The London Golf and Country Club concluded its interclub matches at Brantford on Saturday, winning but two games and losing 17. The outcome was quite in order, as the locals won by 23 to 4 on the occasion of Brantford's golfers visit at the Kennel Club earlier in the season. The Kennel Club championship has reached the finals, with George T. Brown and Dr. J. A. Wright left to fight it out this week.

SUDDEN MEETING BROKE UP. At the Conservative meeting meeting in the Grand Opera House Saturday night, Crown Attorney Major R. R. McKessock was cried down by the returned soldiers when from the platform, in Charles McCrea's interests he attempted to tell the audience that Surgeon-Major Dr. Artlauer had hidden at Orington as long as he could and that when sent to France the doctor had hidden at the Base Hospital for seven months.

It is announced on good authority that Goldies-Frogers, one of the outstanding figures in professional Jockey before the fair period, is likely to lose one of his arms by amputation. Frogers, who since the war has been working in London, Ontario, got blood-poisoning in one of his fingers. To save the arm, this had to be amputated, and now it is reported that the surgeons fear his arm will have to come off to save his life.

A mistake in judgment prevented Montreal from making a draw of its game with the Argonauts at Montreal on Saturday, the Toronto team winning by 4 to 3 after a gruelling contest. With but a scant 30 seconds to go the score was tied, and both teams were kicking to try and secure points. Barwick, of the Montreal back division, took a punt behind his line. He thought he could run it out, but never had a chance, and was downed for a rough. He could have kicked with ease and safety.

SOME OLD FRIENDS.

This time when I asked John if he loved me, he did not answer teasingly. "Love you?" he asked. "Why girl, I love you so much that every thing I do from now on, I want you to understand, is done with you in mind and for you. I probably shall forget you again sometime because I am the kind of a man who is absolutely engrossed in the thing at hand." "Then it behooves me to be ever at your hand, lover," I said.

"You are ever in my heart, dear one," he answered. A quick tap at the door, and Helen voice interrupted our love making. "Kate, it's Helen," As I opened the door, Robert Gaylord's face loomed up behind her. I looked beyond Ruth Gaylord was not with them. Bob saw my look and said, "Ruth thought she must stay at home with the children. I hardly get a sight of her lately. She's hardly a pal or a wife any more—she's all mother." At the time this did not affect me greatly because I was too much interested in my own affairs. I suppose but afterward I found myself asking if things would not have been different for Ruth Gaylord and Helen Van Ness if Ruth had paid more attention to Bob.

"I must have brought your trunk and suitcase, Kate," said Helen, "and I think I got all your clothes in it safely." "That's very sweet of you, Helen," said John as she kissed him and congratulated him.

"What is sweet—bringing the trunk or kissing you?" asked Bob with a grin. "Both," answered John, "Wouldn't you like to try it?" "Sure," and Bob made a dive for Helen, which she dexterously sidestepped. "Anyway, I'll kiss the bride," he said.

"No, you won't," I answered. This bride must come first or not at all. "Yes," said John laughing.

"Kate has just been taking me to task for letting a little business deal, in which I made a hundred thousand dollars, come first for a few moments this morning." "Heavens!" said Helen. "You might forget me any old time you pleased for that."

"Oh, I don't know," remarked Bob. "I think there are women in the world who would care more for a man's absolute devotion than for a little money and diamonds." For some reason the gay banterage left us a little serious, and to cover this somewhat strained feeling I asked Helen into my dressing room to repair the ravages to her make-up before we went down to luncheon. We had hardly gotten through the door, however, before Bob and John were deep in the discussion of John's new business deal.

"John's forgetting me this morning," I said. "Reminds me of a story which I will tell you at luncheon. I want John to hear it." To my surprise, Helen did not seem to be listening to what I had said. She threw her arms around my neck and asked tremulously: "Are you really very happy, Kate?" "Ecstatically," I answered. "You are a very fortunate girl. And I noticed that she had tears in her eyes." "Why, what is the matter, Helen. Aren't you happy?" "No, dear, I think I am the most miserable woman in the world."

Nelson Day

Its Message to Canadians

ONE hundred and fifteen years ago tomorrow Nelson achieved his great Victory at Trafalgar and decided Britain's supremacy on the seas.

Today we eagerly strive for the commercial supremacy of the seas, and to that end we MUST train our Canadian boys to man Canadian ships to carry Canada's exports.

Canada Expects that Every Man will do his Duty

Tomorrow and the two following days you will be given an opportunity to insure the success of the Boys' Naval Brigades, on which rests the continuance of the type of trained seamen Canada must have.

The Navy League Campaign for $500,000 must be an unqualified success so that the great work undertaken may be carried forward during the coming year.

Every dollar subscribed will be used in Canada to aid Canadians—to provide relief for Canadian seamen injured in the war and their dependents—to conduct comfortable homes on shore for our seamen in port—to organize Boys' Naval Brigades and give our boys the necessary training so that if they decide their livelihood is on the sea they will be ready for Merchant Service.

Tomorrow the campaign starts. For three days, many of our best citizens will give all their time and attention to the raising of the fund. Help them. Respond liberally. There is a great issue at stake. Do your part to the utmost of your ability.

Asmusen's majority, 2167.

Toronto, Oct. 21.—Yesterday's election in the many surprises due in the main to the fact that was the victim of two landslides, one of the "Drys" towards the U. F. O. and the other of "Wets" towards the U. F. O. The Government fell between these in opposite directions. Here and there were exceptional movement, in most cases explainable by local resentment over what was considered a reversal policy undoubtedly showed prominently in the result wide dissatisfaction with governments, the desire measures for the good of the masses, and the feeling interests should have particular representation had much sweeping verdict.

TORONTO, Oct. 21.—Nobody can say that the slump to the U.F.O. had any relation to the passing of the O.T.A. and the fact that either party might be trusted to enforce the will of the people in favor of prohibition, caused the temperance farmers to vote for their own candidates regardless of the party ties of a lifetime. The fact that the Conservatives ran Gooderham, a distiller, against Dewar, Liberal leader, and that Hon. Mr. McGarry and Hon. Mr. Ferguson, the latter the Government campaigner, were not credited with being enthusiastic in support of the O.T.A. probably encouraged the slump.

A striking fact is that the official opposition in the House, notwithstanding the great upheaval throughout the province, was not able to improve its own position. 6 ridings where the U.F.O. was thought to have won are yet doubtful. These are East Hastings, South Lanark, East Kent, East Northumberland, by a small margin.

PECULIAR SITUATION IN ONTARIO IS WITHOUT PRECEDENT IN DO

Lieutenant-Governor Has Problem on His Hands as Should Call on to Form Government — Must Majority in the House.

TORONTO, Oct. 21.—"I think this case for the Lieutenant-Governor," Sir John Hendrie, Lieut.-Governor, was asked at noon to-day if he could throw any light on a situation without precedent in Canada and never considered by authorities on constitutional law, which results from yesterday's Ontario elections. "I believe that under the circumstances I can call any one in the legislature or out of it and ask him to form a government. Of course it would be without saying that such a man would have to have the support of a majority of the legislature in order to carry on," said Sir John.
