never see my boy alive again." Roy T. Northrup, the ill-fated boy, was a lad of less than 17 years. He had been working about six weeks as pantry boy on the Crystal Stream, of which his father was mate. Previous to that time he worked in Murray & Gregory's mill. He worked last summer as pantry boy on the Beatrice Waring, and was so taken up with the job that he availed himself of the first opportunity to get the same kind of employment this summer and was well having joined the garrison there last

Mrs. Northrup knows well the locality where the boy was bathing, and says that there is one place where for a considerable distance along the shore one steps off suddenly from the shallow into the deep water. Unfortunately the boy was unable to swim and the mother fears that he has been bathing alone and accidentally got into water too deep for him. The Northrup family came originaly from Thornetown, about eight miles this side of Cole's Island. They have been livink in north end for about a year and a half. The family consisted originally of ten children-six boys and four girls. The two oldest girls work in the city and had not seen their brother for two or three weeks. The oldest brother is now at Quebec,

CRISIS STILL TO COME IN PEACE NEGOTIATIONS.

Rapid Progress Was Made at Yesterday's Session, and Vital Points Will Probably be Dealt With Today---Three Articles Disposed Of.

PORTSMOUTH, N. H., Aug. 14.- and they are included in the protocols racers for the Canada cup faced a strong breeze when they started this made with the peace negotiations tothe wind blew from the day three of the twelve articles which It may be reached tomorrow, as the cession of Sakhalin comes fifth in the list. The three "articles," as they are officially designated in the brief communications authorized to be given to the press, which were disposed of oday, are as follows: First-Russia's recognition of Japan's "preponderating influence" and special position in Korea, which Russia henceforth agrees is outside of her sphere of influence, Japan binding herself to recognize the suzerainty of the reigning family but with the right to give advice and assistance to improve the civil administration of the empire. Second-Mutual obligation to evacuate Manchuria and to surrender all privileges in that province, mutual obligation to respect the territorial integrity of China and to maintain the principle of equal opportunity for the ommerce and industry of all natio n that province (open door). Third-The cession to China of the Chinese eastern railroad from Harbin

COULD NOT ACCEPT.

There never was any question about he acceptance on the part of M. Witte of these "articles." The first two cover in more emphatic form the contentions of Japan in the diplomatic struggle which preceded hostilities. The third is a natural consequence of rerailroad, the building of which cost Russia an immense sum, estimated by some at between $100,000,000 and $200,-000,000, is to China. Japan and China, selves the method by which the former is to be remunerated, and through this financial operation Japan might have a very considerable portion of her the property of the Russo-Chinese Bank, although built by government money advanced through the bank, and since its completion, operated, managed and policed by the Russian government. Japan cannot take the railroad herself. To place herself in Russia's shoes regarding the railroad would be militarily to control the destinies of the three provinces of Man-churia which she has promised to return to China. But Japan is entitled to reimbursement for the expense to which she has been put in restoring the railroad below the present position of Linevitch's army, rebuilding the bridges and narrowing the gauge. If China could not find money, some other power or powers might do so and the road would become hypothecated to the powers which advanced the money, as other Chinese roads are to those which advanced the money for their construction. It was M. Witte himself who organized the Rus so-Cinese Bank in 1895, and who has always been considered the real organizer of the Chinese Eastern Com-proceedings the first great stumbling block to a treaty of peace should be reached, as after Port Arthur and the lease of Liao Tung, which are included course. in article five, and which M. Witte is undoubtedly prepared with slight modifications to accept, comes article six -the cession of Sakhalin. But it is by no means pertain that when this obstacle is reached it will not be post-poned until all the articles upon which agreement is easy or possible are disposed of. If this course is followed, and the Associated Press has high authority for the opinion that it will be, it will indicate a disposition to put off the real struggle to the very last and the longer the conference endures the brighter the prospects of a treaty MacDougall, late auditor general and are likely to become, "Every day as follows:

It is, however, significan that Mr. Sato, while specifically stating that he did not speak officially, gave it as his opinion that each power had now bound itself to the articles agreed to. In the discussion of the second article (covering the evacuation of Manchuria) it is positively stated that Russia won a victory Baron Komura, so it is declared, wanted to limit the obligation to evacuate Manchuria and to surrender special privileges in the province to Russia whereas M. Witte contended that the obligation for evacuation and the surrender of special privileges should be mutual and that the evacuation of the troops should take place concurrently. M. Witte is said to have contended that he was defending not only the interests of Russia but of all the neutral powers. On the other hand the Japanese claim not only that they did not resist the provision for simultaneous evacuation by the troops of both countries, but the distinct credit for the strong stipulations regarding the preservation of the territorial integrity of China. A Japanese authority said to the Associated Press to-night: "The integrity of China is assured if the treaty of Washington is signed as Japan has insisted that this point be set forth in language that can Japan's policy which on this subject has always been in line with the Hay doctrine, will find a more vigorous ex-pression in the treaty of Washington that she only asked that Manchuris remain for a certain period under Japanese control. Only enough time is desired to enable the armies of Japan to evacuate the province, and by the time this evacuation is accomplis it is expected China will have estab-
