

FOX TELLS BOND'S GIRLS THAT HE IS MOBILIZING BEEF CATTLE FOR BOYS IN THE TRENCHES

The Fugitive Says He is Indiscreet in Telling the Girls Who Serve Him Food so Much About Himself, But He Depends on a Psychological Weakness of Women and Girls.

If He is Captured by a Woman or Girl He Will Give Her a Free Taxi-Cab Ride Around the City to Pick Up the Plunder She Should Get.

There is one place in this town where my personal description has become so familiar that I am surprised that at least one of the bunch of charming young ladies has not already woken up.

It is with a good deal of doubt as to the safety of going in and out of there day by day that I repeat my calls. It is with apprehension that some of these most interesting girls will "tumble to my character" each time I go back there. Yet as the moth is fascinated by the wavering flame of the candle, as the innocent bird ventures ever nearer and nearer to the sparkle of the bonny eyes in the grass—so it seems that when I return day by day it is because of the fascination that draws me hither. At times I go reckless. I think that they cannot know me now. As yet nobody has laid the charge of fugitive against me. And that is one reason, perhaps, that I feel so sure I will get out all right every time I go into Bond's restaurant where those lovely girls all show the interest they take in me.

It was the first place where I took breakfast when in the course of this pursuit which I have been leading through the eastern and Maritime provinces since early in January, I finally landed in St. John.

That morning, when Peter Brown helped me out of the sleeping car and bade me to make a successful chase and I found my way to the head of King street, I remember quite well.

I was one of the "early birds" to take a seat at a table on the second floor at Bond's restaurant.

Miss Campbell, I believe, is the name of the little lady who smilingly accepted my order. Thus it has gone on day after day since then. One meal at least each day. There was the young woman who received my money at the head of the stairs. At times she has taken my order. Then there is another, short and slender, with a pleasing face that looks at me as though she might have "her suspicion," but who says nothing. How can I describe her? She is not quite as tall as Miss Campbell who has darker eyes and hair than she has. If I am not mixed up in the personalities of these girls. Who can blame me if I get mixed up in that way, coming to me as a stranger, and quite susceptible to the fascinating glances of the fair sex.

However, there are three different ones who have waited on me and I have given up all natural inclination to have any preference for any one of them, since all of them treat me with pleasing consideration—all are patient with me when I find difficulty in deciding what to select for the meal.

In the store below I surely have given some broad hints and now that I may be clearing up the doubts that I think some of the girls have been nursing in their minds, it becomes plain that after all this I must act with greater caution if I go back there. But shall I return? Who can tell, if not I. And I can't for a whim is likely to move me in any direction.

There are two girls in the store on the main floor who have taken my cash when I had occasion to make purchases there. One has darker eyes and hair than the other, whose tendency of complexion and color of hair is slightly of the blonde.

The first one is the girl whose acquaintance I am cultivating for she was my first choice. I have wondered at times if the slender gold ring she wears means anything. Well, I haven't gone so far as to give me any right or desire to make that inquiry. I know she is patriotic because she wears a maple leaf brooch.

But I'll tell you of the nice little tale I wove for her. I told her that I am "mobilizing beef cattle for the boys in the trenches." And I half mistrust she thinks I am a hero, for every time I go in there and give her a Chesterfield bow she drops all other work and very sweetly inquires as to what I would like to buy. Of course I buy candy which I munch on while watching the pictures—and the vaudeville I am so fond of.

FOX THE FUGITIVE.
Reflecting Over the Enormity of His Sins.

Of course I wouldn't ask her name. But one day I got confidential and handed her "a clue to the Fugitive." I told her that my name is "Wurrie."

"But I should worry," I added in a dapper manner, and we both laughed. If I can call her a good girl or mine that is all I ask. I am sure she could find use for the money that I am using up at the risk of my "undoing."

For the money that is stacked up at the risk of my "undoing."

Indeed, I should play no favorite with any of them at Bond's. When a capture comes as it will eventually—though I hope in a far distant day—it would please me to fall into the hands of any one of Bond's entertaining and business-doing girls and I shall hope that they will be armed with every proposition that offers to yield money for my capture. I am speaking to all women and girls without fear or favor. The fifty dollars of course goes with the capture.

All other rewards depend on the capture. Everyone whose condition is complete with when the capture is made pays the distinctive reward.

The official representative of France at Halifax pays ten dollars. Now any woman or girl can carry a tin of Forest and Stream smoking tobacco in her hand bag even though she don't use it. And hand it to me. Isn't the investment worth the trouble? Then there is ten dollars from F. A. Johnson, the dry goods man, if you cut out his ad—you girls at Bond's—and from F. A. Dykeman you get $10 if you have a sales slip from his store, in your hand bag with the tobacco you should place one of the cigars A. A. McClaskey is selling, the Pharaoh or the Overland, and a box of Murad cigarettes for which the Imperial Tobacco Co. pays ten dollars. That makes five small articles to carry with you. Altogether they are inexpensive for doubtless you are frequently buying things that women wear—I am talking to girls and women—and very likely you'll find what you want at Dykeman's, so that to get his sales slip won't put you out any.

Then don't forget to say to me: "Go to Gundry's for your glasses."

Now that is not difficult, if you want to get $110.00, is it?

Everyone of those rewards come from leading business men in their lines. I am sure that they would rather pay the reward than not.

The lady or girl that gets me—for these rewards, only, mind you—will get a nice taxi-cab ride at my expense to gather in the rewards she has coming to her. And each advertiser of these rewards will be pleased to meet her.

It may be I am indiscreet in throwing out these clues. But possibly Bond's girls may say: "I never have any luck" and fall to arm themselves. That is how I will get by a great many people.

Could Not Lift Stick of Wood

Would Almost Faint From Severe Pain In Back—Doctors Could Not Get the Kidneys Set Right.

Benton, N. B., June 11.—A great many people suffer the results of deranged kidneys and do not understand the cause of trouble or the way to obtain cure. The writer of this letter suffered excruciating pains in the back and in vain his physician tried to cure him. For some reason or other his medicines did not have the desired effect.

Mr. Olt's brother was a merchant selling, among other medicines, Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, and he heard his customers telling about how they were cured of kidney derangements by their use. This led to Mr. Olt's putting them to the test, with the splendid results reported in this letter.

Mr. E. C. Olt, Benton, Carleton County, N. B., writes: "I am glad to let you know how much your medicine has done for me. I suffered from my kidneys which at one time were so bad I could not lift a stick of wood without getting on my knees, and then would almost faint from the pain in my back. I consulted a doctor about it, and he gave me some medicine, but it did not help me. My brother, who is a merchant, and carries all your medicines, advised me to try Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. I got one box, and they helped me, so I got another one, and kept on until I had taken five boxes, which cured me. I have had no trouble with my back since, and am never without Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills in the house. Last summer I also suffered from piles. I used three boxes of your Ointment, and it cured them. I can certainly recommend Dr. Chase's Pills and Ointment."

Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, one pill a dose, 25c. a box, 5 for $1.00. All dealers, or Edmondson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto.
