THEY'RE COMING

Russian athletes to invade UNB campus

By GROSS GEORGE
Fredericton Sun

When the University of New Brunswick announced in January that the school's sports teams would be known as the Varsity Reds several people wondered why. What, after all, is a 'Varsity Red'? It seems we'll find out come September when the varsity teams begin competing once again.

A Sun reporter on assignment in Eastern Europe has been tipped that UNB has commissioned the construction of a high performance training centre for athletes from the once communist countries, most notably the former USSR. Such centres were once an integral part of communist countries.

At a press conference, University President Robin Armsweak would not confirm or deny the reports, but when asked just what was being constructed on the St. Thomas University, Armsweak became quite irate and yelled "No comment" before storming out.

When told of the report, student athlete Jacques Schrappe wondered about his fate as an athlete here in the future.

"From what I've heard the university is replacing us with Russian athletes that are abnormally big. It's too bad because athletes from Doaktown and Barker's Point will never be able to beat out a machine from Siberia."

In the past, these 'training' centres have been shrouded in secrecy and are often located underground and in the middle of dense forest. The likely location for the proposed centre on the UNB campus would be in front of Sir Edmund Casey Hall, this way St. Thomas would be blamed if the centre was ever discovered.

Sun sports editor Cranky Penis says the move is a big gamble. "If the Varsity Reds are able to pull this off then more power to them. However, if the AUAA catches on to their scam, it is likely that the sports program could be put on probation. But it's unlikely that they will catch on. Mount Allison coach Jack Drover says that UNB has been scamming the AUAA for years and they have yet to take action against the school."

Though the story is still mostly speculation, Athletics Director Rim Torn admitted that many former Russian athletes have expressed interest in coming to UNB. However, he pointed out that they are interested more in the excellent geological engineering program than the $125 million athletic facility being built at the top of College Hill.

"Their initial interest was sparked by our name change but after visiting our campus, they were hooked on the mystique of Fredericton. Here at the athletic department, we were all amazed by their size."
