SAGE TEA KEEPS YOUR HAIR DARK

When Mixed with Sulphur It Brings Back Its Beautiful Lustre at Once.
Gray hair, however handsome, denotes advancing age. We all know the advantages of a youthful appearance. Your hair is your charm. It makes or mars the face. When it fades, turns gray and looks streaked, just a few applications of Sage Tea and Sulphur enhances its appearance a hundred-fold.
Don't stay gray! Look young! Either prepare the recipe at home or get from any drug store a bottle of "Wyneth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," which is merely the old-time recipe improved by the addition of two ingredients. Thousands of folks recommend this ready-to-use preparation, because it darkens the hair beautifully, besides, no one can possibly tell, as it darkens so naturally and evenly. You moisten a sponge or soft brush with it, drawing this through the hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears; after another application or two, its natural color is restored and it becomes thick, glossy and lustrous, and you appear years younger.

TRY MAGNESIA FOR STOMACH TROUBLE

It Neutralizes Stomach Acidity, Prevents Food Fermentation, Sour, Gassy Stomach and Acid Indigestion.
Doubtless if you are a sufferer from indigestion, you have already tried pepsin, bismuth, soda, charcoal, drugs and various digestive aids and you know these things will not cure your trouble—in some cases do not even give relief.
But before giving up hope and deciding you are chronic dyspeptic just try the effect of a little bisulphated magnesia—not the ordinary commercial carbonate, citrate, oxide or milk, but the pure bisulphated magnesia which you can obtain from practically any drug-store.
Take a teaspoonful of the powder or gel in either powdered or tablet form. Two compressed tablets with a little water after your next meal, and see what a difference this makes. It will instantly neutralize the dangerous, harmful acid in the stomach which now causes your food to ferment and sour, making gas, wind, flatulence, heartburn and the bloated or heavy, lumpy feeling that seems to follow most everything you eat.
You will find that provided you take a little bisulphated magnesia immediately after a meal, you can eat almost anything and enjoy it without any danger of pain or discomfort. To follow, moreover, the continued use of the bisulphated magnesia cannot injure the stomach in any way so long as there are any symptoms of acid indigestion.

WASHING WON'T RID HEAD OF DANDRUFF

The only sure way to get rid of dandruff is to dissolve it, then you destroy it entirely. To do this, get about four ounces of ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.
Do this to-night, and by morning, most if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you may have.
You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop at once, and your hair will be fluffy, lustrous, glossy, silky and soft, and look and feel a hundred times better.
You can get liquid arvon at any drug store. It is inexpensive and never fails to do the work.

THE PRIDE OF LLEWELLYN

By Mrs. E. Southworth

between life and death. The three sisters nursed her faithfully, tenderly and disinterestedly. The old priest came and prayed by her. And the captain sent every few days to inquire how the patient progressed. And still Arthur Powis did not return.
CHAPTER VII.
OMINOUS.
Illness is very expensive. The sisters found it so. Their ready money, advanced without hesitation for the purchase of necessities for the sickroom, was soon expended. And then as they did not wish to go in debt they searched for their patients purse and found it. It was such a slender little purse with such a pitiful little sum of money in it—only a few pieces of silver! The sisters felt that it would be cruel to draw upon that small fund. And, smiling and shaking their heads, they put it back. And they borrowed a few dollars from their brother, the priest.

