterinary surgeon was called in and pronounced him dead, and gave a certificate of death from apoplexy. A large number of his relatives were present at the funeral and, in accordance with the local custom, after the coffin had been lowered into the grave and the final blessing given by the priest, they began themselves to shovel in the first spadeful of earth.

This apparently roared the supposed dead man from his trance, for faint cries for help were heard from the coffin. Most of the bystanders ran away in a panic, but the more scrupulous helped the priest to open the coffin. Masny was quite conscious, and after he had been given a restorative and been helped out of the coffin, was able to walk home with a borrowed overcoat over his grave clothes.

LOCOMOTOR ATAXIA

When your nervous system becomes so thoroughly exhausted that you cannot control the movements of your legs, you have what is known as locomotor ataxia, a form of paralysis. Mrs. T. F. Tweedie, Brighton, Ont., writes: "For years I was troubled with the stomach and have always been of a nervous temperament. The death of my husband was a great shock to me, and a few months later I was prostrated by nervous trouble. Locomotor ataxia developed later, and I was in a bad condition. I took treatment from different doctors, but did not gain until I began the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. When I had used five boxes I was so fully restored that I was like a different person. I am sure that the Nerve Food is a good medicine and have told many people about the remarkable way in which it has restored my health."

PROCEEDINGS OF WOMEN'S METHODIST CONVENTION

Woodstock, June 5.—The second day of the W. M. S. convention in this town was fine and warm. More delegates have arrived, making about 80.

The sessions throughout the day have been of a most interesting character. The reports of the different organizers showed that almost without exception there had been an increase in membership and in funds.

In the St. John district there are eighteen auxiliaries, having a membership of 578. The membership of circles and bands is 362. During the year 115 new members have been enrolled in this district and a total amount raised in St. John district of $2,908.85, being an increase of $58.71 over last year. The banner auxiliary in mite box offering was Portland street church, which gave in mite boxes $150.80.

An interesting paper was read by Mrs. S. H. Gronlund, of St. John on "Our Indian Hospitals," and Mrs. J. K. Curtis of Sackville, read a paper on "Foreign Mission Work in Our Cities." During the session readings were received from Mrs. J. D. Chipman, now residing in Toronto, but who has been president of the branch for eighteen years.

SACKVILLE METHODIST DISTRICT

The annual meeting of the Methodists of the Sackville district was held in the Central Methodist church yesterday. Rev. George Steel was elected chairman in place of Rev. M. H. Knight, who has been transferred to the Nova Scotia conference. The vote on union in the district stands 1919 for and 185 against. Sunday school reports show an increase of 34 scholars. Rev. W. G. Lane was appointed missionary secretary. A resolution of sympathy and a grant of $100 were tendered Rev. J. B. Chapman.