And still Arthur Powis did not return. Some one else came however. It was the ninth day of Gladys' illness, in the midst of the forenoon. She was lying in a deep sleep that her nurses knew would prove a sleep of life unto life, or of death unto death; for this was the highest crisis of her illness and she must either sink into coma and death, or else awake to full consciousness and life. Miss Milly and Harriet who had just relieved Miss Polly and Miss Fanny, were sitting on the one on the right of the bed, and the other on the left, when the sound of wheels was heard and a carriage (stopped at the gate. Miss Milly, at once, went to the window, pulled aside the curtain and peeped out.
It was a hackney coach that stood at the gate, and a lady in deep mourning had just alighted from it. She was a tall and stately woman and she walked slowly and majestically up the avenue leading to the house.
"I suppose Polly and Jenny are as taking of a nap after their night watching; so I had better go down and see who this visitor is and what she wants," whispered Miss Milly to her conductor. And then she went downstairs for the expressed purpose. When Miss Milly opened the door to receive the strange visitor, she saw that the doctor had just passed through the gate and was coming up the gravel walk.
"Is this Ceres Cottage?" inquired the lady.
"Yes, ma'am, this is Ceres Cottage," answered Miss Milly.
"Where the Miss Cranes live?"
"Yes, ma'am, will you walk in?"
"If you please. Are you Miss Crane?" inquired the lady as she followed her conductor into the parlor.
"No, ma'am; I am Miss Milly. Will you take a seat?"
"Thank you. You have a young lady boarding here, I believe?" inquired the visitor, as she sank into an easy chair.
"Yes, ma'am; a young married lady. She is a-lying at death's door at the present moment of time."
What effect this announcement had on the visitor, Miss Milly could not know, for just at that moment the doctor quietly entered the room saying:
"Good morning, Miss Milly. How is my patient?"
"Good morning, doctor. Just the same sir; just precisely the same, for all that I can see. Will you go up now and look at her?"
"If you please," said the doctor; then bowing to Miss Milly and to the strange lady, he turned to leave the room.
Miss Milly stood hesitating whether to remain with her visitor, or to attend the doctor, and then she said:
"If you will please to excuse me, ma'am, I will show Dr. Brown upstairs."
"No, no, Miss Milly, it is not necessary, I assure you. I suppose there is some one up there with her?" said the doctor.
"Oh, yes, sir; Harriet is there."
"That will do then. You remain with your visitor," said the doctor leaving the room.
Miss Milly turned to the strange lady saying:
"Now, ma'am, what might be your wishes?"
"I wish to see the young lady as soon as possible. Is she very ill?"
"At death's door, ma'am, I am sorry to say. Might you be of any kin to the sweet young lady?"
"I am her aunt by marriage and her guardian by law. What is her illness?"
"Typhoid pneumonia, the doctor says. "How long has she been ill?"
"Nine days."
"How long has she been with you?"
"Near about three weeks, ma'am."
"She came here in company with a young officer?"
"Her husband, ma'am. Yes."
"Umph!" groaned the lady, as if in grief, contempt and incredulity.
"And oh, ma'am, what do you think He is missing! But perhaps you know that already, and more besides, and have come to tell us news of him?"
"No I did not know he was missing but I am not surprised to hear it—not at all; it might have been expected."
"Ma'am!" exclaimed Miss Milly in amazement.
"I am sorry to shock you, my good woman; but it is best that the truth should be told—nay, it is absolutely necessary that it should. The young lady in whom you seem to take so much interest—"
"I do, oh, indeed, I really do, ma'am. And so do my sisters, and so does my brother, and so does Harriet—she is our colored woman. Oh! please don't say anything against the young lady, ma'am," said Miss Milly.
"Whatever I say, or omit to say, will not alter the facts, will it?"
"Well, no, ma'am; I do suppose not."
"Now then, what I have to say is this: that about a month ago, or something less, this young lady eloped from my house with the young officer whom she calls her husband."
"And who is her husband, ma'am. I would make my affidavit of it with a free conscience," stoutly asserted Miss Milly.
"That is impossible—quite impossible; she is a minor and cannot legally contract marriage without the consent of her guardian until she is of age. No! She has eloped with this man, whom she cannot legally marry; and it appears that even in this short time he has grown tired of her and

HEALTH OFFICIALS WARN THE PUBLIC

In View of Existence of Flu They Advise Prompt Treatment of Every Case of Cold.
When the 'flu epidemic swept the country last year it was generally agreed by medical men that there would be a recurrence of the attack this winter. So far it has not swept with the violence of last year but there is hardly any large community in which it is not present to some degree.
In view of the ever present danger of the disease breaking out health authorities are everywhere advising the public to observe extraordinary precautions. One of their first advice is to treat all cases of colds as dangerous, the conditions in such cases being similar to those in the first stages of 'flu.
For the treatment of colds there is no preparation equal to Grip Fix, which may be secured at any drug store. It is not a patent medicine but a treatment which would be approved by your family physician. The drugs it contains are stated on every box and cover just the drugs needed in such cases. Grip Fix is not a new preparation as it has been in use for many years, doing wonderful work during last year's 'flu epidemic. It comes in convenient capsule form and when buying it be sure to get Reid's Grip Fix as there is nothing "just as good." It sells for 35 cents per box and is worth its price over and over when a cold appears. On sale at all drug stores.
